

BASE BALL

EASTERN LEAGUE

All Eastern league games scheduled to be played yesterday were postponed by rain.

THE RAIN SAVED US.

Springfield did not have a chance to climb up. When the time arrived yesterday afternoon to call the game at the ball park between Scranton and Springfield, a light rain was blown across the diamond by a stiff breeze.

Soon the rain began to descend in torrents, and the small crowd of spectators made desperate efforts to get under shelter. The wind blew the rain about in such a way that the grand stand offered little protection, and almost every one that went out to see the game carried long wet clothes with their rain checks. The game will be played today, as it is an open date.

GLINTS FROM THE DIAMOND.

Pitcher Wallace, of the Franklin club, has joined the Pittsburg team and the man Scranton was negotiating with early in the season.

The Springfield Union in forecast of the Eastern league finish places the clubs in the order: Providence, Erie, Springfield, Syracuse, Buffalo, Wilkes-Barre, Scranton and Yankees.

Suit will be entered shortly by the members of the ex-Troy team against Proprietor Russell, of Troy, who was in partnership with Maloney until the team began to lose money, when he withdrew. It is believed that the courts will hold him responsible for the back salaries of the players.

President Powers says that he will not be a candidate for the presidency of the Eastern league next year, as it interferes with other plans he has in view, and he is content with the record of finishing two seasons with a complete circuit, last year without a break, something no minor league had ever done before—Springfield Union.

GENERAL SPORTING NOTES.

"Johnny" Gorman, the ex-champion 125-pound pugilist, and "Jack" Slicely have been matched to fight ten rounds. The contest will probably take place before the recently organized Atlantic Athletic club of Coney Island.

Colonel Tom Stevens will sell his racing stable this fall. Fitzhugh and Son, John Rodgop will also dispose of their surplus stock. Eugene Leigh has announced the sale of forty of his brood mares, to take place at Lexington shortly.

The pleasantest riding season of the year is yet to come. Fall is undoubtedly the most desirable time for cycling, especially for long distance tours. The roads are in a far better condition than at any other time, and the temperature is such that the riders feel less fatigue than in warmer weather.

The fiercest struggle for records this world has ever known will occur this fall. Almost immediately after the Springfield meet the teams will commence to prepare. Some will remain in the east, some go west and others south. At present Johnson, Blinn, Tins, Tyler and the Columbia and Sterling teams are known to be enrolled for the fight.

The Saratoga racing association is to have a Proctor stakes, modeled on the pattern of the Kentucky and the latter of which will be soon out of existence. The entry will be made cheaper and will probably be $5, to be paid on nominating the mare, while the purse is $10,000 will be added. If high class racing is to be maintained at the Springs, this is an excellent move.

Dick Burge, the English welter-weight, announces that he has not accepted and is prepared to make a match against any man in England, America or Australia for $200 to $300 a side and the best purse offered. Having been to America so many times on a fruitless errand, Burge considers it would be an act of international courtesy if an American came to his country and box him on English soil.

HOW THE PUBLIC IS IMPOSED UPON BEWARE OF FRAUDS

For the Sake of Profit They Will Sacrifice Principle, Health, Etc.

Unscrupulous dealers are trying to sell ordinary Glycerin Salt or a mixture of Boric Acid and Glycerin as "Artificial Carlsbad Salt," "Sprudel Salt," "German Salt" or "Improved Carlsbad Salt," and under other similar names. The Natural Remedies of Carlsbad can not be imitated.

"What Nature makes, man can not improve upon." Artificial made wines will never replace the natural juice of the grapes. Neither can the natural waters of Carlsbad nor the Carlsbad Sprudel Salt be replaced by the cheap substitutes offered to a gullible public for the sake of the larger profits made thereon by these unscrupulous dealers.

No one would buy artificial wines knowingly. Why buy the imitation of the Carlsbad products when your health is at stake? The Carlsbad Sprudel Water is a specific for all diseases of the stomach, liver and kidneys, and has been used with great benefit by hundreds of thousands of people. The Carlsbad Sprudel Salt, which is evaporated from the Sprudel Water at Carlsbad, is an excellent aperient, laxative and Diuretic; it is an alternative and eliminative remedy, which dissolves tenacious bile, always irritative, and removes obstruction by aiding nature, and not by sudden, and excessive irritation, as most cathartics do. Use the imported Carlsbad water, or if it is not convenient to use the water, or when a more decided laxative effect is desired, use the Carlsbad Sprudel Salt.

Insist upon the genuine, which is imported direct from Carlsbad, and must have the signature of Elmer & Mendelson Co., Sole Agents for the United States, 123 and 124 Franklin street, New York, on every bottle.

