Open All Night at Lohman's Spruce street. Patrick Feilly, of Minooka, guilty of That Act. Patrick Feilly, of Minooka, is in the county jail, and is fortunate not to be guilty of the crime of murdering his father.

The employees of the Greenwood mines were paid on Saturday. Young Feilly, who is employed there, got drunk Saturday night and began to quarrel with his father, who was also under the influence of liquor.

The son picked up an ax near at hand and struck his father on the head with it. The wound was at first thought fatal, but when a physician arrived an examination revealed nothing serious. In the meantime the bloodthirsty and unfeeling son had been brought before Justice of the Peace O'Hara, who committed him to the county jail without bail.

SCHOOL PRINCIPALS' SALARIES. Grammar School Teachers Not Yet Through Fighting. The principals of the grammar grade in the city schools have received from Syracuse teachers a tabulated statement of the average salaries in different cities with populations ranging from 25,000 to 800,000. It shows that in cities having the same amount of population as Scranton in many cases the main principals receive a salary double that now paid here.

The finance committee of the board of control will report adversely on increasing the tax levy for the coming year, and unless the board at tonight's meeting reverses the action of the committee the expectation of a raise in salary for the grammar principals is hopeless.

WORK IN CONNELL PARK City's Breathing Spot Has been Greatly Beautified This Year

SOME THE IMPROVEMENTS Trees, Plants, Flowers, Beds Laid Out, Walk and Drives Constructed. A Fountain to Be Erected—Park Commissioner Moore's Project for a Lake Meets with Much Favor—it Is Becoming a Beautiful Place.

Connell park, visited by thousands every Sunday afternoon in propitious weather, is rapidly becoming transformed into a garden of beauty. Elected so as to command a full view of the entire city, the grounds, invigorating and delightful, that continuously sweep through the grounds are skin to ocean breezes. When the traveler now enters the park at the main gate the agreeable absence of the rocky hillside which stood to the right of the river becomes noticeable. Instead he finds a sloping greenward, where a sowing of grass seed has sprouted from a surface layer of eighteen inches of rich, fertile clay. Flower bushes and shrubs of all varieties have put forth blossoms, and the outline of flower beds, with bulbs just beginning to show above the soil, are discernible. Farther toward the south-western part of the grounds are seen forty five strip ling trees, elm, linden, maple and catalpas.

Converging to the right from the main driveway, leading circuitously through the park, is being built at present a narrower thoroughfare six feet wide with curbs. It strikes off from the main entrance at a point about forty yards from the front gate of the park. When completed it will be a macadamized road paved with pebbled gutters on each side. Along the edges of this driveway are planted the trees mentioned.

FOUNTAIN TO BE ERRECTED. In the center of the grounds work will shortly be begun on the basin for a fountain. A branch of the roadway which leads to the left and leads up to the fountain site is adorned on either side with the catalpa tree set twenty feet apart, every one of which is now growing. In summer they produce beautiful white blossoms.

There is also in course of construction a pedestrian path ten feet wide, and it leads around the tower to the left. Between it and the tower is a semi-circular shaped plot containing nearly an acre of ground. It is banked with two terraces, and decorated with flower beds and shrubbery. Two beautiful beds, one a tulip, the other a hyacinth, both in full bloom, ornament the upper terrace near the tower. Other seeds which do not show until later in the season are set and in proper time their fragrance will pervade the park.

The work of beautifying the park was begun this season about the middle of March. A great number of the workmen engaged have been sent at the instance of the Board of Associated Charities. A double purpose is thus served: furnishing employment to able-bodied men out of work and directing that work in a channel that advances the interests of the community at large.

The water mains will soon be laid and water furnished to the park. The pipe will be brought up Gibbons street from Pittston avenue and turned into the grounds through the gate at the second alley above Stone avenue. Sprays will be located at various points throughout the park.

LAKE FOR THE PARK. The nature of the ground is so sterile that it requires that rock must be blasted over the greater part of the area and then the surface overlaid with covers of productive soil. The intention of Park Commissioner Moore to secure for an artificial lake the natural basin on Crown avenue, bordering on the eastern corner of the park, was mentioned before in the TRIBUNE. The proposed location covers nearly three acres of ground and is a deep depression which could be formed for the purpose without much expense.

