LOCAL ELKS RECEIVE FIRE AT THE ARCADE

The Palatial New Club House Is Thrown Open to the Public.

ROOMS ARE ELEGANTLY EQUIPPED

Several Hundred of the Most Prominent People of the City Are Entertained at the New Franklin Avenue Club House of Scranton Lodge No. 123, B. & P. O. E.—Rich Furnishings, Fine Music and Hospitality.

The opening event on the two days programme of exercises attending the dedication of the new Franklin Avenue club house of Scranton lodge 123, B. & P. O. E., was a ladies' order of Elks, was a ladies' promenade reception. The event last evening attracted nearly 600 guests, who listened to a well chosen programme of music, admired the splendid furnishings of the club rooms and lodge hall, and incidentally the impressions as to the quality, magnitude, enterprise and good taste of Scranton Elks.

The reception began at 8 o'clock. Guests after disposing of their wraps in two well arranged cloak rooms, were escorted into what will on ordinary occasions be the wisest and smoking room of the Elks' club, on the second floor. This room is handsomely finished in blue, with stereo-relief work on walls and ceiling, and is equipped with comfortable tables and chairs. Adjoining it is the billiard room, which is quietly colored in pale blue, with frescoed walls and ceiling, and carpeted in Administrator with rare designs.

THE HANDSOME PARLOR

Through folding doors and under tastefully draped chenille curtains, the procession of guests next entered the club parlor, whose richness and audacious air of magnificence elicited innumerable expressions of praise. It is finished in ivory and gold, with wall panels tinted with a delicate blend of sky blue and cream, and with the elegant panels, beautifully adorned with designs in water colors, the central panel representing cherubs at play in a bower of roses. Presenting a noteworthy contrast with the daintiness of these mural decorations was the exquisite furniture in upholstered moquette, and the front draperies in chenille relieved by real old Irish point lace portieres. An impressive sunset view canvassed with uncommon fidelity rested upon a tawny easel in one corner, while opposite stood a Shaw piano, in satinwood finish. Every detail of this parlor betokened a delicacy and refinement of selection which were much remarked by discerning visitors; and on the second floor, among many interesting features, the parlor clearly monopolized attention.

Opening from the parlor, through a small archway, lay the reading room, some of the most comfortable and well furnished in the city. Wall tints and ceiling panels corresponded with those of the parlor and the only difference was that the woodwork, instead of being treated in ivory and gold, were stained in the old baronial finish. Upon a table at one end of the room lay copies of the leading magazines, while in the opposite corner an opened register beckoned visiting Elks to attach their autographs. The entire second floor is intended to be used by members and visiting Elks as apartments in a social club. These rooms will be open to them during all hours of the day and until midnight at night.

THE LODGE HALL

The lodge room proper occupies the greater portion of the third floor and has a balcony capable of accommodating 100 persons. Entrance is made to it from two doors, each door entering from waiting rooms in the rear. The auditorium is 75x40 feet in size and is over 35 feet high. The ceiling is a magnificent revelation of artistic stereo-relief work with tints of buff and gray and cream and blue. Three pendant clusters of incandescent electric bulbs, with glass chandeliers, jets for gas imposed above, depend from the arched ceiling, supplying light of uncommon brilliancy.

At the hall's upper end, upon a raised dais, under a canopy of gilt and ivory, stands the upholstered morocco chair of the exalted ruler. To his left is the secretary's desk and to his right last evening stood the piano which accompanied the various vocal numbers. The entire end of the hall, back of the exalted ruler's chair, is a mass of beautifully intertwined chenille and damask draperies, white on the platform, in front, stood bank upon bank of exquisite potted plants and ferns. The stations of the three other executive officers of the lodge were similarly, although not so conspicuously, dotted; and banks of plants and roses defined the entire line of raised chairs for the use of lodge members.

THE MUSICAL NUMBERS

Concentric rows of chairs were placed in the floor space of the hall and, although the entire center was occupied by women, many of whose seats were content to stand at a distance and contemplate the blended elegance of the room, the beauty of its fair occupants and the winking hues of the ladies' gowns. Bate's complete orchestra, accompanied sweet strains from the balcony, a quartet comprising Mrs. O'Brien, Miss Richmond, Mr. Siebeck and Mr. Watkins, sang several numbers charmingly, and Mrs. O'Brien, Mr. Watkins and the Misses Reynolds sang pleasingly in solo and duet numbers, each number receiving generous favor. Refreshments were served in the smoking room below.

