THE TRIBUNE HAS A LARGER BONA FIDE CIRCULATION AMONG SCRANTON BUSINESS MEN THAN ANY OTHER MORNING PAPER

FOUR MINERS' SUDDEN AND AWFUL DEATH

In the Northwest Colliery of Simpson & Watkins.

CRUSHED BENEATH TONS OF ROCK

Fatal and Horrible Embrace Came Without Warning and Cut Off the Only Hope of Escape.—The Fall is Ten Feet Wide, Six Feet High and Extends Sixty Feet Along the Gangway to Within Forty Feet of the Facing.—The Presence of Superintendent Crawford, H. P. Simpson, a Corps of the Company's Engineers and Many Willing Miners Averted Nothing Toward the Release of the Men.

From a Staff Correspondent.
CARBONDALE, Pa., Sept. 27.—The lives of four men, two miners and two laborers, were without warning crushed out in the Northwest colliery of Simpson & Watkins, at Simpson, three miles above this city, at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Their mangled remains, as near as can be ascertained, lie beneath a fall of rock which is ten feet wide, six feet high, and extends for at least sixty feet in the gangway off from the third slope of the mine.

Superintendent Crawford of the catastrophe and came here at once, Harry P. Simpson with three of the company's engineers and a Tribune reporter arrived on the train leaving Scranton at 7:30 o'clock. Investigation by Mine Foreman White and Superintendent Crawford, however, showed that not even a remote possibility remained of finding the men alive, and after seeing the scene of the tragedy miners had been set at work clearing the gangway the Scranton party returned shortly before midnight.

The killed are:
WILLIAM B. MITCHELL, Englishman, miner, aged 41 years, leaves a wife and six children.
JOHN J. FANNING, Irish-Weisman, miner, aged 43 years, single.
ANDREW CLAFKINSKY, Hungarian, laborer, aged 33 years, single.
GEORGE BARRY, Hungarian, laborer, aged 28 years, single.

WILTS' MIRACULOUS ESCAPE

Tug Wilt, a driver, was the only witness of the horror, and his escape seems almost miraculous. He was sitting alongside the track waiting for a car to be loaded by the three men, when, without warning, the roof of the gangway fell with a deafening crash within three feet of him.

Without halting, he ran to the head of the slope, followed by a track layer and two miners who were working in the vicinity and gave the alarm.

THE FALL EXAMINED

H. P. Simpson, three of the company's engineers and THE TRIBUNE reporter, under a heavy sky, entered the mouth of the upper slope at 9:15 o'clock tonight. Superintendent Crawford was met on the second lift and returned with the party to the gangway off the third slope in what is known as the Upper Carbonade vein.

About six feet above the fall appears a narrow seam of coal, possibly three inches thick. The rock which fell between this seam and the vein is what is known as a sand slate or fire clay. A slant has possibly been uncovered and the crack followed. Judging from practical mining indications it will occupy five or six days to remove the mass. It is not improbable that the four bodies will be recovered in less than that time.

As soon as Mr. Crawford learned of the accident he wired Mine Inspector Roderick, of the Second District, who was engaged on business at Wilkes-Barre. He reached Carbondale at 10:30 o'clock this evening. The news of the STORM CONTINUES.

The Tropical Gale Is Met by a "High" from Nova Scotia.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 27.—There is a conflict between the two atmospheric forces that has operated to retard somewhat the advance of the West Indies hurricane, and the conflict between the elements and the telegraph companies has resulted so disastrously to the latter as to make it difficult for the weather bureau to get accurate information from the vicinity of the storm center.

For two days a "high" has been lingering over Nova Scotia, and when yesterday's reports were made up the indications were that this "high" acting as it does like a barrier to the forward movement of the southern storm, would pass off and leave an undisturbed field to this product of the tropical sea. When this morning's report, however, reached the weather bureau, it was found that this Nova Scotia condition had remained absolutely stationary and until that begins to move the southern storm cannot make much headway north.

At noon the steady fall of the barometer indicated that this disagreeable visitor had begun to stir itself afresh, so that by midnight the country in the vicinity of Washington and Baltimore will feel its presence and storm cannot make much headway north. At noon the steady fall of the barometer indicated that this disagreeable visitor had begun to stir itself afresh, so that by midnight the country in the vicinity of Washington and Baltimore will feel its presence and storm cannot make much headway north.

SHORTLIDGE TRIAL.

The Wife Murderer Is Acquitted on the Ground of Insanity by the Jury.

