MR. DONY'S ASSISTANT

Local Merchants Are Going to Have Them Arrested for Violating the Law.

HAD NO DETECTIVE'S LICENSE

Result of the Securing of Information by Men Paid to Do the Work Without Having Detective's License—Latest Phase in the Sunday Closing Movement—Mr. Dony's Man Said He Was to Receive Pay.

The detectives, or assistants, as Rev. F. A. Dony calls the men who secure information against merchants of the city who keep open their places of business on Sunday, contrary to the act of 1874, made a great big mistake when they testified before Alderman Post yesterday afternoon that they were paid for doing the work.

E. Moss, the well known Wyoming cigar dealer, was before the alderman for selling cigars on Sunday, May 6. Colonel Frank J. Fitzsimmons appeared for Mr. Moss and examined the witnesses of Mr. Dony in a very close manner. He succeeded in establishing the point that they received a compensation for securing information against merchants who keep their stores open on Sundays.

The merchants who have been arrested and fined for not closing on Sundays will proceed against the men hired by Mr. Dony, under the law of 1887, which makes it a misdemeanor for anyone to do detective work for a compensation without first securing a detective's license.

Mr. Dony makes the claim that the men in his employ who do detective work are not detectives, but merely assistants to him in his work, which is, he says, entirely too large for him to do unassisted. The merchants allege that this is a technicality that will not stand before court, and are confident of being able to secure the conviction of all who have worked for Mr. Dony for a compensation.

PLENTY OF FOUR DOLLAR FINES. Alderman Post was kept quite busy all yesterday afternoon raking in four-dollar fines against prominent business men of the city.

Miss Emma Gelbert, who conducts a bakery on lower Lackawanna avenue, kept her store open last Sunday, and for so doing was fined $4 and costs. The case against Druggist David S. Ryan, of Penn avenue and Spruce, was continued until 9 o'clock this morning.

F. C. Waldner, a tailor on Spruce street, had to pay the $4 fine. The most striking merchant against whom Mr. Dony has so far proceeded, was Jacob D. Clark, the Penn avenue tobacconist.

As he entered the aldermanic court Rev. Mr. Dony arose and stretching out his hand in friendly greeting, said: "Mr. Clark, I am Mr. Dony."

"Well, then, I don't want to know you. You are the smallest man I have ever known."

Mr. Clark walked up to the alderman's desk, and without any parley snatched up his $4 and the amount of the costs, secured a bill of particulars of costs, and in turning upon Mr. Dony, delivered an extraordinary "roasting," which for severity is seldom heard in a court room.

Mr. Dony merely smiled, and Mr. Clark's oration did not miss the temper of the secretary of the Sabbath union party.

CITY NOTES. There was a large number of well known citizens at the hearing of E. Moss at 5 o'clock. The court room was crowded and the spectators took an unusual interest in the proceedings.

Edwin McDonald, the first witness for Mr. Dony, was called and testified that he was in Mr. Moss's cigar store between 7 and 8 o'clock last Sunday evening, and saw him sell some cigars for which he received pay.

McDonald told Colonel Fitzsimmons that he lived at 240 Adams avenue, and stated that he was an agent. Colonel Fitzsimmons then questioned McDonald like this:

"What do you do for a living?" "I canvass for kettles and roasting pans."

"Do you make any more money selling hardware than by selling evidence against saloon keepers who have open stores on Sunday?" "I refuse to answer that."

"How much do you receive from Mr. Dony for your work?" "Mr. Dony objected, whereupon Mr. Fitzsimmons asked if the witness would do the work for nothing."

"I would do it for the proper observation of the Sabbath," said McDonald. "Do you receive or were you promised anything for this work?" "Yes, sir, I was."

"I don't know of any fixed salary." "You work on the Sabbath?" "No, sir."

"What were you doing in Moss's store; do you smoke?" "Yes, sir, I smoke."

"Did you go in there to purchase cigars?" "I went in to see if he was violating the Sabbath."

"Who told you to do that?" "No one."

"You swear to that, do you?" "Yes, sir."

"I am authorized to do this work without the solicitation of any one?" "My instructions were to take notice of everyone who was violating the Sunday law."

