SCRANTON, OCTOBER 26, 1894.

REPUBLICAN TICKET.

State. Governor, D. H. HASTINGS; Auditor-General, WALTER LYON; Comptroller, JOHN H. THOMAS; District Attorney, JOHN R. JONES; Recorder of Deeds, CHAS. H. HESTER; Prothonotary, C. E. PLYOR; Register of Wills, WM. S. HOPKINS; Jury Commissioner, T. J. MATTHEWS.

Scranton.

Twentieth District, JAMES C. VAUGHAN; Legislative. First District, JOHN R. FARR; Second District, ALEX. F. CONNELL; Third District, F. J. GROVER; Fourth District, CHAS. P. O'MALLEY.

THE SCRANTON OF TODAY.

Come and inspect our city. Elevation above the tide, 740 feet. Extremely healthy. Estimated population, 1894, 103,000. Registered voters, 25,000. Value of school property, $750,000. Number of school children, 12,000. Average amount of bank deposits, $10,000,000. It's the metropolis of northeastern Pennsylvania. Can produce electric power cheaper than Niagara. No better point in the United States than this to establish new industries. See how we grow: Population in 1870, 35,000; Population in 1880, 55,000; Population in 1890, 75,000; Population in 1894 (estimated), 103,000. And the end is not yet.

Journalistic sewer scrapers from the slums of the big cities cannot lie down the reputations of upright Scranton business men; and in trying to do this they're only wasting their borrowed money and misused time.

Wants the War to Go On.

Ex-Congressman Amerman was in Harrisburg Thursday, and there poured this installment of moonshine into the ears of a Patriot reporter: "The Democrats of Lackawanna county are making such a campaign as they never make, except in a presidential year, and the chances are the entire ticket will be elected. Meetings are being held all over the county and clubs have been organized to work for the success of our ticket. I sincerely believe that if the election for governor was held next April instead of next month the Democrats would carry the state. Business is becoming better and prosperity is speedily returning. But we must keep up the agitation for tariff reform if we expect to defeat the common enemy."

Can it be that the ex-congressman is jealous of "Protectionist" Edward Merrill? Or has he been sincerely converted to free trade? Those who want to "keep up" an "agitation" that has already cost the country more than $4,000,000,000 should not fail to vote the Democratic ticket.

The candidacy of Judge Archbald has reached a point where it is safe to remark that his reelection is assured. Those who think otherwise are simply unfamiliar with the feeling of the people.

It is a compliment to Scranton and a recognition of this community's growing importance that it has been selected as the site of the opening performance of Mrs. Langtry's forthcoming American tour. When it is considered that neither Philadelphia nor Pittsburgh is included in the list of this actress' bookings, although each sought to obtain dates, the incident takes on new importance. There are some persons who do not grow enthusiastic over Mrs. Langtry's morals; but they will at least admit that Scranton is well advertised in its selection for "first night" honors.

We fear that the Honorable M. T. Burke got into the free text-book band wagon a few weeks too late.

Scranton's Sewer Flusher.

When the bushwacking editor of the Scranton Times shall have exhausted its large fund of billingsgate in reference to The Tribune—in which process we desire to give him full swing, conscious that it amuses him and doesn't hurt us—we will take the liberty to again inform him that his lie about Frank H. Clemons has not been apologized for. If the editor of the Times has yet any remnant of decency in him, he will publish such an apology and discontinue the lie.

We do not wish to crowd him in this matter. He is busy flushing his campaign sewer; and would doubtless just present recent being called to the performance of a decent duty. For the present, therefore, we shall let him wallow, beast like, in abuse and slime. But when he shall have raked over his varied stock of lummery language and barroom epithets, the dollar-a-day lie will require correction, or else the bushwhacker's measure will be taken as that of a hopeless tough.

Representatives Burke and Flannery are the only two members of the last legislature from this vicinity who had the hardihood to vote against free text books for the children of the poor. Representative Flannery was manly enough to acknowledge what he had done, and another man was nominated in his stead. Representative Burke, by twisting and squirting, succeeded in twisting himself again on the Democratic legislative ticket; but he cannot deceive the voters at the polls.

It is perhaps a compliment to the Democratic bosses that they had to import men to do their lying for them.

The Philadelphia Record, Candidate Slingerly's paper, not only wants to ruin wages in the industrial east, but, as we ascertain from its comments on our recent interview with William Connell, it is also opposed to giving the west a chance. The hand of the free trader, like that of the Ishmaelite, seems to be raised against every other man and every other interest.

If Democratic promise were performance, dollar wheat would ride side by side with 50-cent wool.

An Indefatigable Champion of Local Progress.

When Colonel E. H. Ripple became mayor of Scranton, the city had a floating indebtedness of nearly $60,000. City orders were hawked about the streets subject in many instances to as high as 25 per cent. discount. The employees of the city, who received their pay in these orders, were glad to turn them into cash at 75 per cent. of their value. One of the first things that Frank H. Clemons did, as a member of common council, was to introduce an ordinance providing for the issuing of $130,000 in city bonds, of which $90,000 went to the extinguishment of the city's floating debt and $40,000 to the building fund which made possible Scranton's present magnificent municipal building. Today the financial condition of the Electric City is almost unequalled. The business of the city is conducted on a cash basis and its municipal bond is as good as a certified check.

