DR. PARRY'S LECTURE
Vocal Selections Rendered by John Watkins and Mrs. Lewis.
MUSIC IS THE SOUL'S OVERFLOW
The Speaker Extracts an Interesting Discourse from a Technical Subject—Musical History Followed Almost from its Inception—The Welsh Airs Typify the Music in the Souls of That Nationality—Qualities for an Adjudicator.

The lecture and concert given last night by Dr. Joseph Parry, in Mears' hall, Hyde park, was attended by a large number of people who testified to the success of the entertainment by their frequent and ardent applause. Judge H. M. Edwards was chairman of the meeting.
The lecture by Dr. Parry was preceded with a baritone solo, "So Long the Way," by John T. Watkins, accompanied by Mrs. D. B. Thomas.
Dr. Parry's subject, "Music," was enjoyed as much by the many present who were not versed in the art as by the music lovers themselves. The speaker has a very happy way of treating so technical a subject and making it clear and interesting. He said its various measures are its meters; its history, growth and development date from ancient times. The first four scales were given by St. Ambrose in 394 and the others were afterward added. Musical time was first given us by the Frauke, of Cologne, in the twelfth century.
The art of printing music was first given in 1495, and the first congregational hymn was sung in 1520, after which the more perfect melody and song came.
MUSIC IS THE SOUL'S EMOTION.
At the close of the sixteenth century we had our first oratorio, and the first opera by Periis was produced in 1607. The opera has been and will be endless in its development. The eighteenth century gave birth to most of our masters whose music speaks of the composer in his own suggestive manner as each instrument in the orchestra speaks for itself. In the symphonic style of art Beethoven and Schumann stand on the highest point, and their music expresses all the emotion of the soul and enters the most dependent to hope. It expresses that which patting and stirring acts fall to convey. This ended the first part of Dr. Parry's lecture and during the intermission John T. Watkins delighted the audience with another solo entitled "Come, Beloved, Come." It brought forth many rounds of hearty applause. Dr. Parry then began the second part of his very interesting discourse by speaking of music in the present century.
He said that many of the Welsh airs which are so popular in the native land had never the name of the composer nor the date of composition. The many airs of the Welsh are substantial proofs of their stand as a musical people.
History teaches us that our art is our protection. Take the congregational hymn form; it is simple in its development, yet full of harmony. In congregational singing Wales stands foremost and in hymns next to Germany. Of this we have seen an improvement in anthems which I am very glad to note. In our choral singing the note is greatly to our satisfaction. Our vocal soloist can stand side by side with the best in the world. Conducting is an art which requires great technical knowledge. There are the higher forms of cantata and oratorio which requires the greatest skill of the conductor. He must be not only a musician, but must also know the composer's method. He must be, perhaps, a scholar and theoretician.
QUALITIES FOR AN ADJUDICATOR.
The subject of adjudicating is one which must be treated with delicacy. There are two methods of adjudicating. One is a prompt judgment and the other is a detailed knowledge of the selection. I think that vocalists should judge vocalism and choral conductors, the singing of choirs.
The Italians, Germans and French have their styles of music and their own thoughts and ideas. We are purely Welsh. In our national hymns and anthems, congregational singing and others we convey the Welsh idea.
Dr. Parry closed by remarking that he hoped to see more Welsh scholars interested in music and suggested that prizes be offered for composition.
Miss Lewis, of the North End, first prize winner in the solo competitions at Lake Ariel on July 4, sang two delightful solos. During the remainder of evening Dr. Parry entertained the audience with piano and vocal selections of his own composition.

NORTH END BRIEFS.
The North End office of the SCRANTON TRIBUNE is located at the Lewis Drug store and John's store, Wayne avenue, where subscription notices and communications will receive prompt attention.
THANKS TO THE POLICE.
They Rid the North End of Two Disorderly Houses.
There was a great boom in police circles yesterday when Lieutenant Spillman and his squad made an excellent planned raid on a couple of disorderly houses in Battie's Row, Providence.
The first house raided upon about midnight was that of Mrs. Avery, who has appeared in police circles before. Soon after the well known residence of Jack and Mary Brown was honored by the presence of Lieutenant Spillman. The prisoners were conveyed to the police station.
Yesterday morning eleven of the visitors were introduced to Alderman Williams who sent the following eight to the county jail: John H. and Mary Brown, Joseph Hilton, of Green Bridge; Charles Burlington, Edmund Lloyd, of Green Ridge; Charles Soler, of Park Place; Charles Decker, of Glenhurst; Emma Avery, of Battie row. Three others paid the fines imposed. Great credit is due to the police for removing the occupants of these houses, who are a pest to the neighborhood.

NORTH END NEWS NOTES.
