"Our protectionists have been building defenses to keep you and other nations from competing with us in our home markets. The tariff reformers are breaking down these defenses."—William L. Wilson, author of the Wilson tariff bill, to the London chamber of commerce.

The One Remedy.

The light is breaking. Even in independent circles the fact is gaining recognition that the true road to national prosperity does not necessarily lie through the valley of the shadow of industrial death. When, in 1857, speaking in Boston, Mr. Blaine drew that famous picture of his, depicting the future of the country under the then seemingly improbable event of complete Democratic supremacy, there were many persons who scouted it as the imagining of a mind diseased. The picture, it will be remembered, was as follows:

"I love my country and my countrymen. I am an American and rejoice every day of my life that I am. I enjoy the general prosperity of my country, and know that the workmen of this land are the best clothed of any laborers on the face of the earth. Many of them have homes of their own. They are surrounded by all the comforts and many of the luxuries of life. I shudder, however, at the thought that the time must come when all this will be changed, when the general prosperity of the country will be destroyed, when the great body of workmen in this land, who are now so prosperous, will hear their wives and children cry for bread. That day must come when the great factories and manufacturing establishments of this land will shut down and there will be the silence of the tomb. And the reason why it must be so is this: The great southern wing of the Democratic party are determined to establish the doctrine of free trade in this land. They will be assisted by their northern allies. The fight is now on. There is a great body of visionary, but educated men, who are employed day by day in writing free trade essays and arguments in favor of that doctrine, which find their way into every Democratic newspaper. In the thought of the great body of our people have never experienced, themselves, the sufferings which always result when the protective principles are laid aside. Poisoned by the thought of the wild statements of these writers and the demagogic appeals of Democratic speakers, the result will be that, in the very near future, those forces which are now working will be strong enough to defeat at the polls the party advocating the doctrine of protection. It does not doubtably follow that uncertainty and doubt will ensue. The business men of the country, fearing the destruction, will decline to engage in business; consequently, mills will shut down and the workmen will be thrown out of employment. The people will then see, as we have never seen before, that they cannot be prosperous and have work while this principle is threatened. In the midst of this suffering they will learn that the only way that they can be prosperous and happy is to vote for the party that will build up the industries by which they have gained a livelihood, because they can see clearly that when a manufactory is shut down there is no demand for the thing which they have, to sell, and that is their labor.

Yet how true has been the fulfillment! Even the Washington Post, once a bitter enemy of Mr. Blaine, admits its force, and says: "None of the tariff-reformers of that day dreamed in his philosophy of such crazy experiments as are now discussed and advocated. No prominent Democrat of that day dreamed of such extreme and revolutionary expedients as, last winter, found expression in the Wilson bill. Even the measure, in its present shape, toned down by the senate amendments which have been denounced as treacherous, would then have been regarded with wonder and alarm. But Mr. Blaine's prophetic vision has been realized, nevertheless. Demagogues and visionaries have come to the front with their reckless chatter and their grotesque rhodomontade until the nation is a prey to fear. Capital is terrified, confidence chilled, and wise men wait for the issue of this amazing paroxysm. The picture drawn by Mr. Blaine in 1857, and accepted then as a mere burst of eloquence and a trick of metaphor, is now before us, a stern and chill reality. If he were alive today he could not draw it with a firmer hand in truer lines or with more startling color."

It remains for the individual voter to help in the unraveling of this free trade tangle, by voting the straight Republican ticket.

IN THE matter of absenteeism, Edward Merrifield will take the prize, because he will be absent from the Fifty-fourth congress all the time.

THE WORKINGMAN, the business man and the professional man have no better friend than honest, open-hearted John R. Jones, candidate for district attorney. Fitted for the office in every way, there is no reason why John R. Jones should not receive a majority that will give local free traders additional evidence that this is an off year for Democracy in any form.

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATES are entitled to some credit, any way. It must require considerable nerve for one to even admit that he is a Democrat this year.

Small Potatoes. We appreciate thoroughly the anxiety of the Democratic party to change the subject this fall away from its record, but we fear that the public will not accommodate it. The Democratic party was entrusted with complete control of the government, two years ago, by a majority larger than that for a long time previously enjoyed by an American political party. It obtained this extraordinary evidence of popular favor by promising, before election, to do great things for the country.

It promised the wool grower higher prices for the fleeces from his flock—and it gave him free wool. It promised the wheat grower of the Northwest a dollar per bushel for his wheat—and it gave him a market price at which it is cheaper to grind the wheat whole and feed it to horses, cattle and hogs than to ship it to the elevator.

It promised the laboring man increased employment at higher wages—and it gave him a commercial panic in which 3,000,000 able-bodied men had no work and no wages.

It promised economical administration of the national finances—and it gave such a control of affairs as sent the secretary of the treasury scurrying to Wall street to sell $50,000,000 of new bonds, which Democracy has added to the national debt.

It promised civil service reform—and it has loaded the departments at Washington up with the sons of Democratic congressmen and blood relation recipients of partisan favor.

