MAY QUEEN CROWNED

Ceremonies in Connection With the Event at St. Mary's Place, Providence.

A MOST REALISTIC TABLEAU

Given by a Number of Little Boys and Girls—Status Crowned by Little Maurice Sullivan—Rev. N. J. McManus Delivered an Eloquent Address, During Which He Explained the Meaning of the Ceremony.

The annual ceremonies in connection with the coronation of the statue of the Blessed Virgin were held last night at St. Mary's place, Providence. They were very interesting and were witnessed by several thousand persons.

At 7:30 o'clock a procession of the children who participated in the ceremonies, made its appearance in its passage from the school, where it formed, to the statue which is located between Holy Rosary church and the residence of Rev. N. J. McManus, the pastor.

Then came in columns of twos, boys in knickerbockers and white waists to the number of 150, marshalled by a corps of fourteen boys, attired in pink waists. On the right breast of each marshal was a red cross and on his head a turban of light colored fabric, similar to those worn by the crusaders.

Following in one continuous procession were over 300 girls, dressed in white with black sashes, their ages ranging from 7 to 16 years.

GROUPING THE CHILDREN. The procession marched by the statue along the walks of the spacious grounds and counter-marched, the girls forming around the statue in circular tiers and the boys occupying the main walk from the street to the statue in single file.

In the rear an organ was placed to accompany the children in hymn singing, and around it were gathered the members of the Blessed Virgin's and Angels' sodalities and the members of the church to assist in the singing.

Miss Anna Bell was organist. The combined chorus of the members of the sodality, the choir, and the children, forming one great choir of five hundred voices, at precisely 7:30 began the chanting of the Litany of Loretto.

It would be difficult to imagine a more inspiring scene than the one presented at the evening of the notes of the anthem rung forth on the cool evening air. The spectators awayed in unison with the rising and falling of the mighty chorus.

After the last note of the Litany faded away, the boys and girls in turn rendered dialogues appropriate to the occasion. Prior to the act of crowning the statue, a tableau representing the last night of a dying martyr was produced. It was to portray the agonies of a dying soul, haunted by evil spirits and the solitary and speedily effluvia result when the soul, beset by demons, invoked the intercession of Mary.

THE TABLEAU DESCRIBED. On a dais set against the wall of the church some distance from the statue, the tableau was given. Standing in center of the platform, costumed to represent a deprecating priest, who in his last night on earth was supplicating God to have mercy upon him, was Master John Moran.

John Moran, Stephen Gavin, also attired as a priest, sat asleep in a chair, while with attendance upon his dying companion.

Taking advantage of his companion's slumber, the aged martyr, tormented by evil spirits, arose from his bed and begged God to spare him the terrible temptations. His prayer apparently was refused, and at that moment appeared round him seven demons to tempt him to sin.

The work of those taking part in the tableau, although all of them are young, was finished. The sisters deserve congratulations for the capable result of their training.

CROWNING OF THE STATUE

A ladder was hoisted to the top of the statue, and Miss Sullivan assisted in climbing to the summit where she placed the wreath of May flowers.

The pastor, Rev. Father McManus, then addressed the people. He referred in praiseworthy language to the work of the children and then drifted in his discourse to the meaning of the ceremony.

TWELFTH WARD ELECTION TEST.

Evidence of Fifteen Witnesses Taken by Commissioners Yesterday. Commissioners W. Gaylord Thomas and W. W. Baylor sat in the arbitration room of the court house yesterday and took testimony in the Twelfth ward contested election case in which the right of Com. J. J. Morgan was contested by Henry W. Coyle, and the legality of Select Councilman James Manley's election is disputed by John Kearney.

The complainants are represented by Attorney L. W. Connolly, but owing to the illness of the witness, Attorney J. Elliott Ross acted in his stead yesterday.

today. Attorney John F. Murphy represents the respondents. Fifteen witnesses were examined during the day, the examination being reference to their naturalization papers and taxes receipts. The hearing was adjourned at 3:30 o'clock, and will probably be resumed again next Saturday.

FOR VIOLATING SUNDAY LAWS.

Offenders Arraigned Before Alderman Post for a Hearing. Druggists J. H. Phelps, McGarrath & Thomas, Joseph Lowenberg, and D. S. Ryan, cigar dealer, E. Jones, and F. G. Waldner, eating house keeper, were again before Alderman Post yesterday on complaint of Rev. Mr. Dony for violating the Sunday law.

The evidence against them was the same character that has been given in the past cases against these defendants. Attorney George S. Horn put in a plea of prior conviction in the case of J. H. Phelps, and Attorney Fred R. Stark in the case of E. Jones. Each of these defendants went before Alderman Fitzsimmons and paid $4 and costs in the case brought against them.

