GREATEST ON EARTH IN THE RAIN.

Barnum-Bailey Show Attracts Fair Sized Audiences Notwithstanding the Bad Weather.

Yesterday was circus day, and it was anything but an ideal one. The steady down pour prevented the Barnum-Bailey show from playing to paying business, as the audience at both the afternoon and evening performances were not large by any means. And yet more persons thronged out to the Driving park and pulled about in the mud than anyone thought they would. The fact that the water-soaked canvas roof and dodged the innumerable rain drops was a good natured assemblage that had braved the storm determined to see the "greatest on earth," even if they risked their lives in the attempt. The number of women and children that was present was surprisingly large, considering the miserable weather.

The performances of yesterday were first-class in every respect, and were fully up to the high Barnum-Bailey standard of excellence.

There were numerous new acts introduced. The most notable of which was the mid-air performance of the Egenses, whose feats were of the startling order, and elicited much applause. They executed backward, forward and twisting somersaults while flying through the air, and quick returns and barrel riding by male and female artists, drill of ponies and superb horses, a series of thrilling aerial performances, wonderful acrobatic novelties, acts of high school horsemanship, ground and lofty tumbling and hippodrome race, which closed the performance.

The exhibitions of animals in the menagerie were vast and varied, and were objects of considerable attention from the large crowds. The ethnological congress consisted of many different races and queer types of human beings, with a great variety of religious beliefs from far away countries. Races represented under the canvas were Japanese, Burmese, Hindus, Todas, Nepalese, Equinians, Australians, Sikits, Algerians, Cossacks, Japanese, Dahomeyans, Amazons, Arabs, Sudanese, Kabyles, Bismah-Budins, Singaleses, Assouris, Kings, Malays, Siamese and others, with their wives and children.

The audiences were greatly pleased with the Greatest on Earth, and but very few regretted that they had visited the canvass city, in spite of the storm.

NOTES OF SOUTH SIDE

Concert of St. John's Church Choir Will Be a Big Success.

THAT SUIT AGAINST MR. MURSCH

The Father of the Little Italian Girl Whom Mr. Mursch's Horse Killed on Pittston Avenue Wants to Recover Damages—Serious Illness of Miss Sarah Brown—Persons and Brief News Items.

As many tickets for the concert next Tuesday night of the choir of St. John's church have already been disposed of as to guarantee a large attendance. For the past two months, under the instruction of Professor E. E. Southworth, the members of the choir have been studiously rehearsing the well prepared programs which was published in Wednesday's TRIBUNE. The pastor, Rev. E. J. Melloy, will have the church hall improved for the purpose of assisting the acoustic qualities.

Damage Suit Against Fred Mursch. Gaspare Abate, the father of the little girl who was trampled to death on Pittston avenue by the runaway horse owned by Fred Mursch, has begun a suit for damages for the death of his daughter. The particulars of the accident hardly reflect any blame on Mr. Mursch. He got off his wagon to adjust a part of the harness that had become loose, and while he was thus engaged the animal broke away from him and in its mad career the life of the little girl was taken. Those who witnessed the runaway say that it was an unavoidable accident. After the funeral Mr. Mursch sent for the child's father and said he was willing to compensate him as far as it was in his power. A compromise was not effected and the outcome is the suit above mentioned.

Death Hourly Expected.

Last Saturday afternoon Miss Sarah Brown, of Altoona, was stricken very suddenly with a severe pain in the region of the heart. Dr. J. A. Manley was called and found her suffering from an acute form of pneumonia, which he stated had been developing for at least a week. Her condition was somewhat brighter for the past few days, but several an aggravated form of typhoid fever set in, and death at the most is but a few days off. She is a sister of John T. Brown, of THE TRIBUNE.