It promised honest revision of the pension rolls, to the end that fraudulent pensioners might be stricken off—and it gave such a supervision of this department that the Grand Army of the Republic, in national encampment assembled, had to protest against Confederate official insults, snubs, slights and humiliations.

It promised relief from the extortions of giant corporate combinations of capital—and it sold itself out, body, soul and breeches, to the sugar trust and the whisky trust, and came within an ace of completing a deal with the Nova Scotian soft coal trust.

It promised a progressive and enlightened administration of the affairs of this nation, in the interest of the masses against the classes, free from sectionalism or race prejudice and strongly grounded in the immortal principles of the American constitution—and it gave such a jumble of sectional hatred, inconsistency, inequality of imposed burdens and utter lack of breadth or depth that within a year the country was in the throes of a monetary stringency which has, up to date, cost us more, in the aggregate, than the entire cost of the civil war, and which is not yet ended.

Yet, with all this ignorance and havoc in its wake, the Democratic party in this vicinity has the sublime audacity to request the public not to listen to tariff talk, or to talk about pensions, civil service reform or any other national issues, but to consider how many times Joseph A. Scranton responded to schoolboy roll-calls, or what this, that or the other local paper two or three years ago said of individual Republicans. The whole Democratic campaign, apparently, rests upon file-searching and scrap-book reminiscences. As to the present crisis in business and the legislative needs of the future, the party to all appearances knows nothing and cares nothing. All that it knows is that it has a furious appetite for public office, and in order to gratify that, is willing to descend to any depths.

The Democratic party in Lackawanna county is getting to be, as the Yankee says, "mighty small potatoes," and at next month's harvest will be found to be "few in a hill."

MANY Republican readers of THE TRIBUNE, perhaps, may not be personally acquainted with all of the candidates for the legislature, John R. Farr, Alex. T. Connell, Frank J. Grover and Charles P. O'Malley. The fact that they have been chosen by the party of protection and prosperity to represent the people of this section in the body of Pennsylvania lawmakers should be introduction enough for any true Republican. Confidence in the ability of Republican officials is gaining ground daily in these times of tribulation and disaster occasioned by Democratic incompetency.

REALIZING the defeat of Chairman Wilson in a Democratic district would be accepted by the country as an overwhelming repudiation of the administration, Democrats are literally dumping money into the district. Forced assessment on office-holders has supplied $30,000, which has already been distributed, and Secretary La Fayette, of the Republican committee, claims to have knowledge that $20,000 more is on its way. It will, however, take more than money to bolster up the free trade cause. It is doomed, whether Wilson go down in the wreckage with the rest of the wreckers, or whether he escape by the traditional Southern means of bribery, intimidation and false counting.

THIS IS HOW the "Democratic Party Reform Organization," of New York—composed of men deluded with the hallucination that the Democracy of New York is worth reforming—lashes David B. Hill:

We denounce the so-called Democratic senator, again a candidate for governor, who is a Democrat when Democracy means himself, who, in the senate of the United States, has opposed the Democratic president, voted against the paramount principle of the Democratic platform, excluded himself from the councils of the Democratic party, and demeaned the Democratic state of New York; whose political career has been a long and corrupt one; who has prostituted an able intellect to evil ends; who planned and directed the political crime rebeked in 1893 by a majority of one hundred thousand; who is the arch-enemy of good government and real reform.

Yet a crowd which thus bolts Hill absolutely seems to relish Grover Cleveland. Some people have insurmountable tastes.

CANDIDATE CHARLES HURSTER needs no commendation from the press at this time. There seems no question of his election. Voters are urged, however, to make his majority so marked that it will have its effect with others in burying the Democracy entirely out of sight.

CONGRESSMAN REILLY, of the Pottsville district, writes to the Democratic national committee at Washington that he "will not have any more difficulty in being elected this fall than he had in 1892," but the voters of that live industrial section respectfully beg leave to differ from him.

Too MUCH care cannot be exercised in the selection of a candidate for the office of jury commissioner. The importance of this office in the interest of law and order is scarcely realized. T. J. Matthews is a man who will do his duty as jury commissioner. Remember this at the polls.

TAMMANY'S ATTEMPT to clothe villainy with the mantle of respectability by the nomination of Philanthropist Nathan Straus for Mayor will not succeed. There are some jokes that are entirely too bold and ghastly.

CANDIDATE JAMES C. VAUGHAN is eminently fitted for the office of state senator. He will look after the welfare of his constituents and can be trusted to cast his vote properly for United States senator.

THE GLORY connected with Democratic leadership this year is very much of the order of that which is attached to the farmer who allows his land to be over-run with Canada thistles.

POLITICAL NOTES.

