The Falling Springs Water company, chartered at Harrisburg this week, as we understand it, means the revival of the old Hoyt scheme of furnishing pure river water from the Susquehanna above the mouth of the Lackawanna, to water companies down the valley, Wilkes-Barre being the principal place from which patronage is expected. The directors are Thomas English, of Pittston; E. B. Long and J. H. Mosier, of West Pittston; Pierce Butler and George H. Butler, of Dorrangeton. The purpose of the company is to build cribs in the river from which to secure a constant supply of good water, the same to be forced by means of bull pumps to points down the valley, the nain line to be laid on the east side of the river. The company has a capital of $6,000 to start with, but the amount will be increased later. Engineers are and A. L. HONESDALE.

The marriage of Miss Lucy May, daughter of William T. Heft, to Percy Livingston Cole, was solemuized at Grace Episcopal church at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, R.v. John N. Lewis, rector of the church, officiating. The church was artistically decorated with daisies, the altar and pulpit being hidden by huge bunches of the snowy petaled flower, while from the rail surrounding the choir stalls hung graceful garlands of the same. Soon after 2 o'clock H. T. Dolmetsch. church organist, struck up the wedling march from Lohengrin. The bridal party slowly entered the church. First came the ushers, Mesers. Daniel Osborn, Charles Hawker, George Myers and William Peil. Folwing them were the bridesmaids, Misses Carrie Smith and Louiss Heft, then the maid of honor, Miss Ida Heft, sister of the bride; then followed the bride leaning upon the arm of her father. The ushers and maids separated at the foot of the chancel, allowing the bride and her father to pass between them, when they were met by the groom and best man, brother of the groom. The ceremony was very impressive, the bride and groom kneeling to receive the blessing. The bridal party left the church to the music of Mendelssohn's wedding march. The bride, who is a graceful blond, wore a handsome gown of white silk, with veil, and carried a bouquet of daisies. The maids wore white muslin gowns and also carried bouquets of daisies. Mr. and Mrs. Cole left on the 5 o'clock train for an ing down the water tanks at the East extended wedding tour. Upon their return they will immediately begin
