ARE RESCUED ALIVE

The Imprisoned Miners Were Found Early Yesterday Afternoon.

TWENTY-SIX HOURS OF ANGUISH

Both Men Well and Little the Worse for Their Terrible Experience—How the Gallant Work of Rescue Was Carried On—Danger Was Never Considered by the Brave Band Which Saved the Imprisoned Men.

The two Poles, John Moroski and Frank Sheller, who were imprisoned by the Bellevue cave-in, were rescued yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock, after spending twenty-six hours in bodily suffering and mental anguish. Moroski had to be assisted out but Sheller was active enough to walk without help.

An immense crowd, attracted by the news of the finding of the men, assembled at the mouth of the slope and cheer after cheer rent the air when the brave rescuing party with the liberated miners appeared. Moroski's two little sons who accompanied the rescuing party into the mine were the only relatives to greet the two Poles, when they came from what would have been their tomb had not the officials of the company made such timely and strenuous efforts to release them.

Mr. Storrs and his men are deserving of great credit for the successful outcome of the work of rescue. There was no time lost, but immediately upon grasping the situation every method available to find the imprisoned men was resorted to without any question of labor, danger or expense. To enter a "working" mine into the very heart of the disturbance where good air and safe roofs are all a matter of chance is an undertaking which is attended with no small risk, and the noble men who braved these dangers deserve rank with the foremost of heroes.

THE WORK OF RESCUE.

About 11 o'clock yesterday morning the imprisoned men were first spoken of. About sixteen feet of fallen coal was between them and the rescuers. The work was pushed as rapidly as possible and when but seven and one-half feet remained to be cleared a hole was bored through the coal into the chamber and as soon as the drill was withdrawn Sheller informed the rescuers that he and Moroski were all right. They had light and plenty of oil and as they had been sparing of their provisions they were not suffering to any great extent from hunger.

The space in which they were imprisoned was about nine yards long and the regular width of a chamber. They had heard all along the sounds of the picks and drills of the rescuers, but as they could not trust their judgment as to how far away the working was going on, they kept in the farthest part of their cell for fear a blast would force in the wall upon them. The shift which was at work when the rescue was accomplished was in charge of Evan J. Evans, foreman of the Avondale mine, and was made up of William Richards, William Jenkins, John Davis and Heese Anthony. To reach the imprisoned men it was necessary to drive a tunnel four feet square through nineteen feet of solid coal and several feet of loose rock.

STORY OF THE MEN.

They first knew of their danger when Miner Richard Evans called for them to run as the roof was falling. They attempted to do so, but, lacking spirit, became afraid and retraced their steps, taking shelter in the chamber of Evans. When the men found no means of escape they unloaded the coal from a car, which was fortunately with them, and turned it over on its side as a shelter in case the roof should begin to fall again. Moroski worked against the pillar with pick and shovel and for a time was nearly frantic. The air in the enclosure was very good, and was probably supplied from the many cracks and fissures connecting with the surface.

The men as soon as they reached the surface were given a warm welcome and a large crowd escorted them to their homes on the South Side. Moroski lives at 1010 Prospect avenue and Frank Sheller lives at 1127 Remington avenue.

CAUSE OF THE CAVE IN.

Evan J. Evans, mine foreman at Avondale, who superintended the second search party, was seen by a Tribune reporter yesterday afternoon. Mr. Evans is a man who has spent the greatest part of his life underground, and when questioned regarding the cause of the catastrophe, said the pillars might have been weakened by age or decay. Changes in the weather cause the pillars to crack and split by degrees and this cave-in, he said, might have been caused by either or both of the reasons stated.

The excitement at the mine has subsided and the Simpson & Watkins steam-drill which was in readiness to be worked from the surface has been removed. The Delaware, Lackawanna and Western officials who assisted in the rescue were: W. R. Storrs, Thomas D. Davis, Benjamin Hughes, Thomas Phillips, Evan J. Evans and David Davies.

A BRILLIANT EVENT.

The Season to Open at the Frothingham With a Superb Spectacular.

The opening attraction at the Frothingham on Wednesday, August 22, promises to be one of the most impressive, glittering, unique and artistically brilliant productions of Shakespeare's sublime tragedy, Richard III, that ever invited the attention of Scranton playgoers. No less than fifty people will be in the cast and the battle scene, coronation and funeral procession will be most thrillingly presented.

The company is headed by the young American tragedian, Owen D. Jones, who for the past fourteen years has been a worthy disciple of Thespian and who has achieved eminent success in Shakespearean roles. He is gifted with wonderful dramatic genius and he will unquestionably give an ideal presentation of Richard. Supporting him is Joseph Ransome, late leading man with Frederick Warde, and other renowned stars, an actor of rare skill and ability, who will appear in the double role of King Henry VI. and Richard. Other leading characters will be taken by prominent professionals who will be announced later on. The occasion will be eventful as involving the first professional appearance of Miss Tillie Lewis, the handsome and popular elocutionist in the powerful role of the queen mother, the Duchess of York. Miss Lewis' many Scranton friends will be afforded the opportunity of giving her an ovation on this significant night. Miss Kittle McCabe, the sweet soprano of the St. Mary's Roman Catholic school of Wilkes-Barre, a lady of acknowledged dramatic power, will delight her many friends in the role of Lady Anne.