Among the several hundred guests present, in addition to the lodge's members and their ladies, was Grand Secretary Allen O. Myers, of Columbus, O., who represented the officers of the grand lodge; and a party of Elks from Allentown and Reading. The Wilkes-Barre delegation will arrive today.

The only feature of the reception which occasioned adverse remark was the surreptitious introduction of an advertising card facetiously called a "convention programme." For this the committee on arrangements disclaim all responsibility.

HEAR THE BLACK PATTI TONIGHT.

She Will Give One of Her Charming Concerts at the Academy of Music.

Miss Sissieretta Jones will give one of her charming concerts at the Academy of Music tonight. She possesses a voice of such rare power and sweetness that she has been dubbed the "Black Patti." The Pittsburgh Post says: "This singer is certainly one of the best ever heard in the city. The clearness and fullness of her tones and the utter absence of any straining after effect were astonishing. The high and low notes are almost perfect, rich, resonant and full of that sympathetic quality which appeals to all listeners. She became the favorite of her audience from the moment she appeared on account of her modest bearing and the entire absence of affectation."

MR. DAWKINS MISSING

Did Not Appear to Press His Suit Against Ex-Sheriff Charles Robinson.

REASON HE ASKED DAMAGES

Says That He Was Unlawfully Imprisoned—Lovi Case Given to the Jury. Charles Vockroth Sues Ex-Alderman Charles Roesler—Action of Mr. Salisbury to Recover Damages from Jonas Laur—Other Cases.

John Dawkins failed to appear in court yesterday to prosecute his case against ex-Sheriff Charles Robinson and a non pros was taken. Mr. Dawkins sued Mr. Robinson for damages for alleged illegal imprisonment in the county jail.

On Sept. 18, 1892, Mr. Dawkins' wife died at Carbondale from the effects of a dose of poison she had taken. Alderman J. G. Thompson, acting as coroner, impelled a jury and which returned a verdict to the effect that "Sarah Ann Dawkins came to her death by means of poison administered by her own hand with the connivance and consent of her husband, John Dawkins, the poisoning having been prearranged."

When the verdict was rendered Alderman Thompson committed Dawkins to the county jail and two days later he was released on a writ of habeas corpus, it being charged that the commitment was illegal. The bill against Dawkins and thereupon he began an action against Mr. Robinson, who was sheriff at the time of the commitment, asking damages for false imprisonment.

MR. DAWKINS FAILED TO APPEAR.

Mr. Dawkins failed to appear when his case was called yesterday and an order was issued for a writ of habeas corpus. Mr. Robinson, then asked for a non pros. He said the case was a scheme to extort money from his client and as Mr. Dawkins was not present to press his suit, he thought they were entitled to a non pros, as they had all of their money in court and were prepared to go to trial. Judge Peck, before whom the motion was made, granted the non pros.

A verdict for the defendant was taken in the ejectment case of Johanna Ackerman and others against the Erie and Wyoming Valley Railroad company, the plaintiff not appearing when the case was called.

At noon the jury retired in the case of David J. Levi against J. S. Miller and E. S. Lewis. It had not agreed upon a verdict up to 6 o'clock.

Charles Judge Edwards the son of Charles Vockroth against ex-Alderman Charles W. Roesler was tried. Vockroth and to recover $144.50 for wages he says is due him for services rendered as clerk for Mr. Roesler while the latter was alderman of the Eighth ward. He said the agreement was that he was to receive $40 per month. Mr. Roesler denies that there was such an agreement and says Vockroth was to receive whatever he was worth. On that basis he received each day whatever he had earned. The case was given to the jury at 1:30 p. m. and it agreed at 4:30 and sealed its verdict.

MR. SALISBURY'S SUIT.

A. W. Salisbury's action in trespass against Jones L. user was next called for trial. Mr. Salisbury in 1892 occupied a building owned by Mr. Laur at 223 Lackawanna avenue. Mr. Laur erected an addition to the building which necessitated the tearing down of the wall about Mr. and Mrs. Salisbury's apartments. They claim that in consequence of this action their household effects and clothing were ruined by the exposure to the air. Mr. Salisbury was on the stand in the afternoon and told her story in a very spirited manner. At 4 o'clock the jury went to the Salisbury apartments to examine the furniture and effects and court adjourned.

Before Judge Lynch in No. 2 the closing testimony in the Carbondale street railway injunction case was heard. It will be argued Saturday.

WILL MEET IN THIS CITY.

Gathering of Missionary Workers to Take Place April 24 and 25.