Since this project was given to the public in the columns of THE TRIBUNE, there has been a great awakening in its favor. The sentiment is that it must be carried out. The benefit to the park in increased popularity and to the visitors in the additional delight of a row on the water would fairly compensate for the expense entailed.

SUIT BROUGHT FOR $91,041.66. Lackawanna Iron and Coal Company Sued by the Gas and Water Company. The Scranton Gas and Water company Saturday began suit in assumpsit against the Lackawanna Iron and Coal company for $91,041.66. The action is brought to recover for water which the plaintiff alleges was surreptitiously taken from the pipes of the company between Jan. 10, 1891, and Jan. 1, 1894.

The declaration filed by the plaintiff sets forth the terms of the contract under which the defendant company was regularly supplied with a certain amount of water in addition to which it is alleged that the latter surreptitiously, between the dates named, took from plaintiff's pipes a large quantity of water for other purposes than those specified and paid for under the terms of the agreement.

The purpose for which the water is alleged to have been used and its value is specified, the same amounting in the aggregate to the sum for which suit is brought.

BUSINESS MEN ARE REMINDED. Tonight's Board of Trade Meeting Will Be Interesting. Board of trade members have been reminded by Secretary Ainsworth to attend tonight's meeting, which will probably be one of the most important sessions held since the bridge and park campaign.

The manufacturers' committee will report on several new industries, the streets and highways committee on cleaning the streets and bridge location, the transportation committee on sleeping car accommodations and reduced railroad fares. Several applications for membership and important communications will be acted upon.

THE CIRCUS IS COMING. The Great Barum & Bailey Show Soon to Be Here. Barum & Bailey's Greatest Show on Earth will arrive here on Thursday next, and spread its mammoth water-proof tents. The great exhibition this year is of a character entirely new to the residents of this city.

There are many reasons why the exhibition this year is better than any other that has preceded it, as the organizers have procured a new and novel variety of exhibits, and a number of very strange and curious zoological specimens, from the gawky camel to the only genuine zebra that has ever basked beneath the stars and stripes. There is also in the collection the largest Bengal tiger ever seen in America, and he has been from his native jungle less than seven months. The cage of these three male specimens is the first of one of which Sir Alexander Pope made his painting, which is now on exhibition in the National Gallery of Art in London.

Of the circus performances there is also much to be said, and its strongest claim is probably that the performers are European. Among the artists that have been brought over from Europe are the most dashing and accomplished equestrians ever seen in this country.

The Ethnological Congress comprises some races and types of human beings, while known to exist in far away countries, have never before been seen in the places of their birth. The Barum & Bailey show has come to be one of America's permanent institutions, and merits more than the smiling reference called out by the ordinary circus. It is worthy of serious thought—not only for itself, but more so when one considers what exceptional ability a man must possess who controls the entire army of men and women who give the exhibitions.

WELSH CALVINISTIC CONVENTION. Attended at Bellevue by Many Well Known Ministers.

The quarterly convention of the Welsh Calvinistic churches of north-eastern Pennsylvania commenced Saturday morning in the Bellevue Calvinistic Methodist church on South Main avenue. Rev. Hugh Hughes, of Ashley, presided and the secretary was Rev. R. E. Williams, of Plymouth.

Those present were: Revs. John Williams, Stratford; R. K. Jones, Danielsville; J. R. Williams, Philadelphia; H. Williams, West Bangor; W. Morgan, Thomas, all of the South presbytery; R. E. Williams, Plymouth; E. R. Roberts, Sugar Notch; William G. Jenkins, John O. Jones, W. H. Williams and Samuel Williams, all of Wilkes-Barre; J. T. Morris, of Bellevue; Hugh Hughes, D. C. Fallis, W. E. Morgan, of this city; William Lewis, of Carbondale; William Matthews, Olyphant; W. R. Jones, Edwards, of Providence; and John R. Williams, of Scranton. The delegates from the quarterly meeting to this year were: Rev. David Moses, Spring Brook; James J. Davis, Wilkes-Barre; and D. B. Bader, of Wilkes-Barre.

The meeting for the next year will be held at Philadelphia in October. In the afternoon session, ordination services were held, a prayer was offered by Rev. R. E. Williams, of Danielsville, and Rev. H. F. Williams, of West Bangor, preached the sermon of the day. Questions for confirmation of faith were asked by Rev. Hugh Hughes. Rev. W. R. Matthews, of Olyphant, delivered an ordination prayer. The charge was made by Rev. John R. Jones, of Wilkes-Barre. In the evening Rev. R. E. Williams, of Danielsville, presided. Rev. Hugh Hughes, of Ashley, preached an excellent sermon, the subject was, "To Know the Love of Christ."

