George—What was it? Charley—Simply blood eruptions. Took a short course of P. P. P. I tell you, it's the best blood corrector. DUNMORE.

The main question under consideration at the June council meeting were the Rapid Transit company's ordinance and the Citizen's Gas company's ordinance. The latter received no opposition, but the former was numerously criticized and voted against by Mr. Payton. The company was granted a franchise for a year ago, but owing to obstacles in the Scranton councilman chambers they had to relinquish their former route where they connect with the city line and are now endeavoring to get another franchise that will carry them to a point from where they can enter the city.

By all means let women who wish or whose business requires them to wear trousers do so. But all attempts to force the custom upon women as a mass, either by ridicule or moral coercion, will meet with failure. The days of sumptuary laws are past, and we are all going to wear just what we like if we can get it.

Speaking of Assyrian cities, Amen Rasi, the lecturer, said that when the gardens of Sion the rain fell upon the orange and lemon trees and knocked the fruit upon the ground a hundred could be purchased for five cents. He said that in Damascus there are 130,000 Mohammedans, 130,000 Christians and 5,000 Jews. In the city there is a building haunted by John the Baptist's ghost. The door of the room in which he is said to have been beheaded is never opened. The Mohammedans say that once long ago some one opened it, and the Baptist's blood flowed out over the city to a depth of five inches.

Decidedly remarkable is the camphor tree, from which camphor is prepared by boiling the chopped branches in water. It is mainly produced in the island of Formosa. Professor and Mrs. B. E. James gave a birthday party for their two daughters on Tuesday last. At 6 o'clock lunch was prepared and a happier company never sat down to supper. Anna and Val James were the recipients of many beautiful and useful presents. Professor and Mrs. James are certainly first class entertainers, as people of all ages can testify.

TROUSERS FOR WOMEN.

Convenient, Healthful and Light, but, Alas! Unbecoming, says Jennie Chollet. There is a great deal to be said in favor of the trousers costume for women proposed—and often carried—by dress reformers. Such attire is convenient in all weather, healthful, light and simple. But there are also many things to be said against them. They are unbecoming except to a schoolgirl, they lack dignity, and they make a woman look like a very inferior kind of man. Masculine clothing emphasizes a man's good points—his broad chest, large limbs and general muscular development—but it detracts from a woman's natural advantages—her graceful carriage, delicate form and general softness of outline, which are best set off by flowing draperies that conceal themselves to each movement. Turkish women, who exist only to be beautiful, and whose costume is one of the most artistic and becoming in the world, wear trousers, but over them wear a long clinging skirt that trails upon the floor. It is usually only women of the laboring classes in any of the countries so enthusiastically quoted by dress reformers who wear the simple trousers costume. It is undoubtedly the dress par excellence for strictly utilitarian purposes, and the fashion if generally adopted would be a great relief to hardworking women. But if reformers expect to succeed in making it really fashionable they will probably find themselves very much out of their reckoning, for fashionable women are not inclined to adopt any extreme novelty in garments, but only recommendations of which are comfort and convenience.

That Tired Feeling All Run Down—Blood Poison Feared. Hood's Sarsaparilla Permanently Cured All Troubles.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.: I have been taking Hood's Sarsaparilla for seven or more years as a spring tonic. I was so run down with hard work and female weakness that I would go to bed thinking that I would not be able to get up in the morning. I have suffered severely with My Back and Limbs. I have just finished taking five bottles and am feeling well. I do not have that tired feeling and feel better in every way. I have an excellent appetite and sleep well at night. I have also given it to my nineteen-year-old son with good success. Last fall he cut his limb with a corn sickle. It healed up in about two weeks, but in a short time after he was Seized With Chills, and the limb swelled to twice its natural size; he was not able to move and was obliged to take his bed. The swellings and sores went up into his body and I feared that blood poison had set in. After taking Hood's Sarsaparilla he improved steadily and was soon able to be about again. I have recommended Hood's Sarsaparilla to several and shall always have words of praise for it." Mrs. A. M. C. Dittworth, Hamorton, Pa.

A Russian General. Suwaroff, the great Russian general, affected a "saucy roughness" of speech, especially when the pettiness of small natures awoke his contempt. One day, after a review of troops, the Empress Catherine was so pleased with the precision of their movements that she distributed rewards broadcast among the officers. Suwaroff regarded the obsequious crowd in grim silence, until the empress, turning to him, inquired: "And you, general, do you require nothing?"

"Well, mother," he replied, "pay the rent of my lodgings."

"Are you much in debt then?" "Three and a half rubles."

The grim old soldier was wont after this to boast that the czarina had paid his debts. The sum total was about two dollars and a half.

After a great victory over the Turks he refused to share in the spoils, and persistently declined an Arab horse which one of the generals pressed upon him.

"A pony of the Don brought me here," he said, "and a pony of the Don shall take me away."

"But," objected the other, "he will now be unequal to bearing the weight of your laurels."

"A Don pony has always carried me and my fortunes," was the sturdy response.—Youth's Companion.

A Lost News Story. A managing editor tells this story of how he failed to get the best of a correspondent: "News was scarce and the prospects of getting out an interesting paper in the morning were poor indeed, when from a small, but prosperous and supposedly pious little Illinois town came this dispatch: 'Fifty of our best citizens arrested tonight for playing poker.'"

"In a jiffy I wired the correspondent: 'While awaiting the story my spirits rose as I pictured the effect of the bucolic scene on the first page. The prospects of a dry paper were about disappearing as I thought how interesting the story would be (fifty prominent citizens in a small town like —, you know, means pretty much the whole town), when there came an article, not the correspondent's story, but his reply to my order: 'I am no fool. I expect to live in this town for several years.'—San Francisco Argonaut."