Mr. Dony: "He got instructions from me."

Mr. Dony the person who was to pay him.

"Yes, sir."

TESTIMONY OF ASSISTANT HORNS. L. F. Horns, one of Rev. Mr. Dony's staff, was then called. He said that he passed Mr. Moss's store last Sunday evening. He saw persons going in the cigar store, purchasing cigars and coming out after paying for them.

"What is your business, Mr. Horns?" "That is none of your business."

THEY STOOD THE TEST

Guardians of the Peace Undergo the Annual Inspection.

POLICE IN IMMACULATE ARRAY

Few Defects Were Found and the Inspection Reveals a Body of Men Which is Second to No Similar Body in the State—During Summer They Will Perfect Themselves in Drill—Summer Vacation Schedule.

The annual inspection of the police force of this city occurred yesterday afternoon at the municipal building. In the absence of Chief William F. Simpson, who is attending United States court, the inspection was conducted by Captain Richard Edwards, ranking as second commanding officer of the police department.

Although the ranks were depleted by the absence of eleven members of the force, six of whom were at Pittsburg, and five who were doing duty about the city, a very creditable showing was made. The beautiful, physical and intellectual appearance of the men makes it a certain conclusion that citizens of the city may properly proclaim that the personnel of the force is second to no similar organization in the state.

Previous to 3 o'clock, the hour announced for inspection, there was a burning of equipment and general preparation for the critical eyes of the commanding officers. Sanitary Police-William H. Barke, who proved himself a first class and capable drill master, was detailed to conduct the formation of the men during the inspection.

THE MEN IN FAULTLESS ARRAY. As the men stood formation in loable line in the large headquarters room it was seen that all were properly equipped with red corded parade sticks, shoes were well shined and each wore immaculate linen.

From the headquarters' room the company was marched single file into the long corridor, where each policeman unlocked and stood facing his locker. Revolvers, nippers and fire arm station keys were laid in the lockers and the line and all equipments were closely inspected.

It was found that many of the men were in need of new revolvers, in fact some were carrying weapons of their own in lieu of detective city property. A few faults in the regulation manner of wearing the uniform or equipments were found among the newly appointed officers, but, generally, the men were found to be properly clad and equipped.

Following the inspection, the men marched from the building to the armory on Adams avenue where an hour was devoted to practice drill.

On their return to headquarters the address of each man was taken and the names of a squad read who were instructed to report at the armory Friday for drill. The drills will be continued weekly throughout the summer.

The total number of officers and patrolmen comprising the force is forty-eight. Thirty-seven participated in the inspection.

Following the inspection the following dates of vacation were announced for 1894:

Matthews and Glessen, May 11 to 21; Palmer and Colet, May 21 to June 4; Evans and Hill, June 5 to 18; Lewington, Swinburn and Fisher, June 13 to 23; Goeritz and Gurrell, June 20 to July 3; Sartor and Feasey, July 3 to 13; Haag and Jones, July 23 to 29; Rotham and Lowry, Aug. 2 to 12; Douglas and Boland, Aug. 12 to 22; Greenfield and Leitchman, Aug. 22 to 30; Sept. 1; Mills and Lieutenant Zang, Sept. 1 to 11; Joller and Lieutenant Williams, Sept. 11 to 21; Motz and Heteroth, Sept. 21 to Oct. 1; Motz and Salyer, Oct. 1 to 11; Walsh and J. Thomas, Oct. 21 to 31; Scamilli and Sergeant Deiter, Oct. 31 to Nov. 10; Burke, Nov. 10 to 20.

TO FEED THE HUNGRY.

Ladies Will Replenish the Treasury of the Board of Associated Charities.

The meeting of ladies, at which Colonel E. H. Ripple will preside, tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Young Women's Christian association room should be attended by every lady who has the city's welfare at heart. A plan will be put in operation for securing funds to replenish the exhausted treasury of the board of associated charities.

The last hundred dollars available was appropriated by the board at Tuesday night's meeting, give employment and aid to a very small percentage of the horde of destitute persons who are daily appealing for help.