PLEASURES OF OCEAN TRAVEL

and are being sent on this ship to Southampton, there to be transferred to the United States warship Chicago, on which they sail to Korea to protect United States interests there. I had quite an interesting talk with one of them. The steerage would be interesting if it were not so dirty. The people are lying about on what look like little shelves, some smoking and, like the others upstairs, playing cards, while people lie around on boxes and bundles and play the violin, mouth organ, bag pipes or any thing at all. It sounds just like the Midway Pleasure some-thing. There are, of course, some very interesting types of people down there too. The anarchistic looking Italian and Russian are there, the Welshman going home to see the old country, the little German, and, in fact, almost all other nationalities are represented, just as they are above deck, only there is the social difference between them.

We passed a German Lloyd on her way to New York last night. We all went upon deck to see her, or, rather, her lights, as that was all we could see in the black night. It was a very large steamer, we could see.

A DANCE ON THE DECK.

Tonight there are to be some great dances. The passengers are to have a dance on the deck, and the plectanion band is to furnish the dance music. Tomorrow night, the last evening on board ship, will be made memorable by a concert, and a very lively one it will be, as nearly every man, woman and child possessed of the power of speech is to take part. One young man is to recite in Chinese. By the way, we passed a large Chinese man of war today. I was glad to get the chance to see it. It, like the Chinese himself, was peculiar. Very high rigging and sails, and it was a very large ship. I was very interested to look at it with a great deal of interest.

This noon there was some great fun on deck. The men had a tug of war and, of course, the women sat in their chairs and cheered on the combatants. There was a great straight-as-a-stick officer in the Austrian army who sided always won and, of course, I was glad, as this gentleman is a lovely man. So you see we had many and pleasant diversions, which added to the charms of the delightful weather—for we had a voyage which the steward calls "in a hundred, man"—kept us in the best of health and spirits. We sometimes laugh almost all day long, and I am sure the trip has been most beneficial.

THAT FRENCHMAN AGAIN.

I was talking to the French critic this afternoon on deck, and was so fortunate as to see his credentials as foreign correspondent for the French press on matters "musical and dramatic." He is a wonderfully brilliant man, and talking about everything that line, besides being a great literary student in the different modern languages. He happened to be an acquaintance of Mile. Calve, and Sibyl Sanderson and almost all the other artists who have risen to fame and fortune in his beautiful "Paris." He keeps talking up the advantages of the National Conservatory of France, in Paris, to me all the time. He is really a very brilliant man, but I am afraid I cannot go to his beautiful Paris for my lessons. He has heard Mr. Burns and me sing and compliments us both on our singing, and vehemently continues to talk Paris, Paris, to us at almost every chance.

Today there were some beautiful little boats sold on the ship—souvenirs of the voyage—with everything in them that one could wish to learn of the subject of ocean steamship sailing, and calling, not to mention that very important item tipping. The pictures of the ships, officers, etc., are in them, too, besides a large space for autographs. One of the gentlemen on board very kindly presented me with one, and I have been getting my "autograph album" filled with little equips, and even kind words, from the dear friends I have been so fortunate as to meet on this good ship. Assuredly, no one ever had such a delightful voyage as this one. It has been idyllic.

Tomorrow afternoon and evening we will be hanging over the railing looking for the first sight of land. An Englishman on board said this noon at lunch, that now we will soon be getting to land civilization once in our lives, but of course we silenced him with three cheers and a tiger-r-r for America.

LAND IN SIGHT.

NEXT DAY.—We shall see land the purser informed us this noon at dinner, about 5 o'clock this afternoon. So, of course, everyone will be on deck on the water in the afternoon, and I shall write no more, mailing this at Southampton. Everyone is overjoyed at the prospect of treading firm land once more, though for my part I would be content to stay on board a fortnight yet, it is such an indolent do-nothing life, besides being so interesting. It is amusing to watch the effect of the coming on of the voyage upon us all. The romantically inclined are discovered in quiet corners, winding up their little flirtations, and we practical ones are arranging our plans for the land journey. The stewards and waiters have suddenly become alert and swift to anticipate our every wish, and so on, all over the ship, it is rather different, to say the least, from the start of the voyage.

OFF FOR TERRA FIRMA.

P. S., Aug 31.—This wouldn't be a woman's letter without a postscript, and I write mine to tell you about a huge fog which most provokingly displayed six valuable hours this morning just as we were all eagerness to get ashore. As I write we are passing the Isle of Wight, Osborne palace and Cowes, where the beautiful yachts are ever seen. And the yachts! How shall I describe them? They seem like spirits adrift on an Emerald sea. By the time you get this the races between the Vigilant and the Britannia will have been an old story. But imagine how we must feel without any knowledge of the results. Anyhow, we all give three cheers for the Yankee boat and hope that they will not be given in vain.