The costumes throughout will reveal something beyond the ordinary, many of them having been specially made for this production of Richard. They were supplied by the famous house of Van Horn & Co., of Philadelphia; the magnificent armors and banners being furnished by the celebrated Van Cluck of New York city. The music will be that used by the late John McCullough and procured for this presentation through a favored medium. The scenic accessories throughout will be unapreciably brilliant and attractive. This superb opening event at the Frothingham should, and no doubt will, invite the attention of all lovers of high class, legitimate drama.

AMERICAN NOT A CANDIDATE.

His Time Is Fully Occupied by Private Business Affairs.

"No, sir, I am not a candidate for the Democratic nomination for congress," said ex-Congressman Lemuel American yesterday in response to a question asked by a Tribune reporter.

"If I was I would have no hesitation in saying so, for it has always been my opinion that when a man wants anything the best thing for him to do is to say that he does."

"Just at present I have many important business matters to engage my attention and have not the time at my disposal to seek any office."

BIGAMY AND THEFT.

A Pittsburg Defaulter Who Deserted His Wife Runs Away with a Hyde Park Girl.

Miss Mary E. Gallagher, who resides on Scranton street, is anxious to know the whereabouts of her sister, Mrs. Elmer Davison, nee Miss Birdie Gallagher, who left her home five weeks ago in company with Elmer Davison, her husband.

The couple were married about a year ago, and it has since been learned that Davison has another wife residing in Pittsburg.

A Tribune reporter called at Miss Gallagher's home last evening and when she was questioned about the matter stated that the story of Davison's bigamous crime was true. She wants to find her sister, who, she says, does not know that Davison is a bigamist.

Miss Gallagher said that a short time before the marriage Elmer Davison, or James Lindley, as he was known here, put in an appearance and, after paying court to Birdie, won her affections. Her sister only saw him once and that was when she was here on a visit from Chicago. Her mother died twelve weeks ago and her brother expired a week ago yesterday from heart disease.

Davison was here when Mrs. Gallagher died and then left town with his wife for Pittsburg. They resided at that place for a few weeks, he in the meantime obtaining good character references. Miss Gallagher received a letter from Mr. McCleary, of the Union Tea company, Pittsburg, on July 7, which stated that Davison was formerly in his employ and while out collecting in that city absconded, taking funds amounting to $75 or $100.

On August 1, 1891, he married his first wife in Pittsburg. They lived very un happily, he abusing her and her child frequently. The child is now dead. Miss Gallagher's sister has a baby now 5 months old.

Davison is a man of medium build with a high forehead and comely features. He is wanted in various sections of the state for defrauding and theft. Miss Gallagher is sure that if her sister knew the state of affairs she would return home.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MEETING.

That Branch of Democratic Organization Will Meet Next Week.

"While personally I am in favor of holding the Democratic county convention before our brethren of the opposition have an opportunity to name a ticket," said County Chairman Paisley yesterday, "I am unable to say what date the county committee will decide upon."

"Several members of the executive branch of the county committee are now absent from the city, but will return so that a meeting of the executive committee can be held early next week in the Central Democratic Club rooms. It will then be decided to call the county committee together to name a date for a convention."

BREAD, WATER AND PIE.

It Was a Long Time Between Pies and She Kicked.

Mrs. Thomas Coggins had her husband, Barber Coggins, of Penn avenue, arrested yesterday for beating her and non support.

She told Alderman Fitzsimmons before whom the case was heard, that she had tasted nothing but bread and water and one piece of huckleberry pie during the past week and that when she protested to her husband that the diet was insufficient he slapped her. The alderman is holding the case under consideration.

OFF FOR GETTYSBURG

Departure of Seranton's Gallant Thirtieth Regiment.

EVERY MEMBER WAS PRESENT

A Special Train of Eleven Cars Left Amid the Cheers of Thousands of People and Reached Gettysburg at 4.30 This Morning—Immense Throng About the Station—Number of Veteran Guides with the Regiment.

Seranton's own Thirtieth regiment, 100 per cent. strong, amid the cheers of an immense throng left for the historic Gettysburg last night via the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad. They departed on a train of eleven cars including a baggage, stock and crew car, and expected to reach Gettysburg at 4.30 o'clock this morning.

If any proof were necessary to proclaim the confidence and admiration by which the regiment is held in the eyes of thousands of friends left behind, one would only need to witness the immense throng gathered in the vicinity of the station, cheering, waving handkerchiefs and shouting expressions of good-will. The schedule of the train was from Northumberland to Harrisburg by way of the Pennsylvania railroad, and from the state capital to Gettysburg over the Reading system.

Company E, of Honesdale, reached here at 3.45 in the afternoon and were quartered at the armory until the regiment's departure. Company G, of Montrose, the baby company, which has attained third position in the regiment for general excellence, arrived on the 8.30 p. m. Delaware, Lackawanna and Western train and remained at the depot until the hour for leaving.

THE ARRANGEMENTS COMPLETE.

