THE NEVERSINK .- The Committee appointed by the Neversink Fire Company, some few days ago, to make arrangements to furnish their hall in a first-class style, have just purchased 8) yards of Ingrain carpet. The Neversink boys have determined to have their "house set in order."

WILD CAT .- A large wild cat, or some creature of that species, has for some time been roaming around the vicinity of the Windsor Furnace, in Windsor township. It has been seen several times, and our friend informs us that it is as large as a good sized dog. We should be glad to hear of its capture.

NOTICE .- Pastors of city churches and Superintendents of Sabbath Schools are invited to attend an adjourned meeting, to be held in the Sabbath school rooms of the Presbyterian Church, on Sunday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, to confer as to the propriety of holding a Sunday School Institute in this city at an early day.

St. Valentine's Day .- The lads and lassies who are under the impression that their hearts require ventilating, in the shape of discharging sighs, &c., through love missives, will have a the opportunity on the 14th of the present month, the annual festal day of St. Valentine, The day is supposed to admit of a very large license in this particular line, but we trust it will not be abused, as is too often the case in the way of sending scurrilous and indecent wood cut colored pictures.

Mr. Soken says it is drinking between drinks that makes people intemperate. For himself he never takes anything only regularly; but it proves a regular take in to all who ask him. Soker believes in being strictly regular, and so gots regularly smashed by 9 p.m. People who are regular in their habits can be depended upon, and so Mrs. Soker depends on having her husband regularly brought home on a shutter. His between drinks often get him between two policemen.

Library Hall, Tuesday evening.

NOTICE TO THOSE INTERESTED. - We are not partial to any particular sect or denomination, but it is absolutely impossible, even if we were so inclined, for us to attend all the churches in the city at one and the same time. The power of ubiquity has never yet been given us. We understand that some persons are grumbling because all the churches are not noticed in our local on "rollylous intelligence." If such persons will be kind enough to send their notices to us, we will cheerfully give them a place in the Eager. Those interested will please make a note of this.

READING, Feb. 4, 1869. EDITOR DAILY FAGLE: - I have just read in your last issue your very good suggestions about opening the Ticket Office at the Lower Depot, a little earlier before the departure of trains. Why did you not go a little further, and advocate the opening of a Central or general Ticket Office, where tlokets and information could be obtained by strangers without the present incorporations of walking sectors. the present inconvenience of walking so far? Let it be in the heart of the city, say about 6th and Penn streets, and let it be kept open from early morn till late at night. This accommodation would certainly be appreciated by the traveling public, but not by the light-fingered gentry, as they could not spot their man so readily.

Progress. Progress.

BREAD WITHOUT YEAST.—The celebrated German chemist, Liebig, has devised an improved process for raising bread without the use of yeast or leaven. He mixes with 110 pounds of flour 1714 ounces of blearbonate of soda, 134 pounds of purified hydrochloric acid, 134 pounds of common salt, and 42 quarts of water. The hydrochloric acid, uniting with the blearbonate of coda, disangages sufficient carbonic acid gas to render the dough properly light, and at the same time forms an additional quantity of salt. To give bread the flavor of quantity of salt. To give bread the flavor of that made in the usual way, vinegar, to the amount of from four to eight quarts may be substituted for the same quantity of water; and if a further flavor is required, half a pound of old dry cheese may be mingled with the vinegar. It is said that large quantities of this bread are daily consumed in Munich.

> A MAN FOUND STUPEFIRD,-Information was sent to the Police Headquarters, at an ear-ly hour this morning, that a man in an agreed on as the price of the cow in controusensible condition was lying at the Lime Klins, beyond the Harrisburg Bridge, Penn street. Chief McNall dispatched Officer Clay to see after him, and the officer brought the unfortunate man to the Station House in a vagon. Dr. H. M. Nagle was sent for, and on examination found the man to be in a stupetied condition, resulting from inhaling the sul-phur arising from the kiins. It is supposed from the manner in which he was lying, that he fell asleep on top of one of the kilns and then rolled down the side. His condition was such that he could not talk, and of course no information could be obtained from him. His name is not known, but the policemon say that he is one of the numerous class of "trampers." Mr. Joseph Muthard, one of the Directors of the Poor, directed that he be sent to the Poor House Hospital, and he was taken there.