Mrs. Burns, while yet aboard ship, has just received a most delightful letter of welcome for the party. The pilot brought it to us, from Miss Driscoll, of the Welsh Ladies' choir. The Kilarney this morning rescued us from the fog and in a few moments we were on a route for "Merri's England" and for the success or failure that await us there.

IS LIFE WORTH LIVING

Solomon Once Said It Was Not, but Afterwards Changed His mind.

Cheer for the Despondent.

The Rev. Dr. Talmage, who is now touring in Australia, considers this question of sufficient importance to make it the subject of a recent sermon. Happiness is not a question of bank account or material prosperity, but rather of health, and this can only be enjoyed where the digestive organs are performing their proper functions.

Were the question addressed to a chronic dyspeptic, a negative answer would probably be returned. Dr. J. Millner Fothergill, of London, whose name is a household word in England, says of this dread but prevalent disease, "More distressing than the actual pain is the sense of misery experienced by the mental discomfort, the sense of wretchedness, of utter unfitness for work, the mental attitude of gloom, distress and incapacity, the physical discomfort, tends to cause the sufferer to have misgivings that the malady is something more than mere indigestion. A haunting fear that the brain is the seat of the disease, where there is headache, the heart, where there is palpitation or irregular action tortures the unhappy sufferer. The remembrance of this impression hangs like a dark cloud over the intervals of comparative health. Not only does the brain feel exhausted, but the whole system appears languid and weak, instead of the man being able for a twenty or thirty mile walk, one or two miles promise fatigue, and sometimes an intense languor is felt without any exertion at all. When he goes to his medical attendant to describe his case, he says: "I take all sorts of strengthening things, and yet I feel so weak." If instead of using these words he were to say, "because I take all sorts of things I feel so weak," he would express a part at least of the truth.

Mal-products of indigestion are positive depressants. Strong food does not necessarily involve strength, rather the opposite when the digestion is impaired. A little, well digested, feeds the blood, and from it again the tissues, better than a large meal of which none, or very little indigestion, is properly digested. In this condition, the more a person eats, the worse he thrives, because he digests little or none, and unless he is restricted to proper meals, he dies of hunger—of actual starvation, in the midst of unlimited food and everlasting eating. To eat and digest them, is not one and the same thing.

Dr. Fothergill speaks of artificially digested starch in the following unmistakable terms: "As the cooking of starchy foods involves their partial digestion, we see that intuitively and without the light of science, man commenced the art of digesting his food when only a savage and long before the dawn of history. We at the present, are emerging out of the early darkness and stepping by morning light on the path to the artificial digestion of starch, by so doing, economizing the body energy which would otherwise be consumed in preparing such food for absorption."

"No! now comes forward to sound the praises of Paskola and tell how it has rescued them from a living death." Mr. L. W. Crispy, agent of the Southern Railroad company, Fort Hill, S. C., writes as follows under date of July 20, 1894: "Just five years ago I quit the farm to take up office work, I was in perfect health, and for two years following continued to be robust and strong. At the expiration of that time, which was three years ago, I began to be troubled with dyspepsia, but gave the matter little attention thinking I would soon come around all right. Instead, things went from bad to worse, and in the last six months I have suffered frightfully. It has been necessary to call a doctor a number of times. My appetite has been good all this while, while my digestive organs have been absolutely unable to digest any food. I have tried everything that has been recommended, without experiencing any benefit. I have used the medicine of some of the best physicians in this country. They would sometimes help me for three or four days, then I would be just as bad off as I was before consulting them.

"I have lost flesh until I do not look like the same person, only weighing 132 pounds, making a loss of 33 pounds in six months. "I had begun to think that I had better look around for a coffin and a place to put it, when just four weeks ago I came across a little pamphlet describing Paskola. I read every word of it and was inspired with such confidence that it was decided to give it a trial. I began taking the medicine nearly in July, and by the time the first bottle was half gone, I ordered three more, as I found it was doing me much good. I ceased to lose flesh, had no further headaches, nor did I vomit after eating as previously. In fact I did not feel as though I had anything the matter with me at all, and have now taken two and a half bottles and am still using it, everybody having noticed that I am improving and my complexion being better than it had been for two years.

"Paskola has done for me more good in the last thirty days than any other medicine I have ever taken. In fact it is the only thing that has ever done me any good. I sleep well at night, do not dream as I did before using it and awake in the morning fully refreshed and ready for my work." Such statements as these are incontrovertible.

If you are suffering, if an emaciated form and general lack of strength shows that you are not properly nourished, send for a pamphlet on food and digestion, which will be mailed free upon application to the Pre-Digested Food Co., 30 Reade street, New York.
