GENERAL NEWS OF INDUSTRIES

Coxe Bros. & Co. Greatly Benefited by Their Deal with the Lehigh Valley.

THEY CAN NOW ACT INDEPENDENTLY

Although They Are as Yet Working in Harmony with the Trade, Their Situation Is Represented to Be One Which Gives Them the Power to Pursue Whatever Course They May Elect—Other News and Gossip Relating to Industries.

Says the Philadelphia Stockholder: When the Lehigh Valley railroad entered into a trackage agreement with the Delaware, Susquehanna & Schuylkill, the short road owned by Coxe Bros. & Co., it was stated that the deal would be most beneficial to the Lehigh Valley. It is now, however, an open question whether such will be the case; indeed, there is reason to believe that all the advantage and benefit attaching to the deal is on the side of Coxe Bros. & Co. By using their own cars and locomotives they practically become independent shippers as they have been producers, and as such are likely to be more of a lance in the coal trade than ever before. What is to prevent their reducing freight rates to tidewater whenever they elect? Not their contract with the Lehigh Valley certainly, for, according to a gentleman who examined the contract very closely, it contains that prevents them from lowering rates to tidewater if they feel so disposed. Whether they will do so is another question, but if Coxe Bros. & Co. want to be consistent they will certainly make a reduction. In their suit against they Lehigh Valley, which was instituted several years ago, and which is still pending in court, they charged discrimination in coal freight rates, holding that the rate to tidewater from the mines was excessive. If it was excessive then it is excessive now, and Coxe Bros. & Co. owe it to themselves to lower the rate; either that or withdraw their suit against the Lehigh Valley, as they would have but little standing in a case where they are doing the same thing they charge others with doing. If they lower the rate the other companies would naturally be compelled to meet the reduction, else Coxe Bros. & Co. would secure a much larger portion of tidewater business than they now enjoy.

P. F. Laufman, the pioneer tin plate manufacturer of Pittsburg, says he has discovered that a combine of Welsh operators will be formed to nullify a slight advantage which the Wilson bill has unintentionally given the American producers while destroying the protective duties. Mr. Laufman has studied the Wilson bill and keeps track of all the changes in it which affect the iron interests. He discovered a few days ago, after having closely watched the British markets that it was going to be possible by making close margins to carry on the tin plate industry in America even under the Wilson bill. How close Mr. Laufman figured on this may be seen from the fact that in one instance the Americans will have an advantage of only 2 cents on a double box of over 200 pounds of tinplate. Under the regime which will be inaugurated with the passage of the bill, if it passes in its present shape, it will be impossible for Western Pennsylvania manufacturers to compete in eastern markets or for the eastern manufacturers to sell goods west of the Allegheny mountains. The reason for this is that the western manufacturers can produce their own block plates cheap enough to meet the foreign competition, while the Wilson bill has put the duty on block plates low enough for the eastern operators to import and sell them low enough to meet the foreign competition. And this is where the Welshmen will get in their work. They won't send block plates to America, and the eastern dipper will, in consequence, be left. The western mills will not suffer so much.

In the course of an extended editorial discussion of the free coal project the New York Sun says: "To measure the severity of the competition to which American producers would be subjected by their Canadian rivals, in case coal should be imported free of duty, one should take into account the situation of the Canadian coal fields, as well as the unlimited extension of which their output is capable. There are great deposits on the very edge of the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, while the intervening mines lie for the most part on the line of the Canadian Pacific railway. Immediately behind Halifax, for instance, and closely connected with it by rail, are the Picton and other Nova Scotia coal fields, which, even now, while their product is shut off from the American market, turn out about 1,000,000 tons of coal per annum. To the northwest is the island of Cape Breton, around whose fine harbors are numerous mines from which are raised yearly 1,030,000 tons of coal of excellent quantity for steaming and other purposes. It is impossible for coal fields to have a more advantageous position, for here the mouths of the pits are in some cases close to the shore, and as the mines are carried far out under the sea, a ship may load directly over the spot whence the coal is obtained.

