Decorative Duster Bag.

It is no new idea, that of concealing the useful but very practical dusting cloth in a decorative bag, but the duster bag described by The Modern Priscilla presents new points in the manner of its decoration. The bag referred to is made of blue satin and trimmed with a border of chamois. This border is cut in scallops at the top and decorated with disks and crescents, painted in bronze colors. The bottom of the chamois is painted in horizontal lines with the bronze colors and cut in strips to form fringe. The duster is provided with a large metal ring for hanging.

His Wife In a New Light.

A young married man received such a shock of surprise as to his wife's crowding and elbowing attainments that he has not yet recovered. He expected to make a few selections one evening, not suspecting his better half was away on the same errand, and was not a little surprised to see her in one of the big stores. He kept just out of her sight, however, and watched her. He opened his eyes in amazement as he saw the way she crowded up to the counters and forced the attention of the clerks—she, the darling creature who could not walk a block without the support of his arm, and who always waited for his assistance in alighting from a car or in crossing a street.—New York Evening Sun.

Criticising a Young Lady.

"She would be a pretty girl for but one thing."

"What's that?" asked Charley.

George—Her face is always covered with purple and red blotches.

Charley—Oh, that's easily enough disposed of. Used to be the same way myself, but I caught on to the trouble one day, and got rid of it in no time.

George—What was it?

Charley—Simply blood eruptions. Took a short course of P. P. P. I tell you, it's the boss blood corrector. The governor had rheumatism so bad that you could hear him holler clear across the country every time he moved. He tried it, and you know what an athletic old gent he is now. If somebody would give Miss Daisy a pointer, she would thank them afterwards. All the drug stores sell it. **

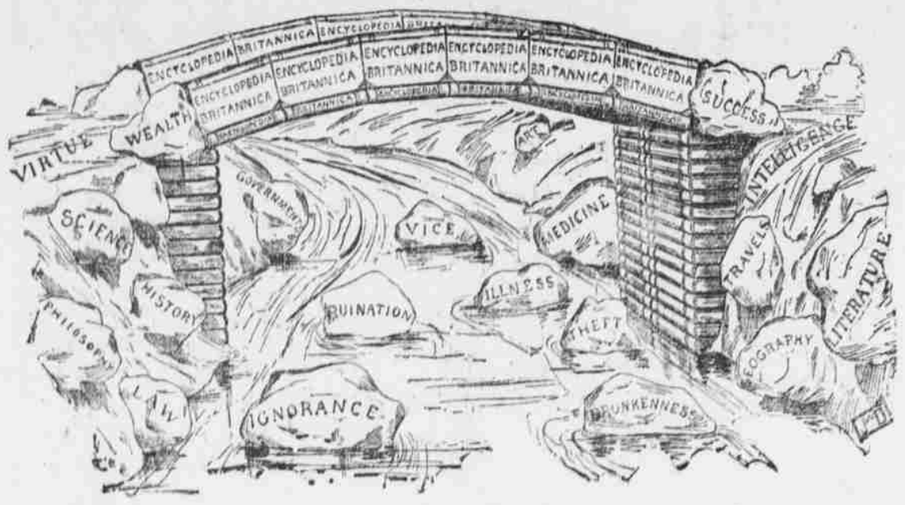
ENCYCLOPEDIA BRITANNICA



The Bridge of Learning

How oft repeated is the admonition: "Don't cross the bridge till you get to it." Another form for the same advice is: "Don't borrow trouble." But it is equally important that the bridge should be crossed when it is reached and that trouble or responsibility should be borne manfully when one meets it face to face. The turbulent stream of life is studded with the reefs and shoals of vice, misery and ignorance, and it is the unhappy lot of many to battle against such breakers from the cradle to the grave. In many cases, it is true, excuses can be found for the failure to surmount the difficulties, but usually a man is the architect of his own fortune. With a few men the greater the difficulty the more certainly it will be overcome, but the average man shrinks from a task as a mad dog would shun water.

No one, in this age, is so base as not to wish for an education; but how many there are yet among us who have not the moral courage to make any sacrifice to acquire that education. Even the mercenary and selfish covet the look and bearing of a man who KNOWS; for knowledge and wisdom are the most potent factors in thrift. But when a person has attained a knowledge of men and their actions; of the government and their rulers; of science, art, religion, and all the things with which master minds are liable to grapple, then the question of money making becomes a secondary consideration.

When one has put himself in possession of the "facts in the case," even at the sacrifice of time and money, he succeeds so well that soon he is better off financially on account of the sacrifice; so that the sacrifice becomes an investment. Education of the ABRAHAM LINCOLN kind is obtained a little at a time, but with a constant application. No one should wait to take

A DAY OFF

To get an education. The process of taking a day off to get an education is as follows: You hear or read an allusion to some vaguely familiar subject and feel eager to know more about it, and you determine to look it up at the first opportunity; but before that opportunity comes another and another of such points are presented to your mind, and when at last you come to an encyclopedia you begin to look up these points in a wholesale way. But the interest is gone and some of the questions forgotten, therefore the mind does not grasp the broad application of the facts and cannot remember them, whereby if you go immediately to your encyclopedia while your mind is keen upon the subject it is impossible to forget what you read. This necessitates your having a set of the best encyclopedia in your own library and on the most convenient shelf.

THIS IS REAL EDUCATION. When each and every family shall have adopted this plan, education will be advanced and civilization lifted to a higher plane.

Do not neglect the opportunity offered through THE TRIBUNE to procure a library on easy payments. The offer must be withdrawn in a short time. Hundreds are providing themselves with this unparalleled encyclopedia. Go and do likewise before it is too late.