Many are mistaken by the bright days, warm weather and buoyancy which accompany spring into the thought that relief applications should decrease. Balmier weather does not feed the starving. The report of the Charities' agent and members of the board testify that the destitution of the past winter has not been lessened, but that, on the contrary, appeals are increasing.

This state of affairs is not caused by a worse condition of things. In many cases the present condition is owing to the fact that small savings have been spent and the winter's store of provisions has been consumed.

The Board of Associated Charities has extended aid to many hundreds; the ladies are not the ones to let the good work stop.

YOUNG WOMEN GYMNASIUMS.

BRIDGE TO BE--WHERE

Very General Sentiment Found to Favor the Mulberry Street Location.

MANY PLAUSIBLE REASONS GIVEN

Samuel Samter Claims That the Best Interests of the City Will Be Served by Changing the Location of the Bridge from Linden Street to Mulberry—The Change Would Be a Saving to the City.

At the meeting at the arbitration room in the court house Tuesday evening to discuss the advisability of changing the location of the proposed bridge from Linden street to Mulberry street, it was shown that there is a great deal of interest taken in this matter. The meeting was developed the fact that many of the leading citizens of the East and West Sides have given the matter much attention and that their investigations have led them to the belief that Mulberry street is better adapted for the bridge location than is Linden street.

The Tribune desires to have the proposed change freely discussed, and looked upon from all sides. On account of the pressure of other news it was impossible to devote as much space to the meeting at the court house as desired. However, the Tribune reporter yesterday saw a number of gentlemen, several of whom attended and spoke at Tuesday's meeting, and in further explanation of their views, the following interviews are given: This paper will continue to publish and submit for the consideration of the city authorities all papers expressing an opinion, either for or against the Linden street site, its only requirement being brevity and the writer's name, for publication.

One of the most ardent advocates of the change is Samuel Samter, of the firm of Samter, Brok. He was frank and direct in his views, and was interviewed by a Tribune reporter yesterday afternoon. It was among those who might be benefited, from a pecuniary standpoint, yet he was convinced that the best interests of the city would also be served by such a change.

"From the practical point of view," said Mr. Samter, "Mulberry street is more desirable because the bridge would necessarily be shorter, the piers would be firmer and there would be fewer of them. On scientific principles generally, from what the engineers say, a better bridge could be built at far less cost at Mulberry street than at Linden. Besides this the proposed bridge would be much more convenient for vehicles and pedestrians."

MULBERRY'S MANY ADVANTAGES. "From a practical standpoint it appears to me that Mulberry street possesses many advantages over Linden street. The termini of the bridge at Linden street would be at grade crossings, while that at Mulberry street would not. The effect on business and property value would be greater because it would open up more unimproved lands. It would be more beneficial to people living in the North End and would afford better facilities for reaching the more important public buildings. It is not intended that by August 1, 1894, the new property just opened up by the Lackawanna Iron and Steel company, contiguous to Nav Ang park, and the new boulevard to Emmont, which will undoubtedly be very popular, would be rendered more accessible by a bridge at Mulberry street."

"Again, it has been long conceded that a bridge between Lackawanna avenue and Larch street is a necessary, and since the prospect of having two between those points is very distant, we at least ought to have one that will be centrally located and at the same time be cheaper than one otherwise placed."

"I don't believe the appropriation for the erection of Linden street bridge will be sufficient to cover its cost and pay the damages which it will cause on the western end. The city will probably realize that it has made a mistake in the appropriation of $100,000 for Linden street, and I feel safe in saying that if the appropriation of $125,000 is not enough to complete the bridge on Mulberry street, the property holders contiguous to the bridge will promptly and cheerfully make up the difference."

"People may say that the interest on the money saved by the bridge at Mulberry street is shown mostly by those having property to sell. That's exactly true of Linden street. Let our walled interests be compared and see whose are the more reasonable. I am confident that from this new phase of the matter, as well as from a business and practical view, we have the best grounds for asking that the bridge be placed at Mulberry street."

WEST SIDERS INDEPENDENT.

