HE WAS THROWN OUT.

McAndrews Has No Terrors for 3. J Zintell.

A lively scene occurred yesterday afternoon at the shoe slop of J. J. Zin-tell, on Scranton street. Patrick Mc-Andrews, of Edwards court, was drunk and came around to clean out the firm of Zintell & Co. The trouble arose over McAndrews' children who have appropriated several articles from the Zintell domicile on Tenth street.

Mr. Zintell saw the articles with the McAndrew children and took them away from them, McAndrew arrived at the shop and after a few mighty efforts to regain his equilibrum, opened the door. He then began to assail Zintell with his tongue and threatened to do them bodily harm, Without more ado Mr. Zintell, seeing that his visitor was likely to prove troublesome, picked him up in his strong arms and moment later the inebriate found that he had reached the sidewalk. The discomfited McAndrew walked away vowing vengeance on the shoemaker. No arrests were made.

The child was rendered unconscious, but was conveyed to a room in the house and placed under the care of Dr. Doug-Last evening she was much improved. The fact became known yesterday that David Williams, a well known resident of Washburn street, and Miss Lizzie Roberts, of Price street, would leave at 4 30 o'clock for Washington, D. C., where they will be united in

The young couple have the best wishes of the community. There is just the slightest tinge of romance in connection with the affair, although the principal reason for the trip to Washington is supposed to be their wish to have the ceremony performed Rev. N. C. Nailer, a former pastor of the Jackson Street Baptist church. At any rate, we will welcome them on by devoting attention to it. The employes of the Scrauton Gas and Water company this week began to erect fire hydrants in the upper end of the Nine-teenth and Twentieth wards at spots where, no one will deny, they were sally needed. Heretofore when a fire would break out it took sometimes the combined lengths of hose of two companies to reach the burning building from the nearest water plus.

The street commissioner would not waste his time