MEDIA, Pa., Sept. 27.—The trial of Professor S. C. Shortlidge, for the murder of his wife, was resumed this morning. The defense was begun to show its side of the case and as the fact of the shooting is not in dispute, the trial has resolved itself into a contest between the medical men.

Those associated with the professor in business and social life have been called to show that his peculiar actions and general demeanor prior to the tragedy, convinced them that he was of unsound mind. Most of those who testified today were physicians who examined him during his illness and in jail.

Dr. W. T. Dickson, who was called in to examine the prisoner on Jan. 15 to determine whether or not he was insane, testified that he found him lying on the floor partly dressed and in a demented condition of mind.

Dr. D. W. Jeffers, one of the examiners appointed by the court to examine the prisoner, Dr. J. L. Forwood and Dr. Mills, of Philadelphia, also testified. The former found the defendant with dilated eyes and pupils 100. His arteries were like those of an aged man and he was suffering with melancholia—a form of insanity.

Dr. D. M. Richardson, in charge of the male department at the North-western Insane asylum, gave a detailed statement of the patient's condition when he arrived and while confined at the institution, the substance of which was that Professor Shortlidge was insane at the time of the shooting and when admitted to the asylum.

The testimony of the defense closed, the commonwealth presented its expert on insanity, Dr. Chapin, of Philadelphia, did not think it had been established that Shortlidge was insane. His condition herebefore was of a man depressed. He did not believe that the professor had a delusion. He believed he had a knowledge of his acts and was not legally insane, or entirely irresponsible for what he did. His condition, he thought, when he saw him, might have been caused by the excessive use of cocaine or some other drug.

M'COOLICK CONVICTED.

Mill Creek Child Murderer Guilty in Second Degree.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Sept. 27.—The jury in the case of John McCoolick, who was on trial since Monday for the murder of a child at Mill Creek in March last, returned a verdict this afternoon of murder in the second degree.

The trial was protracted and attracted much attention owing to the peculiar circumstances connected with the case. The extreme penalty is twelve years. The general opinion is he should have been found guilty of murder in the first degree.

THE CAPTURE OF HOWGATE

After a Chase of Thirteen Years the Fugitive Is Run to the Earth.

WAS POSING AS A BOOK DEALER

Captain Henry Howgate, of Washington, Who Owes the Government $370,000, and Who Disappeared Thirteen Years Ago, Is Captured by Detective Drummond—Now a Broken Down Old Man—Is Held in $20,000 Bail.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Captain HENRY HOWGATE, formerly chief of the weather bureau in Washington, and who since the winter of 1881, has been today in this city by Detective A. L. Drummond, acting for J. Sterling Morton, secretary of agriculture, at Washington.

Howgate was not only chief but disbursing officer of the weather bureau in second hand books. His place in the winter of 1881, was arrested today in this city by Detective A. L. Drummond, acting for J. Sterling Morton, secretary of agriculture, at Washington.

Howgate was when he fled from Washington in 1881 a well-to-do man in the prime of life. He is now 60 years old, bent and broken, with gray hair and beard.

Though the United States officers have been hunting all over the United States for him he has been living quietly here in New York city as a dealer in second hand books. His place of business was No. 80 Fourth avenue in a basement. He has had cards printed bearing the name of "Harry Williams" and by that name he has for years been known to the book trade of this city.

DRUMMOND'S LONG CHASE.

Detective Drummond, who for many years was in the United States secret service, has been in correspondence for a long time with Attorney General Olney with reference to the hunt for Howgate. Drummond went over to the Pacific coast to find the fugitive. In 1887 Drummond learned that Howgate's daughter lived in Newburyport, Mass., and he went there and lived several months in the hope that Howgate would visit his daughter.

Four months ago Drummond learned that Howgate was in the book business in this city at Brooklyn. A systematic hunt of all the book stores in the two cities was made.

A week ago Drummond adopted the plan of hunting book sales auction rooms. It was a happy thought. A clerk from the war department in Washington, who knew Howgate, made the rounds of the book auction sales every day. On Monday the clerk saw him enter an auction room on Broadway near Tenth street. The clerk was not certain, however, as Howgate had changed from a man weighing upwards of 190 pounds, he had grown to be 135 and had in 1890 had a beard. The clerk went to the book store and on Monday entered into conversation with Howgate. From his manner of speaking the clerk was certain that he stood before the fugitive at last.

Drummond took the midnight train for Washington on Tuesday and yesterday got a bench warrant and returned this morning. When Howgate was arrested he remarked quietly, "I know when I am beaten." Howgate was taken before United States Commissioner Alexander and arraigned on two indictments on the nonchalant charge made in the Washington indictments in 1879 and held in $20,000 bail.

