EUREKA'S NEW HOME

Elegant Quarters Arranged for the Establishment at 322 Washington Avenue.

ACHIEVEMENTS OF THREE YEARS

An Excellent Business the Result of Industry and Careful Consideration of the Wants of Patrons—Remarkable Career of the Eureka Laundry Company, One of the Electric City's Many Stirling Enterprises.

Among the thriving enterprises of the Electric City none have made greater progress in the past few years than those devoted to the work of cleaning the garments and household linens of the public. Only a few seasons since first-class laundry work was done in Scranton. The perfection that has been achieved in the production of machinery for this work can scarcely be comprehended by the individual who has never visited a first-class steam laundry.

A fair illustration of what may be accomplished in this line by careful management coupled with enterprise and energy is given in the history of the Eureka laundry, which was this week located in elegant new quarters on Washington avenue and Dix court. The Eureka Laundry company was organized Jan. 19, 1891, and commenced business in Garney & Brown & Co. building at corner of Adams avenue and Linden street. Two small laundries were absorbed by the new concern which embarked upon a business career with high aims. The business at that time was placed in the hands of Mr. John J. Van Nest, who has acted as general manager of the concern up to the present. The condition of the establishment at this date is evidence of the keen foresight and ability of the manager under whose administration a thriving business has been developed that covers a goodly portion of the field for fine laundry in this city and vicinity. Embarking in the enterprise almost unknown to that particular line of trade three years ago, the Eureka Laundry company today gives evidence of the most flattering prosperity in the control of a large share of the trade in this valley.

The company has four fine delivery wagons on the road and their trade reaches every point of the city and up through towns and down the valley from Poekville to Lackawanna. The parties in charge of this branch of the business are proud to have secured the patronage and complaint of inattention or negligence is seldom heard in that department.

The business of the laundry has increased to such an extent that quarters which were considered spacious three years ago have long since become too small for the proper handling of the volume of weekly work, and the company have been obliged to seek more commodious apartments. Sometime ago they succeeded in purchasing a fine property at 322 Washington avenue, extending to Dix court, upon which the new home of the laundry is being erected from plans by experts who had in view the best facilities for convenience and comfort of employees as well as opportunities for rapid and thorough work.

The new edifice which is three stories high on the Washington avenue front and four stories on Dix court, is a model of its kind and contains the latest and most approved machinery and appliances necessary for fine work.

DIX COURT ENTRANCE.

The engine and wash room on the first floor of the Dix court portion of the building is simply fitted up for the reception of the garments to be laundered. A 25 horse power engine furnishes motive power to propel five brass washing machines, two centrifugal wringers, mangles and other machinery. Immense water filters and steam condensing apparatus are also situated on this floor. The filtering and condensing appliances form the most important features of the laundry business in the city of fine work. The hot water used for washing is made entirely of condensed steam which is purified itself and the water which comes from the large filters is used in cleaning the soiled clothes is much freed from impurities than that which is used as a drink. Thus it will be seen that no matter what the condition of the water from the city reservoirs, which is often affected by rainstorms in the spring and fall, the uniform excellence of Eureka's Laundry work is unimpairable by the elements, and the garments washed in the city of fine work. The hot water of the building is certain to be thoroughly cleaned before starting on its journey to the finishing departments on the upper stories, from which it emerges spotless and glossy.

The business office is situated on Washington avenue, and the receiving, assorting and bundling rooms are found on the same floor in the rear,

STRUGGLES OF POOR

Exemplified in the Case of Mrs. Thomas Hartell, of Parker Street.

WAS DESERTED BY HER HUSBAND

Then Mrs. Hartell Worked Night and Day to Support Herself and Children—Tried to Remove Stain of Her Husband's Misdeeds—She is Now a Physical Wreck and Asks Assistance of Poor Board.

A most pitiable case of destitution, depicting the sufferings and hardships which some have to endure in the battle for life was brought to light at the meeting of the Poor board yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Thomas Hartell, of Parker street, appeared before the board to obtain the members' assistance in keeping a roof over her head. She was accompanied by a little girl, her step-daughter, and a physical appearance of which it was evident that she had felt the keen pang of hunger more than once. Mrs. Hartell is a frail, sickly-looking woman and when, in relating her story, she stated that she had kept herself and two step-children in bread by taking in washing, some of the members expressed doubt of her statement, but they were assured of its veracity by Mr. Shotten, who had interested himself in the woman's case when it was called to his attention by her neighbors.

MANY TALES OF WOE.

Listened to by the Sympathetic Members of the Poor Board—Action Taken in Cases.

The poor board was called upon to witness many affecting cases yesterday. The first that came before the board was that of Joseph Sheehan, a small blind boy who had been in an educational institution in Philadelphia, but had to be withdrawn by his parents who were too poor to pay for his keeping there. His sister, only a few years his senior, with tears in her eyes pleaded with the board to take care of her blind brother, who she said had great musical talent which if developed would equip him to take care of himself. The secretary of the board, Mr. Lynett, was instructed to make inquiries as to the cost of maintaining a child in the institution for the blind and Director Gibbons, in whose district the boy lives, promised to look after his case.

The Elwyn Home matter was brought before the board by the appearance of Attorney Dean and Director of the Elwyn Home, who had a poor claim in relation to the care of three of the eight children that are at present being supported at Elwyn at the expense of this district. These three charges are children of John Kodaehimer who lived in Scranton when the children were in the care of the district, which was in 1887, but who a year later moved to Elmwood. The recent investigation brought the matter to light and it was decided to remove these three children from Elwyn and turn them over to the Elmwood authorities. The Elwyn representatives, when asked to make a statement, declared that the children were legal charges on their district they would keep them at Elwyn.