Charles Miller, a wealthy citizen of Franklin, Pa., thinks the situation in the Twenty-sixth district is peculiar. Mr. Sibbey "does not even live in the district, but the people seemed determined to have him represent them in the house. They have told him that he need not turn his hand towards securing his re-election, if he needs not even come into the district during the campaign. It certainly is a unique condition and almost without parallel in American politics. He was elected before in a district that had over 5,000 Republican majority and beat his Republican opponent over 3,000 votes. My belief is that he can duplicate that record and that it would be no surprise if he did better. He is a man of the people, a Democrat in the broadest and best sense of the word; one who believes in the rights of the people, the burdens of the government instead of the party, a patriot and not a partisan, as practical as he is philanthropic, and as free from the taint of demagoguery as any man that breathes the air of heaven." This view of Mr. Sibbey is unique. Republicans will take it with a grain of discount.

The Washington Post thinks the platform of Massachusetts Republicans is too good to be true. It says: "The dream-republic of Plato, the Happy Valley of Basileus, Sancho Panza's ideal government of Larrañaga—none of these is to be compared with it for the smallest fraction of a moment. The angels themselves could collect upon that platform and sing their very sweetest songs. It reads like some very earnest and like some magnificent Gregorian chant, like some ecstatic cry of jubilation. It should be set to music and sung to an accompaniment of harp by winged seraphim wearing halos and sitting on their chairs on rose mist." The Post is inclined to be fony.

A significant fact in Democracy's Gibraltar district of the Ninth, is the announcement of the Kutztown Journal, here-for a staunch Democratic sheet, that it will support Dr. J. S. Trexler, the Republican nominee. Dr. Trexler may not be elected, but from the increasing signs of popular favor which his strong candidacy is eliciting it is fair to judge that he will let his opponent know he was in the fight.

Senator Hill, when asked about the report from Washington that he had resigned his seat in the United States senate, and that his resignation was now in the hands of Governor Flower, said: "It is not true. I have not resigned from the senate. If I had any news of that kind to give out I should give it out here, and not in Washington."

Senator Sherman, the senior statesman of the Republican party and the Nestor of the legislature in the First Luzerne district, the Wilkes-Barre Leader guesses that The Tribune "doesn't know Greiner." We may be a trifle shy in our acquaintance with this gentleman, but we do know the political temper of the people this year.

Senator Cameron, of Pennsylvania, says the Washington Post, is evidently attending to the grass upon his presidential lawn. Illinois is flooded with documents on free silver. They bear his frank and their appearance is causing any amount of gossip.

There will be a Republican rally in the Central Hotel at Pottsville, Pa., on Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock. There will be several prominent speakers present. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

UNHAPPY MUGWUMP. Rochester Democrat and Chronicle. Harper's Weekly is in a most pitiable condition. It can see nothing but bad in the two tickets before the people and it groans and moans fairly burden the air. After mature and fearful consideration, however, it concludes that the Democratic ticket is the worse and more distinctly advises its readers to vote for Morton. Nothing less than a bath of rose water will refresh the discouraged Weekly.

THE FINANCIAL SIDE.

Governor McKinley. When Mr. Arthur took the office of president he found in the treasury a surplus of $170,000,000. When Mr. Cleveland was inaugurated he found $153,000,000. When Mr. Harrison was inaugurated he found $184,000,000 in the treasury. President Harrison had $30,000,000 more than President Cleveland to start with in 1893, but this was because President Harrison, instead of hoarding money in the treasury and in pet banks, paid off the obligations of the government and reduced the public debt by more than $250,000,000. Mr. Cleveland, during his first term, paid $143,000,000 of the public debt, but he refused to continue to pay it, keeping it in favored banks since resolution of congress was forced to pay it out. He did not pay as much of the public debt during his first term by $30,000,000 as Harrison did. Had he done so, he would not have left as much in the treasury for Harrison's administration by $30,000,000 as Mr. Harrison left for Mr. Cleveland at the beginning of his second term. So great a Democratic editor as Mr. Henry Watterson of the Louisville Courier-Journal has said that if Mr. Cleveland's second term had been his first term he would never have had a second term.

Some one cried out: "How much debt has been paid since the last inauguration?" "The debt has been the other way," replied Mayor McKinley. "Instead of paying off any of the national debt the present administration has been compelled to borrow $50,000,000 to pay the running expenses of the government, and has borrowed by reason of the exigencies of the treasury to encroach upon the gold reserve, which has never been encroached upon since the inauguration of President Harrison, but which has been encroached upon by $40,000,000 to $48,000,000 during this administration. So there is $53,000,000 of borrowed money, or $48,000,000 taken out of the treasury, which Mr. Cleveland in his first inaugural speech, said it would be the violation of the constitution to touch."

AUTUMN.

Ladies fair, the end is near; Soon will he upon its bier, Every lovely blossom here, Possess'ed with which the year Tries to hide her swift decay, Now from us must pass away, And in death he laid aside, Zinnias, flashing fire's bright hue; Marigolds, whose buds pursue Golden Sol from east to west; Lilies, of all blossoms best, For the dying season's shroud; Dahlias, set in order prim, Aster loaded to the brim, With the weight of tears washed; Hollyhocks, pink, white and red; Dainty colums wreathed with bloom; Violets of rare perfume; Roses, pale, and wan, Yet so sweet, all have gone!