Howgate admitted his identity and said he could not give bail and he was taken to Ludlow street jail pending advices from Washington.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Captain Henry Howgate, who was arrested in New York today, was, up to the time of his disappearance thirteen years ago, a well known man in this city. He was a volunteer officer during the war and after the volunteer army was disbanded was appointed a lieutenant in the regular army and assigned to duty in the signal corps, to which was given the duty of organizing the weather bureau.

General A. J. Meyer was in charge of the bureau and Howgate was executive officer and had charge of the details of the office, including contracts and disbursements. He dealt largely in real estate, owned a steam yacht and became quite prominent. In 1881, having some disclosures as to a shortage in the accounts of the office, Howgate was displaced, and an investigation showed what were alleged to be enormous frauds through which the government had lost heavily. Howgate was arrested and released on heavy bonds. In a short time his bondsmen became uneasy and surrendered him. He was placed in jail to await trial.

Upon the plea that certain papers in his house were necessary to his defense, a marshal accompanied him to his residence and took a seat in the hall, while Howgate went up stairs to make a change of clothing and secure the documents so much needed. After a time, the marshal not hearing any one up stairs, became suspicious and made a search for his prisoner, but he was gone; and since that day, thirteen years ago, no word has been heard from him. The war department offered a reward for his arrest, but it was withdrawn after some years. The government seized everything which could be found belonging to Howgate, including real estate, which was all sold, the proceeds being used in liquidating the claim held against him by the government as far as they would go. Some of his creditors suffered severely by his collapse.

GAYNOR, OF SCRANTON.

Chosen Grand Second Vice President at Convention of Grand Council of Young Men's Institute.

Scranton, Sept. 27.—At today's meeting of the grand council of Young Men's Institute, James Gaynor, of Scranton, Pa., was elected grand second vice president.

The greater part of yesterday was spent in hearing the report of the committee on credentials, and in lively discussion consequent upon the committee's placing before the convention the case of the Charles Carroll council, No. 202, of Covington, which had been suspended in July by Bishop Maes on account of its having sold liquor at one of its picnics. The council was to be out of the order until Sept. 30, and at this time had not expired it was deemed improper for the delegates to be admitted. When the committee had presented the case a motion was made to admit the delegates to the floor, but the majority ruled the motion out of order. A vote was taken on the ruling and the chair reversed.

The motion was then put for a vote and the delegates of the suspended council were refused admission. This conclusion was reached shortly after 12 o'clock, when it was about time to adjourn. Among the speakers were W. D. Sexton of Cincinnati; Judge J. H. Reeves of Lebanon, Ky., and State Senator M. F. Corcoran, of Ohio.

The delegates were tendered a banquet last night at the Lonsville Hotel. The cost was $100.00. The hostmaster was James A. Mulligan.

VERDICT FOR THOMAS RICH.

Jury Allowed Him $575 for the Injuries He Sustained.

The jury in the case of Thomas Rich against the Delaware and Hudson Canal company, which retired Wednesday afternoon at 3:30, did not agree upon a verdict until noon yesterday. The jury allowed $575 to the plaintiff for the injuries he sustained.

The jury in the case of Miss Winifred Barrett against the borough of Elkhart retired at noon yesterday and did not agree upon a verdict until 11:30 and last night.

Before Judge Edwards the Burr-Kase Stone suit was on trial all day. When court adjourned law points were being argued. The case will go to the jury today.

Sheriff's Deeds Acknowledged.

Sheriff's deeds were acknowledged yesterday in open court to James D. Mason and T. J. Snowden, city of Scranton, C. J. Gilmore, Hannah Hestel, George C. Griswald and others. J. Alton Davis, Anthracite Building and Loan association, city of Scranton; John Dougherty, William Brennan, H. L. Taylor, W. R. Lewis, D. W. Carpenter and Charles Stone. These deeds are for properties recently sold by the sheriff. Other deeds will be acknowledged next Thursday.

Powell Has Recovered.

On July 6 Vassar Powell was committed to the county jail charged with making threats. He soon thereafter became insane and was removed to the insane department of the Hillside home. Yesterday a certificate was presented to Judge Archibald setting forth that Powell had recovered and an order was made for his return to the county jail.

Threw His Wife Out.

Patrick Brady, of Cornhill street, was arrested on complaint of his wife, who alleged that her loyal partner threw her over their threshold. Mr. Brady paid $3 for his little diversion and was bound in $500 to keep the peace.

