STAMPS STILL MISSING.

And It Is Likely They Will Be for Some

Time to Come. The government inspectors announce that they have failed so far to give any clew to the whereabouts of the stolen postage stamps or the identity of the thieves.

They, however, feel confident that the first attempt that is made to dispose of them will disclose the identity of the robbers, as every avenue through which they might be disposed of is being closely watched.

THE PARK HILL CAVE-IN.

No Farther Settling Takes Place and

Residents Feeling Easier. The surface over the caved-in Bellevue slope has showed no signs of further settling, and the fears of the people of the disturbed locality are allayed. Those who were afraid of a further cave-in have returned to their homes. and once again fires have been started in the stoves.

WAR AT AN END. Differences Between Taylor Borough and Railway Officials Settled.

The latest authentic advices state that the street railway war now in Taylor borough has come to an end An amicable adjustment of the differ ences has been made and work will le begun on the railway in three works immediately after the grading, which has been the bone of contention, is completed. By the terms of the sattlement the railway company is to pay for grading for a width of seven ferand pay half the expense of grading the remaining part of the street. The consideration upon whic ; the company agrees to pay their part of the expense of grading is that a con siderable benefit will accrue to them if the borough does the work at the present time instead of later, which would materially interfere with their traffic should the grading be changed and the law in the future. The rail way company also agreed to keep th road between the track in repair bu refused to plank the track.

The adjustment of this difficulty will usure the early completion of the linto Lackawanna.
