The congregation of the German Luthern church had intended holding a picnic at Bellevue park. The rector of the church, Rev. William Schmidt, is opposed to the church picnic, principally on account of the selling of beer and dancing. When he learned Sunday morning of the decision of the trustees he was very indignant. He did not preach his regular sermon but took for his text Luke 19:45-48, and exhorted his people to give up the ehursh picuic on account of the extremes to which it is carried. The congregution is divided in regard to the matter. He did not preach Sunday evening, the pulpit being occupied by a

The Equipment of a Mediaval Church. As for the vast numbers actually maintained by the church the single example of St. Paul's cathedral, of course the largest foundation in the city, will furnish an illustration. In the year 1450 the socie-ty, the cathedral body, included the following: The bishop, the dean, the four archdeacons, the treasurer, the precentor, the chancellor, thirty great canons, twelve lesser canons, about fifty chaplains or chantry priests, and thirty vers.

Of inferior rank to these were the sacrist and three vergers, the succentor, the master of the singing school, the master of the grammar school, the almoner and his four vergers, the servitors, the surveyor, the twelve scribes, the book transcriber, the bookbinder, the chamberlain, the rent collector, the baker, the brewer—the brewer, who brewed in 1280 67,814 gallons, must have employed a good many; the baker, who ovened every year 40,000 loaves, or every day more than a hundred, large and small, employed a good many more; the servants of all these officers, the singing men and choir boys, of whom priests were made, the bedesmen and poor folk, the sextons, grave diggers, gardeners, bell ringers, makers and menders of the eccle siastical robes, cleaners and sweepers, carpenters, masons, painters, carvers and gilders-one can very well understand that the Church of St. Paul's alone must have found livelihood for thousands.

The same equipment was necessary in every other religious foundation. Not a monastery but had its greater and lesser officers and their servants. In every there were the bell ringers, the singing men and boys, the vergers, the gardeners, the brewers, bakers, cooks, messenger scribes, rent collectors, and all complete as was St. Paul's, though on a small scale. It does not seem too much to estimate the ecclesustical establishments of London as including a fourth part of the whole population of the city.—Walter Besant in Harper's.