> [Communicated.] MR. Holton.—The independence of the press, as exhibited in this city, is anything but encouraging to the public who depend upon it to stand between them and wrong and outrage of all kinds whatsoever. I have noticed several cases of late in which the press, after interfering, backed down most ingloriously. I know the dangers and difficulties with which an Editor is beset—the troubles and expense of a libel suit, and all that; but, being in the right, I think no public print, claiming influence and power, should allow itself to be intimidated because tho transgressor has influential friends, who may have a little patronage to dispense. I don't wish to advance the idea that because the conductor of a newspaper has power he should abuse it. Far from it. But we want a fearless man, one who, knowing that he is in the right, will stick to it, and not allow him-self to contradict himself in his next issue, with the lame excuse that he was misinformed! This is calculated to weaken the influence of the press and to destroy its usefulness; for who will place reliance in a shoot, which, having discovered wrong, prints it in one issue and contradicts itself in the next? Not many, I think. A nod's as good as a wink.

Ebbraim Hottenstine vs. Reuben Herbine. 87 Jan. T. 1867. This was a suit about a cow, and the parties were from Ontelaunce township. In the month of November, 1866, the plaintiff and Levi Dehart met to bargain for sale of a cow which the latter wished to buy from the former. Hottenstine asked $65 for the animal, either in cash, or upon security. The sale was not concluded upon the first interview, but the parties came together a second time, when Dehart told Hottenstine that Reuben Herbine the deft. owed him $75 for another cow which be (Herbine) had sold him, and proposed in order to pay for the cow he was negotiating for, that Herbine should pay assented to this arrangement, requesting, howouer, that the former should not call for the money for fifteen or twenty days. Hottenstine had seen Herbine and that it was all right, upon which he let Dehart drive the cow home. Before the expiration of the fifteen or twenty days within which the money was to be passon ascertaining this he gave notice to Herbine not to pay over the money to Hottenstine, and the latter complied with his directions, hence this action to recover from Herbine the $65

A THREATENING, YET WELL-INTENDED Missive. Every person has heard of John Smith, (we don't mean our John of the EAale,) and from the day the sweet Indian down to the present time, John Smith has been an exceedingly useful (because so ubiquitous) individual. He is closely related to Mr. "Scattering," who is a candidate at every diection and for every office imaginable. John is kind, he is gontle, and yet determination flashes from his eagle eye. With such excellent qualities of disposition, is it any wonder that John is constantly engaged in doing some-thing for the amelioration of mankind, or endeavoring to reclaim the wayward and dissoof it, that John recently sent to a "gay young

Some of our cotempararies abroad seem to doubt the "growth" of Reading. As an indication of the extent of our "domain," we may montion that on several occasions we have known our friends to "step" out for a few minutes in the evening, and not get home until the next morning. It is supposed that they walked so far in a half an hour that it took them all night to get back. AN INFAMOUS ATTEMPT AT INCENDIARISM.

—The Lancaster Express of Wednesday even-ing says: One of the most cowardly and distardly acts over perpetrated in this city was committed at the Home for Friendless Child-ren last evening. About eight o'clock some one entered the front door and proceeding to the front sitting room, deposited in the centre of the floor a ball of rags saturated with coal maiden, Poconontas, saved the life of the gallant and fearless John from the cruel death fire to it. The matron, Miss Spence, inmesentence of grave and severe old Powhatan, diately afterward entered the room, just in diately afterward entered the room, just in time to gather up the blazing ball and cast it into the stove. The carpet was burned through and the floor slightly charred. The children. of whom there are about two hundred in the institution, had nearly all retired to bed and many were sound asleep. The act was the work of a grown person, or at least one who wore large shoes, as the prints of the shoes in front of the door were plainly visible last evening. The person after setting fire to the ball retired to the outside of the building, and went to the front window to watch the progress of his infornal work. This was evident from the foot-prints in the snow.

