A suit involving a strip of land on North Main street has been filed in court by J. E. Patterson against J. A. Tanhili, of this place. The strip of land in question is located on the westerly side of North Main street between the foundry and machine shops of Mr. Tonbill and the manufacturing plant of J. E. Patterson, located on the north side. The plaintiff alleges he holds a deed covering the land in dispute. Mr. Touldll, on the other hand, disputes the former's title by a deed from the original owners who obtained the land by letters patent from the

The cause of action hinges in a great measure on the course of the old canal which has long since been done away The case will be stubbornly fought through the courts, able attorneys having been retained on both

CALENDAR DAN'S VISIT.

The Annual Re-appearance of a Very Unique Local Personage.

"Calendar Dan" paid his twentieth annual visit to Pittston yesterday, and created the usual quantity of merriment among the school children. He faithfully visited every drug store in the borough, just as he has done, year in and year out, for two decades, and as he asked each druggist his usual ques-tion: "Got any calendars for me?" he followed it up with the assertion: "I'm the gosh durndest beat fellow to scatter awmanacks about ye ever seen."

Dan's career is involved in mystery. Pretty much all that is known of him is that he has a mania for calendars and rolling pins. In his grip he carries a varried assortment of both, and varies the monotony of his long tramps on foot by talking to his pets as he would address children.

MINOR NEWS NOTES.

The Doings of the Twin Villages Chronicled in Brief. Frank E. Elliot, until recently identified with the West Pittston Journal, will in a few days issue a newspaper to be known as the Press. It will be published at Kingston.

An application was filed at Wilkes-Barre Wednesday for the incorporation of the Nos. 9 and 10 Collieries Accident association of this place. The association will have for its object the care of members in good standing.

Last evening Joe Keating, of Railroad street, a carrier boy for the Evening Gazette, averted what might have proved a serious accident to himself by adroitly slipping out of his overcoat which caught in the cogs of one of the presses in the Gazette office. His top coat and under coat were both torn to shreds, but Joe was not injured though badly scared. - Journal.