"If we cross the continent, we find the coal of British Columbia equally well placed for acquiring control of the neighboring American markets, if it is admitted to them free. It should be remembered that along the whole Pacific coast of South America there is no coal found suitable for steaming purposes, nor is there any on the coast of North America until we come to Puget Sound. On the American shore on this sound there are coal fields now worked, but their product will be driven from our home markets if it is exposed to competition with the output of the richer deposits on Vancouver Island. The annual delivery of the mines at Nanaimo and Wellington on this island has rapidly risen above a million tons, and is capable of great expansion. At Nanaimo, moreover, the principal mine is directly on the shore, and the galleries are pushed out far under the water, so that here, as at Cape Breton, ships may load immediately over the place from which the coal is extracted. There are, therefore no charges for transportation from the pit's mouth to the place of shipment. Another important coal area of the Dominion has lately been opened in the Rocky Mountain district. A few miles from Banff, and scarcely a hundred yards from the line of the Canadian Pacific railway, a mine of anthracite coal is now worked, and many outcrops of the same deposit are found in the vicinity. This anthracite contains a larger amount of fixed carbon than the product of eastern Pennsylvania, burns rather more rapidly, and gives out a greater heat. This coal is used exclusively by the Canadian Pacific railway for heating its cars as far eastward as Lake Superior, and it is sold for domestic purposes as far eastward as Winnipeg.

At Canmore, only ten miles distant from the anthracite mine, is found another kind of coal, almost smokeless, and possessing the quality of cooking well. Were it admitted in the markets of our states near it its adaptibility to smelting purposes and relative cheapness would drive out all competitors. Coming eastward we find in the prairie country of the Canadian Northwest another extensive coal deposit. The Galt mines at Lethbridge yield a good bituminous coal, well adapted to railway uses, which, if the duty were removed, would be exported in large quantities to the states lying immediately to the south. It is estimated by Dr. Dawson, that the coal measures stretching eastward from the Lethbridge, along the American border, to Manitoba, cover 15,000 square miles. We may add that along the banks of the Saskatchewan, in the vicinity of Edmonton, thick seams of coal are visible, and that a serviceable domestic coal is delivered at the place for $2.50 a ton. To obtain free access to the American market for the output of these vast coal deposits, and for the other natural products of the Dominion there is no doubt that Canadaians would eventually consent to annexation. It is the part of American patriots to give for nothing a privilege which ought to be sold for a great price."

Mine Inspector Williams, of the Fourth Anthracite district, has just completed his annual report for 1893. It shows a total production of 8,065,768 tons mined. This is an increase of 516,169 tons in production over 1892. The total number of men employed in 1893 was 22,790, an increase of 1,609. During the year there were killed in the mines, 77, and injured, 221, leaving 49 widows and 131 orphans.

MINOR INDUSTRIAL NOTES:

An official of the Pennsylvania railroad says there has been a decided increase in freight business within the last two weeks on that road, both east and west. A large amount of coal and coke is being shipped from the Connellsville region, and 400 empty box cars have been ordered west for eastern grain and live stock shipments. The traffic is decidedly better than it was a month ago, and will, it is thought, continue to increase.

A large steel manufacturer says that steel rails last week said at the lowest price on record.

The Susquenanna and Western railroad has changed its fiscal year to June 30 from Dec. 31, in order to comply with the interstate commerce act; consequently no annual report will be made this spring.

Passenger rates eastbound from Chicago are being clandestinely cut, and railroad managers will meet Friday to brace them up.

Drexel, Morgan & Co. and J. S. Morgan & Co. announce that the Erie plan has been declared operative, a majority of each class of bonds having been deposited.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

Stocks and Bonds.

NEW YORK, March 7.—American sugar was again the feature of the stock market. The price ranged from 99⅝ to 95¼, and closed at 94⅜, a new gain of 3⅝. The transactions were not as heavy as on yesterday, but still reached 100,000 shares. The bears were not permitted to have control of the stock at any time, although when it touched 90⅜ they were impressed with the idea that the bull movement was over and they put out fresh lines. The other Industrials were in brisk demand and moved up rapidly. These stocks were influenced by Washington reports that the senate would grant some protection to all the industries. At least this was the reason ascribed in the room for the improvement in the stocks. The general railway list was firm in the early trading in sympathy with the strength of sugar. Later on there was a re-action of ⅝ to 1 per cent. Still later on London houses bought round amounts of the Grangers and other stocks and this changed the temper of speculation and the market fell off strong with a net gain of ⅛@3⅛ for the day.