To the civilian's eye all was bustle, disorder and confusion at the armory for two hours before the regiment left, but the arrangements for moving the large body of men were so complete that not a man or strap was missing at the final order to move. When the regiment swung into Lackawanna avenue the sidewalks were occupied by a solid mass of people, whose cheers added to the spirited music of drum and drum, certain staff officers and men the impression that nothing was lacking to the spirit and noise of the send-off.

Many of the companies were accompanied by veterans of the Civil war who were in the memorable Gettysburg fight and will act as guides in properly explaining the fight which saved the nation. Each company had some particularly civilianish mascot, but an ugly looking bull-dog of brindle extraction, possessed by Company G, attracted the most attention.

LIST OF OFFICERS.

The roster of the officers is as follows: Colonel E. H. Ripple, Major C. C. Mattes, Major G. H. Whitney, Adjutant W. S. Miller, Battalion Adjutant L. T. Mattera and C. C. Conklin, Quartermaster J. W. Oakford, Inspector of Rifle Practice W. H. Jessup, Jr., Surgeon W. G. Fulton, Assistant Surgeons D. M. Capwell and C. R. Parke, Chaplain S. C. Logan, Sergeant Major J. M. Hughes, Battalion Sergeant Major Fred Barnard and Albert Davis, Quartermaster Sergeant Reese Watkins, Commissary Sergeant W. J. Tracey, Musician W. J. McDonald, Hospital Steward M. Harris, Captain F. W. Stillwell, Lieutenants H. B. Cox and J. O. Dimmick, Company A; Captain William Kelley and Second Lieutenant John Kambach, Company B; Captain B. B. Chase, Lieutenants Frank Robling, jr., and W. A. Rauh, Company C; Captain Montrose Barnard, Lieutenants Stratton and Stokes, Company D; Captain L. Rollins, Lieutenants W. H. Wapak and J. M. Miller, Company E; Captain E. D. Fellows, Lieutenants W. A. Briggs and Fred W. Mason, jr., Company F; Captain W. D. B. Alney, Lieutenants R. J. McCansland and G. S. Jessup, Company G; Captain William Rockwell, Lieutenants E. D. Corwin and S. Wells Corwin, Company H.

A special correspondence from The Tribune is with the regiment and complete and reliable dispatches will be received from Gettysburg and printed in these columns each day.

The Tennessee jubilee singers will assist at the service and render a number of selections.

NO NEARER AGREEMENT.

Street Railway War in Taylor Still in Status Quo.

The Taylor street railway war is no nearer settlement than when it began, but it is likely that the inactivity in the matter will not continue much longer, owing to the necessity of having the work completed before the cold weather sets in.

John M. Harris, attorney for the borough, said to a Tribune reporter that as far as the borough was concerned, nothing is being done in the case. The borough has submitted its ultimatum and is not losing any sleep over the matter.

Mr. Page, when asked what he intended to do in the matter, replied: "Oh, we will sit down for a while and think about it."

RE-UNION AT FARVIEW

Ex-Governor Beaver and Governor McKinley Will Address the Veterans at That Place Wednesday.

The reunion of the Seven-County Veterans' association at Fairview on Wednesday will attract thousands of old soldiers and their friends to that place. Among the speakers will be Ex-Governor James A. Beaver and Governor William McKinley.

A committee consisting of the following has been appointed to come to this city and meet the distinguished visitors: Frank Hollenbeck, Hon. E. E. Hendrick, J. C. Turner, J. Vandermark, John Kelly, Frederick F. Forbes and W. M. Lathrop. They will welcome them in the name of the citizens of Carbonade and see that they are properly taken care of during their stay in the Pioneer city.

The program through the streets of Carbonade will be brief. The line will form at Seventh avenue upon the arrival of the veterans and will march up Main street to the railroad station at the head of the street. Captain Alfred Darte, of Kingston, will be chief marshal, and Captain Vandermark, of Carbonade, will be his first assistant. The indications are that the parade and general attendance will be very large.

At Fairview Judge Purdy, of Wayne county, will deliver the address of welcome. Convenient stages will be arranged by the committee for the speakers and it has been decided that these shall be far enough away from the noise and excitement of the central grounds that those who wish to hear the speeches will not be annoyed by the noise of those who do not care for oration. Mayor Purdy has issued the following proclamation to the people of Carbonade concerning the reunion:

To the Patriotic People of the City of Carbonade:

On Wednesday next, veterans of the Civil War and members of the Grand Army of the Republic, will meet in this city on the occasion of the Fifteenth Annual reunion of the Seven-County Veterans' association. We owe it to these defenders of our homes, that the visiting veterans be given cordial welcome to our city. The occasion will be the people's opportunity to manifest their appreciation of the service rendered by the men who went to the front during the years of the nation's peril.

Therefore, I, E. E. Hendrick, mayor, by virtue of the power vested in me, call upon the residents of this city to aid the general committee of arrangements in making this gathering of the "boys in blue" the most successful in the history of the Seven County reunion. Let there be a liberal display of the tri-color; decorate your homes and places of business and join heartily in the public demonstration in honor of the men who braved danger at their country's call.

E. E. HENDRICK, Mayor.