The credit for this flattering condition of affairs is largely due to Frank H. Clemons, the present Republican candidate for sheriff. As an outgrowth of this prudent re-adjustment of the city's finances, we have today one of the finest city buildings in the state; the credit of the city is irrefragable among investors in municipal securities, and the city has been saved thousands of dollars in cancelled interest obligations. While this plan of readjustment owes parentage to Frank H. Clemons, it was not the only thing that he did to advance the reputation of Scranton from that of an overgrown village to that of an aggressive and progressive city. It was to Mr. Clemons' forethought that we owe the present superb system of electric street lighting, which is without question the best in the country. It was he who introduced the first ordinance to systematically light the city and it was largely through his energetic and alert advocacy that this ordinance was passed.

Mr. Clemons, more, perhaps, than any other man, is the person to whom belongs the credit for early perceiving and preparing for the municipal possibilities of the magnificent city which has grown up on the site of old-time Sluiceway Hollow.

During his long career in both branches of city councils he has ever stood for progress and enlarged facilities. He has introduced and successfully championed scores of ordinances authorizing new sewerage and new paving expenditures. He is the author of the measure which ordained the systematic inspection of buildings in this city and authorized the employment of a competent building inspector. He served on the building committee which had charge of the detailed construction of the present city hall, the first fund for which he had been the means of providing. In short, there is scarcely a creditable item in the local legislation covering this municipality within the past ten years that does not bear the impress of Frank H. Clemons' honest and efficient championship.

The people of Lackawanna county will make no mistake when they elect Frank H. Clemons sheriff.

A Gathering of Heroes.

The annual re-union of the Union Ex-Prisoners of War association, which occurred in this city Thursday, was an event that should have attracted more attention from the residents of this bustling city than the modest gathering of battle-scarred veterans provoked. The handful of men who assembled at the Ezra Griffin Post hall to renew old friendships and talk over the scenes and incidents of the great conflict, represent ideal American patriots. They have realized by experience and suffering what it has cost to preserve the Union and make this land of liberty a shining proof that the experiment of a government by the people has not been a failure. The principles for which the warriors of '76 fought and bled will never die while men of the calibre of the Union Ex-Prisoners association are in existence.

With each returning year the ranks of the army of veterans are closed up as the gray-haired patriots fall one by one by the wayside, and a few years hence the Union Ex-Prisoners' association will be unknown save to history. This generation of peace and plenty seems to little realize the debt that it owes the war veterans. Could our young citizens be made to understand the patriotism, the unflinching courage, and the endurance that have been necessary to enable these grizzled heroes to face and survive the horrors of the battlefield and the prison pen, the ex-prisoners would be welcomed with a blaze of enthusiasm upon their annual reunions unequalled by ovations that have been tendered the world's greatest conquerors.

The "tough" editor of the Scranton Slimes should print a coupon in each paper entitling the reader to a bottle of disinfectants and a bath.

The arrangement of the newly painted street cars by which the destination of the car is indicated by a conspicuous sign hung on each side of each car is a convenience to the Scranton traveling public that will be appreciated. It obviates all the difficulty of chasing a car half a block only to find, when it has passed, that it wasn't the car one wanted, at all.

Utterly Imbecile.

The Rochester Post-Express is an independent newspaper—and a good one—which has more frequently supported Democrats than Republicans. But this year it has had enough of the "free trade piratical crew," and is steering very clear of a renewal of the mistake of 1892. Listen to how it audits Democracy's account: "The Democratic party went into complete power for the first time in a generation in the spring of 1892 and a great panic came upon the scene with it. There was no policy ready to meet the crisis, and a long delay and uncertainty aggravated it. The finances were in a tangled condition and no system for reforming and establishing them on a firm basis was even attempted. The treasury was depleted and the expedient of filling it by borrowing $50,000,000 on bonds issued under an obsolete law was adopted, whereas there was ample time for providing for the deficiency otherwise.

"The treaty for annexing Hawaii was withdrawn and a conspiracy was formed to overthrow the republican government and restore the deposed queen. Subsequently Hawaii, though not dear enough to annex, was declared dear enough to enjoy reciprocity denied to other countries, and Hawaiian sugar is admitted free of duty while sugar produced elsewhere is taxed; and so an advantage is given to the sugar planters of the islands, estimated by Commissioner Blount, as worth $5,000,000 a year. A tariff act has been passed after long delay, that violates every pledge made by the Democratic party in 1892; and its passage was accompanied by a shameful scandal in which it was made plain that the sugar trust dominated both the executive and the senate. This act was finally adopted was denounced by the Democratic president, who refused to sign it, as a betrayal of the party, and it was denounced no less strongly by the Democratic candidate for governor in this state, who refused as a senator to vote for it.