While the discussion was going on John Ward, the tailor, who claims that he lost his leg while serving a term at the Hilltop House in the care of Mr. Gibbons, granted a continuation of his "pension" of $2 per month.

Mrs. Kline, of Cedar avenue, who has been a charge on the district, and whose children are at the Home for the Friendless, came to tell the board that she was to be married last night and wanted to relieve the board of the care of her children. Mrs. Swan was somewhat dubious about the question "Is Marriage a Success?" so far as the petitioner was concerned, and at her suggestion Mrs. Kline concluded to leave the children at the home for a month or two, while she is experimenting with the all-important question.

Thomas Almsbury, 60 years of age, wanted to go to the poor farm. He said he had never been married, although he had lived twenty years on the West Side. He was sent to the Home, at his former residence, of Green Bridge, applied for a position as outside nurse. A committee was appointed to consider the advisability of employing her.

The monthly report of Resident Physician Ben E. Evans showed that 105 patients were treated. Fifty-six were males, 49 females; 61 sane and 44 insane. The number of patients in the asylum July 1 was 143; received during July, 3; discharged, 7; remaining Aug. 1, 138. Superintendent Beemer reported 103 males and 49 females at present at the farm. On June 30 there were 153, 8 were admitted during July; 1 was born; 11 were discharged and 3 died.

Among a large number of resolutions of council signed by the mayor yesterday were the following:

Providing for the purchase of the steam fire engine belonging to the city from the fire association of Scranton and now being used by the Noy Aug company; directing the joint fire department committee to have a runway constructed in front of the General Phoenix engine house and to have repaired the floor of the Neptune engine house; directing the city solicitor to state the rights of the city in possessing a sewer surface when the same is built in the bed of a natural stream; providing for the repairing of the caveat-in Schultz court sewer.

THE END IS NOT YET.

Contractor P. S. Page's Men Again Prevented from Laying Rails in the Borough of Taylor.

A war cloud again hovers over Taylor. The street railway trouble, which Contractor Page believed had been settled by the payment of $600, broke out again yesterday morning in a still more violent form.

As was stated in yesterday's TRIBUNE, the borough officials objected to the laying of tracks through the borough unless the contractor would grade the street as he went along. Thursday Burgess Griffiths and Dr. Weston, president of the council, together with their attorney, John M. Harris, were on the ground when the company's workmen were about to begin operations and prevented them from proceeding. Later in the day Mr. Page agreed to pay $600 to the borough for the privilege of proceeding with the work providing the grading operations were completed within ten days. The burgess agreed to this and notified Mr. Page to proceed.

But during the night the borough council held a meeting, repudiated the agreement of the burgess, discharged their attorney, accused him of being friendly with the company, and engaged a force of deputy constables to go on duty in the morning to prevent the rails from being laid. When Mr. Page's men arrived in Taylor yesterday morning they found the main street guarded by a force of deputies standing up and down with huge signs, denoting the authority of the warders, flapping from their coat laps. Mr. Page

A WIFE'S SACRIFICE.

He was accused of setting fire to lumber belonging to Mason & Snowden, in a spirit of spite, and Mrs. Hartell rather than have this charge hanging over her husband sold everything of value the husband had not taken and paid Mason & Snowden for the lumber. She struggled on as best she could, hoping day by day that he would return, but as years rolled by and no tidings of him came she gave up all hopes of ever seeing him again.

She never lost a legal interest in her husband's property, but she had no money or friends to assist her and as there was no possible way of her completing the payments, the mortgages set up by the lumber men, she consulted in the hands of the lawyers. She says she does not know who owns the house but that Attorneys Woodruff, Comery and Vosburg are interested in it. Mr. Vosburg, she said, wanted her to leave her children and go back to England. She would not consent to this, but continued to live in the basement of one of the houses for which she paid rent every month. Her broken down health made it impossible for her to work and when her rent ran up to three months she was threatened with eviction. This compelled her to seek aid from the board.

Mr. Gibbons moved that the attorney of the board be directed to investigate the case and ascertain whether or not Mrs. Hartell had any claim on the property. In the meantime, Mr. Shotten assured the suffering woman that she would wait for nothing.

WELL IN A SWOON.

She left the board room and had not been gone over five minutes when word was brought by Mrs. Dugan that a woman had fallen in a swoon in front of the building. She was carried inside and tenderly cared for, and after a short time revived.

She told those gathered about her that she had met Mr. Woodruff and he had told her that her goods had been put into the street. This final blow was too much for the broken hearted woman and that strong will which had borne her through many trials had to succumb.

Mrs. Dugan provided her with a home and Mr. Shotten set off to have an investigation of her case begun.

called his men away and thus the matter rests.

When seen yesterday afternoon, Mr. Page said with a smile that it was quite evident that all the councilmen should have been consulted. He would not state as yet what method of procedure he would follow. It was never necessary, he said, to consult with the borough officials at all but sooner than have a fight he had offered to pay for the grading. The right to lay tracks through Taylor had been assured from the township authorities before Taylor was made a borough, consequently he felt that he was acting quite liberally with the Taylor people when he satisfied their demands. He feels confident that if he comes to take the matter to court he can convince the Taylor authorities that they are acting in a very injudicious manner.