Mr. Horn got the decision of Justice Gordon of the state supreme court, where action was brought against a saloon-keeper in Montgomery recently, on six different charges for the same day. The defendant brought the matter to common pleas court on writ of certiorari, but the judgment of the trial court was affirmed. Then the matter was taken to the supreme court where the lower court was reversed. The opinion of the supreme court was the basis of argument by Mr. Horn, whose logic was met by Col. F. S. Hitchcock for Mr. Dony.

The alderman reserved his decision until today. The other cases will not be disposed of until court passes on the appeal of McGarrath and Thomas.

SOUTH SIDE.

Band of Tramps Moved Early Yesterday Morning.

The band of tramps referred to in yesterday's TRIBUNE no longer infest the quarters they occupied since last fall. Early yesterday morning they packed all their luggage and headed off their procession toward the city toward Taylor. There were eighteen of them in the line of march. They had an apparatus resembling the smoke stack of an engine, which is used by them as a stove. Each of the horse carried a parcel wrapped in old newspapers. This exploit will undoubtedly relieve the normal tension of many of the feminine portion of the lower end of the South Side.

A STONE AVENUE NUISANCE.

It Caused Much Trouble for Michael Gerrity, Owner of the Premises. An unmitigated nuisance has existed for more than a year on the property of Michael Gerrity, at 310 Stone Avenue.

Gerrity owns a large frame building in which he has four tenants, also occupying a portion of it himself. For the accommodation of these families there is but one closet. The vault of the closet is in rocky ground and there is consequently no absorption of its contents.

Whenever it rains the surface water flows into the vault and in flowing out again brings with it the contents and spreads it even on the public highway. The result was a most offensive odor.

On the last day of the month of the board of health arrested Gerrity yesterday and brought him before the mayor, who, after listening to the case, placed him in the hands of Alderman Fuller. The alderman gave Gerrity a lecture for keeping his lot in such unsanitary shape and fined him $25 and placed him under $300 bail to keep his promise to abate the nuisance.

John Howley signed the bond, and the fine was not collected. It will be remitted provided Gerrity complies with the law without unnecessary delay. Captain Burke will visit the premises daily and observe what speed is made in abolishing the cause of the trouble.

SOUTH SIDE JOTTINGS.

Postmaster M. P. Corcoran, of Duryea, visited his friends at Scranton yesterday. John Killeen, of South Washington Avenue, is in Philadelphia on business.

Joseph Fisch is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Anton Fisch, of Cedar Avenue. George Houston had his fingers smashed between two rails at the steel mill Wednesday. He will be idle for about two weeks.

James Edwards, engineer at the Meadow Brook breaker, will move with his family to Duryea soon, where he has accepted a position similar to the one he now holds.

Nicholas Coyle, of Minooka, died Wednesday, at the Danmore poor house and his remains were buried yesterday afternoon in Minooka cemetery. Coyle was a prominent figure in Minooka at one time.

On the last car for the South Side Wednesday night the passengers were treated to a good article of ventriloquism. The car was crowded and suddenly the barking of a pup was heard, but it could not be located. The noise of a rooster, the meowing of a cat, etc., at which the ladies were startled until they learned the cause of the noises.

Mrs. T. G. Meiss died at her home, 410 Birch street, at a nearly hour yesterday morning. She was sick only a few hours. Little less than a year ago she was married and her wedded life gave promise of much happiness. Before her marriage she was always known as possessing a vivacious disposition. Her early death casts a gloom over her friends.

AMONG THE POLITICIANS.

The Carbonate Leader publishes a Democratic slate that names Ex-Judge John Handley for congress and Attorney S. B. Price for additional law judge.

THREE PERSONS INJURED.

Two in the Mine and One Ran Down in the Street. David Shaw, a laborer employed at the Capoue mines, was badly injured yesterday morning by a fall of top coal. The miner had fired a shot and with the laborer emerged from the place of safety after the shot had been fired.

Richard Williams, a miner employed at the Bellevue shaft, met with an accident yesterday while at work. He was about to fire a shot and, after igniting the fuse, was retreating to a place of safety when the explosion, which was premature, occurred. Williams was struck on the leg by a piece of the flying coal with such force as to fracture it, breaking the bone near the ankle. He was taken to his home on South Main Avenue, where Dr. J. J. Roberts dressed his injuries.

Robert, the 5 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Schoen, of South Hyde Park Avenue, had a narrow escape from serious injuries yesterday afternoon. As the driver of R. E. Davis' vegetable wagon was directing the horse down Main Avenue, young Schoen was running across the street. The horse struck the lad, and he was thrown to the ground.