> (COURT PROCEEDINGS - Continued from First Edition.)
> Two grounds of defence were set up in this

The first was that the agreement of Herbine to assume the debt of Dehart not having been in writing, there could be no recovery here on account of the intervention of the Act of 26th of April, 1855, commonly known as the Statute of Frauds, which provides that "no action shall be brought to charge a defendant upon any special promise to answer for the debt or default of another, unless the agreement on which the action shall be brought, or some memorandum thereof shall be in writting, and signed by the party to be charged therewith, or some other person by him authorized." The second ground of defence alloged was that the cow had been warranted sound when sold, while in reality she was not. The proof was that when the bargain was being concluded Hottenstine said to Dehart that he would warrant the cow to have no failing, or words to that effect. In order to establish a breach of the warrant, the defence had recourse among other evidence, to professional testimony. Dr. John Phillips, a cow physician, was called to the stand, who testified that he had examined the cow, and that she was that the cow branch of the animal creation was not subject to this disease, which was con-fined exclusively to horses, and further insinfined exclusively to horses, and further insin-uated that even if she was, the defect was of little practical moment, productiveness, and not speed being her indispensable qualitica-tion. Dr. Phillips, however, differed in his opinion, backing his theory with the observa-tions of a long professional experience, having successfully treated the disease in many in-stances, as he said by pow-wowing. As he had not been retained, however, in the case under consideration, there was unfortunately had not been retained, however, in the case under consideration, there was unfortunately no test in this instance, of the efficiency of this mode of cure. The defence proved by the man who now owned the cow, that although she had lumps on her legs he would not take $75 for her at the present time.

The Court held in regard to the first point that there was no currently here which.

The Court held in regard to the first point that there was no guaranty here, which would bring the case within the provisions of the statute of frauds. Herbine owing the money to Dehart and there simply being an agreement to pass it over to Hottenstine instead of paying it directly to the latter. The simple point submitted to the jury, was the question of the warranty in this case, against all defects, and defects were found to have existed, the depreciation in the value of the animal in consequence was to be defalked by the jury from the price at which she was sold. But these defects must be found to be such as But these defects must be found to be such as were not apparent upon observation, otherwise it was purchasor's fault in buying an animal manifestly unsound. If however the plff without warranting the cow made representations in regard to her character, which he knew to be false, and the purchaser had no opportunity of inspecting the apparent of the place. of inspecting the property, the plift, would still be liable as in a breach of warranty. The jury found for the plff. $46.33. P. D. Wanner and Barclay for plff. Jacobs for deft,

None but those deprived of this blessing know of its loss. The pimpled, blotched, and tettered covered person looks upon a clear, smooth skin with jealousy, and inwardly desires the same. Among the many restoratives which nature has supplied to relieve the afflictions of humanity, there is no more favorite one for a certain class of discuses than the "medical gum" of the Wild Cherry Tree; but however valuable it is, its power to heal, to soothe, to relieve and to cure, is enhanced tenfold by scientific and judicious combination with other ingredients, in themselves of equal worth. This happy mingling exists to a remarkable degree in Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, whose value in curing Coughs, Colds, Broughitts, Whooping Cough, Croup, Asthma, Pulmonary Affection, and Incipiont Consumption is incs-

STRONG TESTIMONY,
From Bers. Whereker, Esq., Depot Master of South Royalsfon, Mass.

"In the spring of 1858 I was most severely afficted with a hard, dry cough, with its usual accompaniments of night sweats, completely prostrating my nervous system, and producing such a debilitated state of health that, after trying medical aid to no purpose, I had given up all hopes of ever recovering, as lind also my friends. At this stage of matters I was prevailed upon through the influence of a neighbor to try Wistar's linisam of Wild Cherry, aid, before using two bottles, the effect was almost magical. My cough entirely loftine, the nightsweats descrited me, hope once more elated my depressed spirits, and soon I had attained my wonted strength and vigor. Thus has this Bansain, as has often been remarked by persons conversant with the above facts, literally anatohed me from the yawning grave. You areat liberty to use this for the nencell of the afflicted.
