AT THE THEATRES.

However fastidious or wavering the tastes of Scranton theater-goers may be, the attractions at the city's playhouses during the week should satisfy the most exacting. The list of amusements in-cludes tragedy of the artistic order, one of cludes tragedy of the artistic order, one of the best farce comedies ever written, a spectacular production of great merit, a bovelty company, a prominent exponent of the art of legerdermain and a good com-pany in the famous "The Clemenceau Case" and one of Sidney Grandy's come-

The Frothingham management will present to its patrons the well known Rono & Williams company, assisting Miss Laura Alberta, in that emotional drama, "The Clemenceau [Case," tonight and Wednesday evening. Tuesday evening "An Arabian Night" will be presented by the same company. This is an enjoyable musical comedy and permits the introducing of high class comedy specialties. The members of the company are said to have been engaged especially for their particular parts, are finished artists and many have been seen in Scranton before. Of Reno & Williams' supporting company each is an artist of unqualified ability. Miss Cora Williams is best known through her association with DeWolf Hopper's "Wang" and Seabrooke's "Isle of Champagne." George Reno is a finished character actor and has graduated from character actor and has graduated from the hardworking ranks of the legitimate school, Miss Fern Alwood, Mrs. Alice Harrison, Wilbur M. Roe, and E. S. Morey are artists of merit and their ability to entertain is beyond controversy.

Thomas W. Keene, the eminent trage-dian, will be seen at the Academy this evening in Bulwer Lytton's great drama, "Richelieu." Neither the actor nor the play need extended comment; both are too well known. It is sufficient to say that this is one of Mr. Keene's most acceptable interprotations, and the sale of seats bespeaks a large and select attendance at the performance. Prices of seats have not been advanced.

Judging from the success accorded Davis' theatre last week during the engagement of lady vaudevilles, the present week will, if possible, witness even greater success. Beginning this afternoon the Watson Sisters' Extravagenza and Novelly company superties. elty company, supporting Ida Siddons, a lyric artist of flattering reputation, will be the attraction throughout the week. The artists are from this country and Europe, and are thoroughly up to date in new and pleasing specialties. The performances are given each afternoon and evening and will conclude with a spectacular piece en-hanced by mechanical and electrical effects.

Whether worried with business cares or any other sort of troubles, amusement goers will breathe a sigh of relief in the realization that moody sentiments can be cast to the winds during tomorrow night's performance of Hoyt's "A Trip to Chinatown" at the Academy of Music. It was given at Hoyt's Madison Square theater in the city of New York for 656 consecutive performances, no play having had a run before of longer than 603 performances. It will be, if possible, even more welcome in Scranton than on its last appearance here, from the fact that this city will see the play for the first time with the original New York cast, including Harry nai New York east, including Harry Conor as Well and Strong, George A. Bean, Jr., Geraldine McCann, sadie Kirby, Julius P. Whitmark, Harry Gilfoll, Mar-garet McDonald and Nellie Parker, The company will bring an entire carload of scenery from the home theater in New York, so that Scranton may see the great farce comedy identical even to the slight-est detail with the metropolitan production. The famons little American dancer, Bessie Clayton, will be seen in the play. Although she has been with Hoyt & Mc-Kee for the past two years, this is her first engagement outside of New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago. Scranton thea-ter goers have a rare treat in store.

Wednesday evening at the Academy Lewis Morrison will produce his elaborate scenic and dramatic version of "Faust." scenic and dramatic version of "Faust."
The piece is said to be mounted with magnificent scenic embellishments. Startling scenes that make a mortal feel his weakness when compared to the power of the immortal come in quick succession. For this reason Mr. Morrison's "Faust" is a worthy moral lesson as well as a gorgeous production of dramatic and scenic art. In obtaining the fine scenic effects the power of electricity is taken advantage of. There are many electric surprises and mechanical novelties, making it an elaborate and brilliant production. it an elaborate and brilliant production.
Mr. Morrison's physique is perfectly fitted to Mephisto. His face is handsome or flendish as he chooses to make it. His Me phisto is almost a revelation. The production here will be complete in every detail and the original New York company will appear.