The services yesterday morning were conducted by Rev. William Lewis, of Carbondale. Revs. R. E. Williams and Hugh Davies preached on "The Story of the Incarnation." At the afternoon session Rev. J. R. Evans, of Philadelphia, delivered a temperance sermon, and H. F. Williams, of West Bangor, spoke on the "Ascension of Christ."

MANY PLACES OPEN. Sunday Closing Movement Not Yet a Success. The Sunday observation movement has not as yet culminated in success. Yesterday the drug stores were open as usual, but at some of them drugs only could be purchased. At others only water and cigars were sold.

The saloon men generally kept a sharp eye out for agents, but the intendant declared that they had little difficulty in procuring drink at several places. Just what was done by the agents who went out for information is not known, but it is altogether unlikely that there may become arrests made today. The leading spirits are considerably in earnest and claim that they will persevere in the work they have undertaken.

Sunday closing was to all appearances observed on the West Side. The saloons were generally in total darkness with closed doors. The drug stores were open for the sale of drugs only. On the South Side the disregard for the Sunday closing movement is more marked than in any other section of the city. Saturday was pay day at the mills and mines and the facilities offered yesterday to the workmen for getting rid of any superfluous cash were as good as the law of 1794 never went into effect. The saloons and drug stores were all open and nothing was denied to purchasers. The "growler" was kept going attending to the wants of the thirsty.

AN AGED WOMAN'S SPREE. Mary Haggerty Makes It Lively for Police Officers. Mary Haggerty, an aged woman well known in police circles, went on one of her periodic Saturday evening and made things lively for a time at 407 Penn avenue, where she fired cabbage heads and other articles about in a most promiscuous manner, in the alarm of some of the more timid sidewalk pedestrians.

She Combed and conducted herself in a most indecent fashion, and it became necessary to arrest her. The old lady had her war paint on, however, and fought so hard that it was about all Officer Blunk and a special could do to take her to the station house. They finally landed her in a cell, but the old woman was by no means subdued. She kicked the cell door furiously and made things lively for an hour or two, gradually subsiding as the effects of the liquor wore off.

Yesterday morning she was called before the mayor's court and a fine of $5 imposed upon her. She will pay the same today, as she has a snug little bank account upon which to draw when occasion demands.

SUFFRAGE OF WOMEN Rev. Charles E. Robinson Says She Is Man's Equal.

HER BEST QUALITIES INVOLVED Rights of the Minister to Discuss the Subject—Characteristics of Women Fit Them for the More Delicate Duties—Mentally, She Is Fully as Capable as Man and Should Not Jeopard Her Delicate Endowments.

The sermon of Rev. Charles E. Robinson, D.D., at the Second Presbyterian church, last evening, on the question of woman's suffrage, attracted a fair-sized audience, consisting of men, women and children. Dr. Robinson maintains that woman is the equal of man, but he has his sphere and she hers.

From a general standpoint she might be considered as well entitled to a political right to vote as man, but in so doing would she not involve the social and moral tender attributes which characterize her? The sermon was from Genesis 1, 27, "Male and female created He them," as follows:

In view of the relation which woman holds in the social fabric, her influence, accepted and disapproved, is so widespread and so potent, that the subject of woman's suffrage, there ought to be some point of view where the Christian minister can stand and consider it. In its sociological relations, the sex is expressed in social sciences, who should be left to discuss the question from their standing point, in its political aspects the philosophical, political, and moral, and in its religious, the minister leaves much in departing from his kingdom, to discuss such subjects from the sociological or political aspect. But, woman, it is felt, is not a mere creature who he can stand and where he ought to lift up his voice as a teacher of Christian morals to show what light Christian standards throw on the question.

But the outset one can see that it is not really a matter of real propriety. As if where woman does her work and man does his work is essential because he does and she is enslaved because she does not vote.

In the distribution of duties, labors and responsibilities in the social economy certain things have naturally fallen to men and others to women. Men have dug in the fields, worked in the mines, toiled in the shops, stood guard as policemen and fought on battle fields because they could not that best work women have taken care of the children, managed the house, reigned in society or occupied such positions for self support as have been within their reach for the same reason—because they could do these things best. In such allotments heretofore men have voted as well as dug and fought, etc., and it is not whether this is a sort of real prerogative but whether there is a restriction in the distribution of masculine and feminine work and women shall add to their cares and responsibilities the duties of the elective franchise.

