PEACE-LOVING ADVOCATES of the Wilson bill argue that a measure of would be in line at the coming camsome kind should be passed in order paign to fight for honest government that the country may be relieved of and the protection of American industhe suspense and uncertainity of the hour. An early adjournment would do more to relieve the nation of suspense. So long as the present congress is in existence a feeling of uncertainty and unrest will prevail, no matter what disposition it may make of the tariff bill.

National Guardsmen,

Our citizen soldiers have been active during the past few days making pre-parations for the annual encampment of the national guard, which will be held at the historic battle ground of Gettysburg next week. Advance de-tails are already enroute for the famous battle ground and upon Saturday the reveille will arouse fifteen regiments of the best equipped, best drilled and bravest militiamen in the country. According to Adjutant General Green-land's latest report, there will be drawn up for a week of army life in the field the First brigade, with 2754 men; the didate of any faction or district, but of the entire county, and all factional dis-agreements should be wiped out, all per-sonal acimosity forgettem in the one grand effort for the success of the entire ticket. the First brigade, with 2,754 men; the Second brigade, with 3,170 men, and the Third brigade, with 2,644 men.

Pennsylvania has reason to be proud of the fact that when it was thought that militia might be necessary to quell the riots at Chicago the members of the national guard of this state were the soldiers selected upon account of their excellent discipline and re-markable efficiency. As Captain Rodgers remarked in his report to the Pennsylvania has reason to be proud Rodgers remarked in his report to the Rodgers remarked in his report to the indulge in a measure of exquitation over war department, the members of the their success. Nother shall we take it Pennsylvania national guard "are no longer regarded as play soldiers by anyone, but as a well-organized, wellinstructed and well-disciplined body of volunteer soldiers, who can be depended upon to carry out the orders given them to preserve the peace." The annual encampments whether brigade or regimental, are looked forward to with pleasurable anticipations by members of the guard who take interest in soldier life, and the outings are a source of great enjoyment, giving culty at the coming election in placing as they do glimpses of actual service an effective stamp of disapproval upon in camp existence and opportunities Democracy and demagosism as reprefor greater perfection in battalion and sented in our mother county. other drills. The brave boys of the Thirteenth who will leave for Gettysburg tomorrow evening are to be congratulated upon their high standing in Let us hope that the string of defeats the National Guard of Pennsylvania, will not equal the splendid record of and THE TRIBUNE joins with their hosts of friends in this section of the state in the hope that the Cettysburg gathering will be among the most enjoyable of encampments.

Will Campbell Speak? That post office robbery may lead to interesting complications. The Times charges that the combination of the safe in which the stamps were kept was known to every person employed about the position, even including the charwoman. Postmaster Vandling, backed by Inspector Owing, has made a demand on Proprietor Campbell of the Times to name one person aside from the postmaster and his assistant who knew the talisman that would cause the iron doors of the safe to swing open.

If Mr. Campbell refuses, and he says he will, the postoffice department at now. Washington will be appealed to, and if warrant can be found in law a rigorous effort made to compel the proprietor of the Times to give freely of the information he is believed to have at his command.

But dismissing this side issue it would appear that if Inspector Owing possesses anything like the analytical mind and keen perception of his prototype, Sherlock Holmes, he should have no very great difficulty in unraveling what at first glance seems a most mysterious crime.

AT THE Pie Counter.

There is an observing librarian in New fork who thicks he can tell the sesson of York who thinks he can tell the season of the year simply by looking at the library record. He said to a World writer the other day: "Look at this record for yes-terday of books drawn out: History, 1; science, 2; blography, 0; essays, 1; fiction. 52. That's a fair summer record." Ho took a record for January out of his drawer. It was: History, 5; science, 10; blography, 4; religion, 2; essays, 4; fiction, 85. "That's a fair January record.