The popular Manager J. H. Laine re-turned from New York on Saturday evan-ing, where he had been engaged booking attractions for the Frothingham theater. In the matter of securing high class com-binations Mr. Laine has been successful, binations Mr. Laine has been successful, and Scranton amusement seekers will be afforded opportunity before the season closes of witnessing a class of performances seldom seen outside of the larger cities. Among the most important will be the presentations given by the Mme. Tavary English Opera company that will appear in "Il Trovatore" and "Lucia Di Lammermoor." Madame Tavary will appear at each performance and will be supported by the celebrated tenors, Messrs. Guille and Clark, and a chorus of over 100 voices.

The Philadelphia Press Said That Pennsylvania Marksmen Had Better Come Home and Shoot Craps. Figures Do Not Lie and Records Show Our Marksmen to Be In the Rank of World Beaters-Individual and Team Scores of Past Matches.

In a subjoined letter to THE TRIBUNE Colonel Herman Osthaus takes exceptions to the Philadelphia Press in its criticism of Pennsylvania marksmen, and incidentally gives some very inter-eating facts concerning the rifls shooting of past matches. His letter follows:

Editor of The Tribune.

Six—As it was my privilege to select and command the team of Pennsylvania riflemen that so ably represented the state in the inter-state rifle competitions, at Sea the inter-state rifle competitions, at Sea Girt, New Jersey, a week ago, you will kindly permit me to say a few words upon the subject of your manly editorial of Friday morning, in which you take to task the witty but untruthful punster of the Philadelphia Press, who stated a week ago that the Pennsylvania team had better "come home and go to practicing shooting craps." I desire to show the correctness of your remarks and the unfairness of the Press punster by a few figures and comparisons:

The Pennsylvania team shot in two The Pennsylvania team shot in two matches, the Hilton trophy and interstate, and nothing elso except some pool shooting for practice. It lost the interstate match by a narrow margin though the inexcusable shooting of one of its members upon the wrong target and the consequent slight disorder and demoralization, but it won the other, which is considered the more important match by the zation, but it won the other, which is considered the more important match, by the highest score ever shot by a Pennsylvania team. The score of 1088 in the latter reaffirmed an average score of 90 2-3 points per man out of a possible 105. Even in the lost match the Pennsylvania score of 1036 was the best score made by any of the six strong teams upon the grounds except that of New Jersey.

FIGURES DO NOT LIE. That Pennsylvania's teams outshot all the other teams upon the ground is shown by the fact that the total of its combined scores in both matches exceeds the total of any other team. These totals are as

These figures show that Penusylvania's total in both matches this year leads the total of any other year in the long series of competitions by many points.

In the competitions of 1892 and 1894 combined Pennsylvania won three matches out of four. In the eight previous years it won four out of sixteen. Surely the Pennsylvania teams recent exploits do not warrant the censures of the press punster.

The commander of the District of Columbia team assured the writer after the close of the matches that the Penusylvania team was the best team of riflemen in the world today, and I believe that his judgment upon the merits of a rifle team is worth more than that of the Press

THE PASSING SHOW.

Under this title Editor Sam Boyd, of the Wilkes-Barre News Dealer, pays a deserved compliment as follows: "Bernard Megargee, senior member of the large wholesale paper firm of Megargee Bros., Scranton, was one of the passing show yesterday. He is of the noted Megargee family, of Philadelphia, nearly all of whom are newspaper men, or closely allied thereto, and is about 40 years of age. Mr. Megargee is a keen, shrewd business man, possesses more than the average share of good looks and dresses with neatness and taste. He is a Democrat in politics/keeps in close touch with the people on all the current questions of the day, and enjoys a wide and valuable acquaintance. He is very popular in Scranton, is looked upon as a man of very strong influence, and has several times refused the call for a nomination to one of the offices in the gift of his party. In connection with his brother, Frank Megargee, they have built up a very large and prosperous business in the Electric City, and though scarcely ten years old, the firm possesses a confidence, standing and credit inferior to none in the state. They succeed because the foundations were laid on the broad principle of fair and square treatment, and the policy inaugurated by them has been unswervingly carried out."