WILL HAVE THE BALLOT. Neither is it a question of intellectual supremacy, as if a man voted because he knew enough, and woman didn't vote because she did not know enough. Woman has had her own sphere and her own duties to man's superior intellectual powers. She has put her own colleges, like Smith, Vassar and Wellesley in the front rank; and in these universities where she has studied beside her brothers, she has not only walked with even pace but has, in many cases, distanced them, and carried off the prize. In church work, in missionary societies, in benevolent and other many departments of business she has shown no lack of mental ability for any work she desired to undertake. Whether she votes or not is a question that does not hinge upon mental power.

Formerly men regarded their reasoning faculty as superior to woman's intuition. They are coming to see that the flash of intuition is superior to reasoning in the slower, more awkward process of reason, and that as sons and husbands we are likely to make irreparable mistakes if we do not take account of the intuition of women. The intuition of a noble woman's intuition.

Nor does this question of woman's suffrage swing on the hinges of the equality of the sexes. A woman, by her very endowment, stands the highest. Dr. Parkhurst is right in saying that in the progress of creation from the mollusk to the eagle, the most perfect creature is the one who holds the highest place, and, as a social factor, does the finest and best work. For reference to the wife as the "weaker vessel" does not refer to inferiority, for in the same verse the husband is charged to honor her because she is the "weaker" or more delicate vessel, just as in the Bible the weaker vessel is the more precious, but the finer, more exquisite vessel, where great values are lost when they are ruined, are set in cases of honor, and regarded with distinction.

The question turns on the men and women, in God's idea of human society, where He created "male and female," can do best. God has set a physical endowment of labor and heat, and man is plainly designed for rougher, harder work than woman; not finer and nobler work. And the more thoroughly a man is acquainted with his own nature, the more complete and satisfactory the corresponding result, where both work together on separate but parallel lines.

Some women grow very restive and sarcastic when reminded that woman's throne and her scepter lie in her womanliness; that regard quality which makes her the queen of her home or of society. And if she is to be a woman, she must be engaged in the humblest work for her living, as long as she retains her womanliness, she is liable to every good man, who can say with Washington, "All that I am in life I owe to my womanhood." The question about the humblest and poorest true woman which makes a good man hold her in reverence.

NOT INFERIOR TO MEN. Now then, if women want the ballot, they will have it. When they combine they carry all before them. There never has been, and there never will be a social movement where women have advanced so far as a certain point, unless where they have failed. They are sure to get the ballot if they insist upon it. If it is going to make them finer and nobler for the work to which God has set them apart, as truly as He has set men apart, their work, then speed the day when the women are foremost at the elections, and most energetic in questioning, and most enterprising in political action. Remember that if it is secured at the expense of that honor with which all true men regard women; if it is gained at the loss of that exquisite power which comes from womanliness, it will be like dropping a scepter to grasp at a bubble like stepping down from her throne to fight alongside of or about her subjects.

The first tribute man ever paid woman was rendered by the prophet Samuel to his mother Hannah. One can detect the pleasure and loving reverence with which he put in immortal record the sweetest of her husband's loves for her, the satisfaction of her maternal longings and the inspiration of her serene smile.

On a few days ago the monument was unveiled, which has been erected to the memory of Mary the mother of Washington. It may take a long time for the glory of a humble, patient mother's work to shine through but somewhere and sometime it will shine forth as the highest, most fruitful and noblest work of all. If there is to be a future in human society and the social fabric shall fall in ruins, the central point of the wreck will be found in the dying out of the "home idea," which is woman's side of the co-operative work in the social economy.

There can be nothing better said in closing than the clear and cogent utterance of Mr. Humphrey Ward: "Nothing can be farther from our minds than to seek to depreciate the position of woman. It is because we are keenly alive to the enormous value of their special contribution to the community that we oppose what seems likely to endanger that contribution. We are convinced that the pursuit of a mere outward equality with men is not only vain but demoralizing. It leads to a total misconception of woman's true dignity and special mission. It tends to a personal struggle and rivalry, when the only effort of both the great divisions of the human family should be to contribute the characters of their gifts, and the best gifts of each to the common stock."