An event of much interest in religious circles will be the assembling in this city on April 24 and 25 of the Philadelphia branch of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society of the Presbyterian church. The convention will be held in the Second Presbyterian church, with the exception of a mass meeting, the exercises of which will be conducted in the First Presbyterian church on Washington avenue.

The attendees will be large, as delegates from Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland, Ohio and other contiguous territory are certain to be present. Many questions of interest are to come up for discussion, and as many active and capable workers in the cause of missions will be here, the meeting is certain to prove of deep interest.

In addition to the various delegates who will attend, it is expected that missionary workers in most every field of the globe will also be workers in the cause of missions will be here, the meeting is certain to prove of deep interest.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick is chairman of the committee on entertainment and arrangements will be made for the comfort and convenience of all the visitors, no matter how great the number may be.

Further particulars will be published in THE TRIBUNE later.

DANGER OF SMALLPOX

Physicians Surprised That the Disease Has Not Reached Scranton.

IT NOW KNOWS NO BOUNDARIES

The Subject Was Freely Discussed at Last Night's Meeting of the Lackawanna County Medical Society. What the Doctors Said—Resolution Passed Recommending Vaccination as a Preventive of the Disease.

The Lackawanna County Medical society held an interesting meeting in the arbitration room of the court house last evening. There were present Drs. Williams, Park, Capwell, Kelly, Gates, Rea, Bateson, Connor, Logan, Fulton and Underwood. Dr. Williams presided.

"The Human Temperaments and Their Application in Medicine" was the subject of an interesting paper read by Dr. J. C. Bateson. The different temperaments were scientifically classified and the necessity of their being understood by the physician was clearly pointed out. The paper was discussed by Drs. Rea, Logan, Underwood, Capwell and others, all of whom endorsed the views so comprehensively set forth by the author.

SMALLPOX DISCUSSED.

Dr. Connor introduced the subject of smallpox. He said the disease prevailed in Danville and Williamport, and that Pittston had quarantined against the former place. Binghamton was also discussing whether to quarantine or not. It is not generally known, he stated, that smallpox prevails in the Parlor City, as all mention of the fact has been kept out of the papers. The doctor dwelt upon the necessity of vaccination in the public schools of the city.

Dr. Logan said that in 1881 the vaccination in the schools was a success, as was evidenced by the fact that although smallpox raged all around us at that time, yet there were only three deaths in the city from the disease. Then the schools were visited and the children examined and vaccinated in cases where necessary. He thought it time for the society to act.

Dr. Capwell thought there had been a good deal of dwelling in the matter. He inquired as to what the board of health had done. It was told that word had been sent to the schools that the children should be vaccinated.

BUT LITTLE VACCINATION.

Dr. Williams and Dr. Gates also spoke on the subject. The latter stated that there was a very general vaccination in the winter of 1881-2, but there had been comparatively little since, although a large crop of children had been grown since that time. There are cases of a kind to deal with, he said, and opposition must be expected from the class who organize anti-vaccination societies, but it was the duty of physicians to employ this humane method of guarding against a terrible disease.

Some difference of opinion existed as to just what kind of health had done toward having the suggestion of the state superintendent of public instruction that school children be vaccinated, carried out. Dr. Fulton inquired as to the powers of the board to compel vaccination in the schools.

Several of the doctors expressed their surprise that smallpox had not appeared in this city, owing to its prevalence around about it.

RESOLUTION ADOPTED.

Resolved, That the society request the board of health to recommend vaccination to all persons in the city who have not been vaccinated within ten years.

Dr. Bateson moved to amend the resolution by causing it to read seven years instead of ten. The amendment was accepted and the resolution unanimously adopted.

After completing the usual routine business the society adjourned to its regular meeting next.

LAST NIGHT'S TOURNAMENT.

Lively Bout Laid Up with a Clean Knock Out.

Some lively fighting marked last night's session of the Excelsior club's tournament at the Academy of Music. It opened with a bout between William Miller of New York, and Thomas Gardner of this city, representatives of the 110 pound class. Miller won.

George Ross, of New York, and John Callahan, of Philadelphia, representatives of the 105 pound class and winner of Monday night events, met and Ross easily vanquished his man.

William K. was defeated by George McGrath, of New York and Joe H. Wellischek by Anthony Gordon. O'winners were Stephen J. Jago, Scranton; Charles McGuire, Philadelphia; John Tighe, Scranton, and James Jung, Scranton, who delivered a blow which knocked his opponent, John Weiss, senseless.

Dr. Gibbons, of New York city, will be in his Scranton office, 411 Wyoming avenue, every Monday from 8 in the morning until 9 in the evening.
