WAS A GREAT SUCCESS

Big Mid-Year Convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

MANY LIVE TOPICS DISCUSSED

Forenoon Session Devoted to the Consideration of Different Features of Department Work—Mrs. A. M. Holvey Delivers an Eloquent and Stirring Address—Reports of Committees and Other Matters.

Mrs. C. H. Cool, of Pittston, presided over yesterday morning's session of the mid-year convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Lackawanna and Luzerne counties. Mrs. R. H. Hiron, of this city, conducted the devotional exercises, at the close of which considerable time was taken in the discussion of various features of the work in which the organization is interested.

Mrs. C. H. Cool, of Pittston, presided at the afternoon session, Mrs. Pierce Butler, of Carbondale, conducting the devotional exercises. Mrs. David Sprinke, of this city, sang "Nowhere to Go" in a very pleasing manner. She was followed by a music quartet, who rendered "Sailing on the Ocean". The singing of the young men greatly pleased the ladies, who gave them a hearty encore, in response to which they sang the third party song, "What Are You Going to Do About It?"

Mrs. A. M. Holvey, of Pittston, next gave a report which included a report of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union's great convention held at the World's Fair in Chicago last fall. It was a remarkably entertaining talk and evinced the fact that a very talented woman dwells in the little village on the Susquehanna. She is a rapid talker, has a good command of choice language and seems to be thoroughly in earnest in her advocacy of the cause she champions. She possesses a peculiar charm when addressing an audience, the force of which grows stronger as she warms up on the platform. Her address yesterday afternoon has a good command of choice language and seems to be thoroughly in earnest in her advocacy of the cause she champions.

Mrs. Holvey started out by saying that the Chicago convention was composed of the brightest, brainiest and most progressive women in the world. After paying a glowing tribute to their genius, enthusiasm and earnestness in the prosecution of good work, she said that a standing alone one of their number could not do much, but when that one became a member of an organization having for its object a great reform her influence was augmented by that of 200,000 others, and then she became a mighty power in the land.

She criticized the inactivity of the churches in regard to temperance work, saying an awful deadness had fallen upon them. Extracts from the address of various persons at the Chicago convention were given, including those of Archbishop Ireland, Anthony Comstock and representatives from other countries, as well as from different states of the Union, particular reference being made to the work of the two women sent by the organization to inquire into the abuses of India widows by the British army. Mrs. Holvey's references to this particular subject were couched in terms representative of laudation and converted to their first idea of the enormity of a most heinous crime.

As God is just, as God answers prayer, just so surely, she said, will he stretch forth his arm of might in defense of this cause.

"We will take the world for Christ's kingdom some day," she added. "That is what the white ribbon means, and I would not exchange the little insignia and what it means, for the richest jewel that ever shone in a monarch's crown. The influence of the Woman's Christian Temperance union has gone forth everywhere, on the land, into dark places of sin and suffering, and humanity is being lifted. We are not begging for favor, we demand justice. Justice is all woman wants and God will see she has it."

The resolution was a fitting climax to the address. After singing, the report of the committee on resolutions was heard as follows:

THE RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Lackawanna and Luzerne counties, in convention assembled, acknowledge with gratitude the guidance of our heavenly Father, and acknowledging him as our leader and realizing as never before the great need of united Christian temperance work, we pledge ourselves anew to the cause of a clear brain and a protected home; and

Resolved, That the practical thought of sending through the rural districts of our counties suitable speakers to arouse to action the latent temperance enthusiasm, be given more thorough attention.

Resolved, That we consider ourselves most fortunate in having secured the services of Miss Henrietta Moore, of Ohio, and that we recognize in her one of the Rev. James McLeod, D. D., delivered an interesting address at Young Men's Christian Association Hall last evening on "St. Patrick, Ireland and the Irish." There was a large audience present and he attracted great attention to the speaker's work. Remain of Coroner's Inquest Over the Victim of the Taylor Murder.

Coroner Kelly went to Taylor yesterday and held an inquest on the body of John Ritsak who was slain by a razor in the hands of John Murdoch, of the City of London.

The autopsy revealed that the murderer had used the deadly weapon in a most savage manner, cutting and slashing his victim with all the fury of a wild beast. A cut, shaped something in the form of a V, extended from the left shoulder blade to the abdomen, and through this wound the murderer had thrust his razor. It appeared around the right arm near the shoulder. Another similar gash, appeared above the right arm, just below the left elbow, and a large piece of scalp was missing.

A number of witnesses, all foreigners, were examined, and it was ascertained, however, no one saw the fight which ended in the murder. Others rushing in upon the scene, Ritsak was found lying on the bed, and as he lived several hours, he imparted to the jury such information of the affair as they possessed.

It was shown by the autopsy that Ritsak died of hemorrhage and the jury found that he came to his death from the effects of wounds inflicted by a razor held in the hands of John Murdoch.

The murderer is still at large, having fled immediately after the commission of the deed. The chief of police at Taylor thinks that he will succeed in effecting his capture.

Two new cases of scarlet fever were reported yesterday to the health board as existing on Electric, near Washington avenue, making a total of six cases registered since Sunday. The northern portion is most free and Hyde Park most generally affected.
