DR. SCHAEFFER'S LECTURE.

Also Notes on Closing Day of Wayne County Institute.

HONESDALE, Jan. 4.—A good sized house greeted the appearance of Dr.
Schaeffer at the court house last evening. Preceding the lecture, Professor Coggswell sang "Morning Land," by Dudley Buck, and "Happy Three" for an encore. The subject of Dr. Schaeffer's lecture was "The Three Great Tendencies of Modern Education." These he said were, the tendency to study nature instead of old books; the religious tendency and the humanistic tendency.

The speaker gave a short sketch of the slow progress of these tendencies down to the present day and showed that they were steadily growing upon the people, until now the great open book of nature was fast revealing its secrets. He said the knowledge of human nature made the successful stump speaker, salesman, etc., and not the knowledge of the tariff laws or of the goods for sale. A successful farmer must apply science to his agriculture; he must put brains in his farming. A study must be made of the book Divine.
It must be read in our schools.

He sketched the history of the Jesuits, and told of the numberless schools they had founded. Dr. Schaeffer was troubled with a bad cold and spoke only a short time. His lecture was impressive and delighted all his hearers.

Professor Twitmyer opened this morning's session of the institute with a talk on his course of reading for the teachers which had been previously outlined as follows: First year, "New Education," second year, "White's Psychology," third year, "White's Psychology," and "Baldwin's School Management," fourth year, "Baldwin's Applied Psychology," and "Baldwin's History of Education." Professor Albert gave a talk on "Primary Geography," and at the same time Professor Coggswell addressed the Honesdale teachers at the high school on "Music." Ex-Superintendent Cass closed the morning session with an address on "Physical Education."

Much interest was manifested in the afternoon session, Professor Twitmyer giving an illustrated lecture on "Easy Experiments in Natural Science." Professor Albert addressed the teachers on "Advanced Geography." This lecture closed the session of the Wayne county institute.

AMUSEMENTS PAST AND TO COME.

Programme at the Opera House and the Dance Halls.

HONESDALE, Jan. 4.—"Zeb, the Clod Hopper," will appear at the opera house Monday, Jan. 8. The special scenery carried by the company consists of one scene representing the natural world of Indians in full working order; another, the interior of a pawnbroker's establishment at Chicago, but the greatest hit is a reproduction of the movable sidewalk at the World's fair.

The special attraction to Honesda-lians will be the appearance of our former townsman, Irving T. Bush, who is one of the leading comedians. Look out for "Zeb."

The large crowd that poured into Maennerchor hall last night so completely filled the room that only with the greatest difficulty that any dancing was indulged in. It was a merry crowd and added one more success to the weekly dances of the Keystone orchestra.

The dancing class of Professor Heft met in the old Liederkranz hall last evening, where the hours were pleasantly passed. Many persons outside the class enjoy these dances, the next of which will probably be held on Monday evening.

Wednesday night an attempt was made to break into the gent's furnishing store of Thomas Griffiths, in the Odd Fellows' building. This place has already been entered three times and probably the thieves would have been successful this time had it not been for a large dog, which Mr.
Griffiths keeps in the store. Dr. I. S.
Graves, when returning from a professional visit, heard the dog barking and saw two men lurking in the shadow of the building. One of the men was tall and wore a cap. The other was thick set and wore a slouch hat. They, seeing that they were observed, sprang over the low fence and disappeared in the darkness. Upon in-