"The majority of the people of the West Side are indifferent as to where the bridge is placed and outside of those living along Swatland street in the Fourteenth ward there is little interest manifested in the matter. What the Hyde Park people want is freedom from grade crossings, low surface grade and another means of crossing the Lackawanna. The bridge at Linden street will probably abolish the grade crossing and afford a means of crossing the river, but it is almost impossible to get a low surface grade there. All these disadvantages may be avoided by placing the bridge at Mulberry street. Placing the bridge farther from the prospective location of the viaduct increases the chances of getting a viaduct which so many of the West Side people desire and this is more likely to follow the bridge at Mulberry street than at Linden street. The engineers say that the bridge at Mulberry street can be built for at least $10,000 less than the bridge at Linden street. This being the case, why not build the bridge at Mulberry street and apply the money saved by so doing toward the construction of the viaduct? Petrebone street, the western extension of Mulberry, could more easily be widened and with less expense than Swatland street, the termini of the proposed Linden street viaduct. Taking every thing into consideration, I think a bridge at Mulberry street would be far more desirable than one at Linden street."

Others whom THE TRIBUNE reporter saw on both sides of the river were equally ardent in their opinions, but they differed from those expressed by the two gentlemen above quoted. It is certain that there is a very strong sentiment in favor of changing the bridge, but whether it can be done without recourse to law is a question on which there is considerable difference of opinion.

MUCH SHORTER BRIDGE.

The grade on the western end of the proposed bridge at Linden street is another matter of consideration. At Swatland the grade will be about 11 per cent, while it certainly will not exceed 4 per cent if Petrebone street is made the western terminus of the bridge. The bridge at Linden street must of necessity be 655 feet long, at Mulberry street it need not be more than 550 feet. Petrebone street, the western extension of Mulberry street is at present fifty feet wide and may easily be made wider. Swatland street is only thirty and the expense of widening it would reach a considerable sum.

These are some of the money arguments advanced by those who favor the location of the bridge at Mulberry street. The feeling in favor of the exchange is growing and it is hard to tell what the outcome will be.

FREE CUTTING FOR THE POOR.

An Appeal in Behalf of the Dalton Summer Home.

The home for sick women and children who, through misfortune, find themselves unable to pay for a trip to the country for rest and pure air, will again be opened near Dalton early in June, provided the means for defraying the expenses are forthcoming. As last season, it will again be entirely nonsectarian, and it is earnestly hoped that charitably disposed citizens of all ranks will contribute generously.

Contributions may be sent to Mr. S. H. Stevens, 118 Wyoming avenue, who will act as treasurer, and will acknowledge all gifts. As this charity last year was of great benefit to the poor people of our city we bespeak for it a generous response.

TO HONOR GEN. PHIL SHERIDAN.

General Committee Elects Officers and Starts on Preliminary Business.

Last night the general committee of the Sheridan Monument association met for permanent organization at the board of trade rooms and transacted important preliminary business.

This general committee comprises some of the representative business men of the city who propose to raise a fund to the extent of $20,000 or more throughout the county and erect a granite statue in the memory of General Phil Sheridan in court house square. The names of those appointed to the committee were selected by another committee which was appointed at a meeting of citizens held recently in the armory.

The following officers were elected last night: Captain P. DeLucy, president; Samuel Samter, vice president; J. B. Vaughan, secretary; Thomas J. Moore, treasurer.

While the general plan of raising the funds was discussed it was decided not to take definite action until a committee of five, termed the "plan of campaign" committee, appointed by the chair, have reported to the general committee next Wednesday night.

Samuel Samter, John E. Roche, T. J. Kelly, M. J. Kelly and John Gibbons were appointed the committee mentioned above. They will submit to the general body measures for its guidance, a plan for distributing the county among the general committee for the raising and handling of funds.

The board of trade rooms will be used for meeting purposes each Wednesday night until further notice.

FIRE AT THE GLASS WORKS.

Small Blaze Rekindled Before the Hose Companies Arrive.

There was a small blaze in the packing department of the Green Ridge Glass works last evening. The fire which originated in a pile of straw, was discovered by one of the employees of the glass works, who sent in an alarm.

Workmen about the place got a stream on the flame before the arrival of the fire companies, and succeeded in extinguishing it. The damage was trifling.