Getting Headquarters Ready.

The Democratic county committee has secured rooms on the second floor of the Gas and Water building at 115 Wyoming avenue for headquarters. Furniture was being moved in yesterday.

Marriage Licenses Granted.

The following received marriage licenses from Clerk of the Courts: Thomas yesterday; Richard J. Hoaks and Miriam Jonathan, in Wilkes-Barre; Anthony J. Mulberg of Scranton and Annie E. McPherson of Dunmore; George Alfred Goodenough and Lizzie C. Kitzmiller, Scranton.

LIEUT. PEARY'S BILL OF FARE

Members of His Party Gave Vent to Their Pent Up Wrath.

THE BOILED SEAL WAS TOO RICH

Mrs. Peary's Talk in Reference to the North Sea Delicacies Arouses the Ire of the Returned Explorers. They Claim That Peary was a Believer in Red Tape and Wanted to "Hog" All the Glory.—The Cornmeal Mush was Sprinkled Too Thinly With Sugar—Woman Voted a Nuisance in the Arctic Regions.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 27.—The interview sent out from Washington with Mrs. Peary in which she expressed surprise that any member of the expedition to Greenland under her husband's leadership should have found fault with the quantity or quality of the food, excited the ire of the dissatisfied members of the party and they vented their feelings somewhat freely today.

They considered themselves released from their pledge of silence to Peary by Mrs. Peary giving an interview, and they were in favor of answering her. However, after some further talk among themselves, they decided to await any further disclosure by Mrs. Peary before they laid their case before the public.

Despite the decision not to make a joint statement in conversation one of the members of the party could not prevent his feelings of bitterness toward Peary from giving itself utterance. He pointed out to the members of the expedition went with Peary with the understanding that they were to remain two years. Their experience of his methods for a single year sufficed them, and that experience accounts for their coming back to the Falcon. They found that everything was red tape and that as regards glory, their commander wanted "to hog" it all. The lieutenant and his wife had their own quarters and every comfort obtainable; the others had to forage for themselves. The fact of the matter is, the expedition was all Peary, and nobody else. Peary had given orders, and the expedition was to stay two years, but when the auxiliary expedition arrived he asked for volunteers to remain in Greenland with him. Every soul of them, except his servant, decided to come home, first, because there was not enough food, and, chiefly, because they didn't want another year of red tape and autocracy.

PRIVATE SECRETARY'S STORY.

W. T. Swain, who was one of the party and went out with Peary as his private secretary, said: "We are under no contract with Peary, as regards dissatisfaction with his management. The only agreement that exists was made by us on board ship, while we were returning to Philadelphia. We then considered that we were to be paid nothing unless Mrs. Peary opened her lips. This I see she did yesterday. I consider myself at perfect liberty to speak. As for my contract with Peary, it has been broken by him repeatedly during the course of the expedition. He agreed that we were to be paid as gentlemen. 'For one thing, I can say that Lieutenant Peary himself certainly did not act as a gentleman among gentlemen. Mrs. Peary, I see, has something to say about the food. Let me give you our menu during the last two months of our stay, while we were on the ice. We were to be served with white bread and coffee. On Sunday evening we had as a special treat one can of tomatoes among the party. 'What Peary and his wife had we don't know. They lived apart, and not one of us was ever during the whole time invited to their table. Peary treated us to a lot of red tape and a lot of rules that had serious consequences sometimes. I am lame on account of it. He would order some of us to go on a seventy-five mile sledge journey to procure food for his dogs, and only give us an hour's running, when half a day could have been secured. The hour did not suffice to dry our fur stockings and we ran the risk of frozen feet. My toe, which I am lame, was frozen in just that way. 'And one thing I can add, no Arctic expedition can ever succeed which takes a woman along to hamper it.'"

THERE IS NO JUSTICE.

Such was the Wall of John Hoban at the Mayor's Office.

Private Secretary Mark K. Edgar, of the mayor's office, was the recipient of a call from John Hoban, of Mary street, yesterday afternoon. Mr. Hoban was looking for Mayor Connel and wanted to relate to him a little tale of woe.

On Monday the boring that supplies the larder for the little chert in Hoban's domicile was like the proverbial letter that never came. The oldest boy was delegated to search the pasture fields at Leggetts' creek for the animal. His search brought him to the pond kept by one Uriah McDowell—the Marvin shaft, and there the soft-eyed creature was a prisoner. The cow had been fined $3.40 for vagrancy, which the farmer was not able to pay.

