Does She Dress With an Eye to Pleasing the Men Alone?

It has been asserted many times that women dress with an eye to pleasing men only. That is a belief very flattering to men, and they naturally adopt it with en-thusiasm and cling to it with tenacity. It is noticeable, however, in this connection that wemen dress quite as carefully when they are going to attend a meeting of ; woman's club as they do when they expect to be subjected to masculine scrutiny, and that in an art students' sketch class made LIGHT CLOTH COSTUME. up entirely of women quite as much pains is taken by the amateur model to secure : becoming costume and a pretty pose as when the class is a mixed one. Wemer undoubtedly like the admiration of men. but they like the admiration of other wom en also. A compliment from one won an to another is far more likely to be sin cere than a compliment from a man to a woman, especially as a certain sort of man considers it incumbent upon him to inter lard his remarks to women with flattering sentences, regardless of truth or even prob-

Somebody announces every now and then that men do not like masculine looking garments on women; that starched shirt bosoms and cuffs, stiff bats and manlike coats are their abomination, and that they wish women to be in everything the opposite of themselves. Nevertheless tailor made fashions have practically no ri vals in the average man's esteem if his comments are to be taken as an indication of his taste. The plainer the skirt, the tighter the stitched bodice, the higher the starched collar, the nattier the four-in hand searf and the doggier the dogskin gloves the more approval do they win. Ap parently a man likes to be beaten on hi own ground when it is a question of dress

Speaking of tailor made costumes, sev eral new and attractive French models are seen. Parisians avoid the strict severity of English tailor fashions and infect their designs with a taint of frivolity. The sketch shown is of a costume of thin covert cloth. It has a draped skirt finished with stitching. The corsage, which is gathered in beneath a corselet, is also stitched and buttons in an odd way, back and front, over a fitted bodice. Buttons also decorate the upper part of the skirt. The sleeves have a long tight cuff and a double puif held in with a band.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

The New Parasols. The newest and daintiest parasols have handles of mother of pearl richly cut and chased. The very elegant ones have whole handles of pearl, but the less expensive ones have a handle mounted with a short length, and the knob takes the form of the fruit of the passion flower. Smoked pearl is quite as fashio. able as the white. Pink and green crystal balls and the dumbbell shapes in china are other fancy mountings, and three cannon balls of china supersede the one ball of last year. The prettiest trimming for a satin parasol is cream antique point lace put on with the plain edge against the edge of the covers and the points standing.