"It is always a question how far a government, even when meddling directly with finance and business, is responsible for panic and depression; but it is plain that the Democratic administration, during nineteen months of disaster, coincident with it, has not been able to do anything to relieve business stringency or restore public confidence. Its record, no matter how partisans may seek to distribute the blame, has been clearly one of utter imbecility."

This is not the testimony of a partisan organ nor that of a newspaper ordinarily of Republican leanings. It is the calm, conservative voice of honestly independent criticism, and its verdict is the verdict of every thinking citizen capable of looking facts squarely in the face. Judged by its record, Democracy has failed. Is it worth while trying to educate it at the public's present expense?

The Democrats of Scranton are receiving daily proof that the Slimes editor's early training on the Philadelphia Item has not been lost.

The Republican who fights the Republican ticket shows that he is a Republican by deed of mouth only.

REPUBLICANS WILL WIN.

From the Washington Post. Only a besotted optimist, or, perhaps, a national committee man speaking in the way of business, can at this time discern in the campaign brochure anything but a Republican victory at the elections of next month. This individual or that may have his reasons, and may, to a certain extent, be entitled to confound his judgment with them, but only the optimist or the committee man misrepresents a situation such as that which we are considering now. It is a situation which admits of no illusion. Unless within the next few weeks the sentiment throughout the country should undergo a complete and radical transformation the Democrats are beaten.

As the causes which have led up to this result, it were idle now to speculate. So far as the Post is concerned, a definite theory has been advanced and we see no reason for modifying or amending it in any particular. It is based on the fact that it has been from the beginning, that the people, without reference to party alliances or predilections, are distrustful of leaders who would curtail the tariff and set up a fresh regime of unrest and suspense. The country has suffered three years of apprehension and it longs for peace. With a house that will muzzle and disarm Mr. Wilson and a senate that will make McKinley impossible, the nation will be able to catch its breath again.

We are by no means sure, however, that the situation is not a thoroughly happy and acceptable one so far as concerns the real interests of the Democratic party. That great organization has gained nothing in strength, in cohesion, or in morale as the result of eighteen months of political domination. It came into power on March 4, 1893, compact, confident, and enthusiastic. Today it is disheartened, heterogeneous, and demoralized. It is divided between the pestilential screeches of Populism and the time-honored dogmas of Jefferson. It is rent asunder on silver campaign, on tariff reform, on every question of national import and significance. It is without purpose, precision, or harmony. As it stands today it is incapable of beneficence and no longer to be trusted with the destinies of the nation. Better, far better, that it be consumed to a period of retirement and provided with an opportunity of reflection than given fresh facilities for mischief and agitation. The president will thus be spared the necessity of vetoing vicious and incendiary legislation, and the party, under the salutary discipline of popular rebuke, will have time to recover its senses, its manhood, and its usefulness.

Depew's Welcome to General Booth.

When I first saw the Salvation Army it was in an English city, and it had not yet reached America; I could not at first grasp the situation that these men could influence anybody but lunatics. When I saw drunken men join them, my first impression was, will they stick? And I was then informed that nine-tenths of those who were already in that procession joined it in the first place. So long as no law, moral or otherwise, is violated, if the means can accomplish good results the means are blessed by Almighty God. (Renewed applause.) The methods of the Army may be deemed peculiar, but the reasons for them are not. A thousand times more peculiar. No two people are seeking the same end in the same way. We could not live if we were the same. ("Hallelujah" and laughter.) If we were all of one mind everybody might want the same end, and there would not be enough to go around. (Renewed hallelujahs.) The churches do not reach the sums, and General Booth is doing what was attempted years ago. He has pressed the button, and 10,000 officers and 120,000 soldiers are doing the same. (Applause.) That is the way that were outside before he came along, there was no guardian but the police, and no home but the street. As dangerous and more benevolent than that of the missionary who penetrates the heathen, I have heard that if the Salvation Army was removed from London it would take 5,000,000 more policemen to do what it is doing in the metropolis. (Renewed applause.) We praise everybody in this act, but our praise is not always bestowed upon the most worthy.

We bestow it sometimes upon the beneficent humpback, who attract our fancy during the passing hour. We yield ourselves up to enthusiasm for some political humpback of the hour (applause)—there is nothing personal about that (laughter)—but Peter the Hermit and Martin Luther and General Booth deserve to be mentioned in one breath, because of the permanent and enduring good which they have accomplished for the human race. (Prolonged applause.)

LITTLE BOY BLUE.

The little boy dog is covered with dust, But sturdy and staunch he stands, And the little toy soldier is red with rust, And his musket moulder in his hands. Time was when the little dog was new And the soldier was passing fair, And that was the time when our Little Boy Blue Kissed them and put them there. "Now don't you go till I come," he said, "And don't you make a noise!" So, toddling off to his trundle bed, He dreamt of his pretty toys. And as he was dreaming an angel song Awakened our Little Boy Blue— Oh, the years are many, the years are long, But the little toy friends are true. Aye, faithful to Little Boy Blue they stand Each in the same old place, Awaiting the touch of a little hand, The smile of a little face. And they wonder, as waiting these long years through, In the dust of that little chair, What has become of Little Boy Blue Since he kissed them and put them there. —Eugene Field.