Hoban thought that the mayor would help him out of his trouble, but he was informed that McDowell is an official poundmaster and the fine would have to be paid. The news did not sweeten Mr. Hoban's temper, and he went his way declaring that the blind goddess is a "fake."

LOVLASS-GREEN WEDDINGS.

Ceremony Performed at the Home of the Bride on Fifth Avenue.

James C. Lovlass and Miss Luey A. Green, both of this city, were married yesterday by Rev. Warren G. Partridge at the parsonage. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride, 115 Fifth avenue. They left on the 3:50 train on a tour to New York, Philadelphia and Boston.

James M. Houtman was best man and Miss Kitty Delaney bridesmaid. They were recipients of many useful presents.

DIED FROM HIS INJURIES.

Bartley Ambroch, of Friesburg, Run Over by Cars.

Yesterday Bartley Ambroch, a Polish boy, 16 years old, working in the Friesburg mines of Jermay & Co., was received at the Lackawanna hospital. His leg was terribly crushed at the hip and he lingered but a few hours when death set in.

A trip of ears jumped the track and squeezed him against the pillar.

WILSON HONORED.

Toasted by People Who Have Been Benefited at the Expense of American Labor.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—At the Hotel Metropole this evening an elaborate and largely attended dinner was given by the chamber of commerce to Representative William L. Wilson, of West Virginia. Mr. Wilson's speech was the event of the evening.

After acknowledging the honor conferred upon him and referring to the events of the long struggle to overthrow protection, Mr. Wilson said: "All the people say that our system was generating a brood of monopolists so powerful as to defy the law and which used part of the wealth they drew from sharing in the power of taxation, to increase their privileges, do away with and corrupt legislation. I am quite sure that our protective policy has already served to promote the trade of other nations and if continued it will still further promote such trade and pre-eminently our own."

Standing before you a representative of those who are trying for a freer commercial policy from the United States, I fear I cannot ask you to refrain from adoption, except as you may prefer right principles to selfish advantages.

Protection has seen our voluntary withdrawal from the seas and from the neutral markets. Our protectionists have been building defenses to keep you and other nations from competing with us in our own markets. The tariff reforms are breaking down these fences. Let us compete in all the markets of the world. Not only is our production of cotton and food products growing more rapidly than our consumption, but we have today a manufacturing plant which, urged to its full capacity, can in six months fully meet our demand for a year.

AUTOCRAT OF THE BREAKFAST TABLE.

Elm Park Church Epworth Leaguers Honor Him.

Last night at the Elm Park church the Epworth League honored, with a fascinating literary and musical programme, the memory of the only surviving poet of New England, Oliver Wendell Holmes, in deference to his pure life of 83 years of usefulness.

The literary part of the programme consisted exclusively of extracts from the poems of Holmes. Miss Lillian Milnes' magnetic reproduction of "The Old Man's Dream" was a rich declamatory treat. Every number was well rendered and showed care and training in the preparation.

H. H. Biedeman wrote a letter to the poet announcing the purpose of the Epworth league and received the following reply written and signed in the poet's own hand writing:

DEAR SIR:—Please accept my thanks for your kind letter. It gives me much pleasure to hear of the proposed treatment of my literary labors at the meeting of the Epworth league, and I wish all success to the league in its praiseworthy objects.

Very truly yours,
OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES.

MOODY MISSION WORK.

Messrs. Weeden at the Y. M. C. A. Rooms Last Night.

Professor W. Weeden and W. Weeden sang at the Young Men's Christian Association rooms last evening, and in the dust, "Nearer My God to Thee," electrified their large audience with the magnificent blending of their voices.

Both musicians have very powerful voices, but the ease with which they sing the piano-forte passages is wonderful.

Professor Weeden made a pathetic appeal for the prayers of his audience for his son. He said that it was the happiest day of his life and that there could be no happier man in the world. Eight months ago his son was converted, and as his special mission was to save the souls of young men he beseeched the prayers of the young men of Scranton in his behalf.

Mr. Weeden, jr., having sung Tallie Morgan's new song, "Dare to Say No," Professor Weeden stated that he had recently completed a new volume, but he was so impressed with Tallie Morgan's music that he would cut out six of the tunes in the new book to make space for Mr. Morgan's music.

Assistant Assessors Instructed.

The recently appointed assistant assessors met last evening with the board of city assessors and received their instructions concerning the manner in which they shall make the assessment in the several wards. They were particularly urged to make an accurate report of the number of dogs, horses, etc. in each ward.
