Saturday she was arrested for threatening the lives of her neighbors. The sale of seats for the Joseph Cook lecture at the Frothingham next Thursday indicates a large house. It is not of course that such opportunities are given to hear the greatest of American speakers, and it is possible that this is the last time that the noted lecturer will appear in this city. His subject will be "Resurrections as Rulers." Marriage licenses were granted to the following yesterday by Clerk of the Courts Thomas O'Connor and Mary Agnes Reay: Scranton, William H. THE SURFACE IS SINKING

Cave-in That Began in an Old Plane in the Von Storch Mine.

HOUSES THAT WERE INJURED

The Ground Is Still Settling Somewhat but It Is Believed That the Greatest Damage Has Already Been Done.

A settling of the earth in the neighborhood of the Highworks and the Brisbin breaker at Providence is creating much uneasiness among the residents of that portion of the city. Early Sunday morning the roof of what is known as the "old No. 2 plane of the Von Storch mines" began to fall and the result of the fall soon became noticeable on the surface. There are three veins in the Von Storch mine, the Diamond, Fourteen foot and the Clark, which lie in the order named beneath the surface. It is supposed that the fall started in the Fourteen foot, or middle vein. The plane leads from it and has been abandoned for a number of years and the timbering becoming decayed was no longer able to sustain the weight of the rock above and succumbed. The fall quickly spread to plane No. 3 and to the Brisbin and Cayuga workings, which are connected with the Von Storch.

Protecting Cayuga Workings. Men employed in the Cayuga mine heard the rumbling and knew that a fall was in progress and at once began to put up props and throw collars across the points where they feared the cave would invade that mine. This prompt action saved the Cayuga from any great injury, but there was sufficient caving in both the Cayuga and Brisbin to throw a number of men out of employment yesterday. The greatest disturbance to the surface is noticeable near the Back road, but about Stanton and Fulton streets and vicinities there is also direct evidence of the havoc that was being wrought in the bowels of the earth. The properties of Patrick and John Mulhern and Edward Corrigan, on Runne street, and Mrs. Mary Martin, on Back road, have been damaged by the settling of the earth. The buildings have sunk and cracked, while doors and windows refuse to open or close. Water pipes have burst and the wells in the affected districts are dry. The water has all leaked out of a reservoir on the West mountain. Although the ground is still settling somewhat, it is thought that the greatest damage has been done.

HER PINK AND WHITE PARTY.

Little Miss Sutherland Entertains a Large Number of Friends.

A pink and white birthday party was given yesterday afternoon by Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Sutherland at their home, 615 Washington avenue, for their daughter, Mabel May Sutherland. It was the fourth anniversary of her birth and the event was celebrated by about twenty masters and misses between 3 and 6 o'clock in the afternoon. Nothing was included in the program but the floral and table decorations and other details necessary to carry out the pink and white idea. Mrs. Sutherland was assisted in receiving and entertaining the little ones by Miss Kelper, of Washington avenue, and Mrs. Charles Guidott. The house was arranged with autumn leaves, palms, evergreens and pink and white chrysanthemums. Two large refreshment tables located in the reception room and parlor contained birthday cakes with pink and white frosting and candles, individual bouquets, paper napkins and plates colored pink and white. The four candles lighting the birthday cake and the many dainty refreshments, including as far as possible the baby color idea. Even the little hostess was attired in a frock of these colors. The guests included Miss Mabel's kindergarten and other friends as follows: Helen Gates, Colonel and Sidney Verroy, Marguerite and Samuel Barker, Nanny Frazer, Helen Miller, Carrie Koch, Mildred Rice, Katharine and Carl Schadt, Kate Davis, Laura and Arthur Schimpf, Marlon Gross, Jeanette Foster, Florence and Willie Hart, Estelle Hirschfeld, Nellie McKenney, Estelle Hirschfeld, Nellie Hart, Grace and Christine Morris, Grace and Hazle Browning, Alta Hopkins, Emory Stone, Wallace Leonard, Jean and Minnie Samter, Harry Sutherland.

THOMPSON IN NEW YORK.

His Bondsman, J. G. Reese, Very Anxious for His Return.

An echo to the suspended publication of the Scranton Evening Free Lance appears in the flight of Benjamin F. Thompson and the anxiety of his bondsman, J. G. Reese, who will lose $500 if Thompson is not captured. Thompson was arrested Saturday evening on a warrant issued by Alderman Wright on complaint of Walters & Co., who did the printing for the Free Lance publishers. The firm charged Thompson, its manager, with obtaining money under false pretenses and appropriating the same. Walters & Co. of the Free Lance who were ordered paid to Walters & Co. Alderman Wright at Thompson's request continued Saturday night's hearing until yesterday afternoon after accepting bail for Thompson's appearance furnished by Mr. Reese in the sum of $500. Thompson did not materialize at the appointed hour yesterday, and later in the day it was learned by telegraph that he is in New York. The prosecutors refused to release Mr. Reese from the condition that he would make good his friend's speculations. As it would cost more to do this than to bear the expense of re-arresting Thompson in New York, the bondsman chose the latter method, and hopes to have Thompson under arrest at an early hour this morning.

CITY NOW OWNS IT.

Large Sum Paid for Land Yesterday to the Platt Heirs.

One of the largest warrants ever issued by the city of Scranton for real estate was yesterday signed for $25,000 in favor of Joseph C. Ella J. and Frank E. Platt, heirs of the Platt estate. This large sum of money is the purchase price for a portion of the Platt homestead at the head of Spruce street and bordering on Jefferson avenue. The property will be used as an approach to the contemplated Roaring Brook bridge. The papers necessary to the transfer of the deed were executed by the city officials and the Platt heirs yesterday.

FANTASMA LAST NIGHT.

It Was Produced in an Elaborate Manner at the Academy of Music. Hanlan's great spectacle, "Fantasma," was produced at the Academy of Music last night before a large audience. Several changes have been made in the spectacle since last seen here in the way of introducing new and clever illusions and in the transformation scenes. The second act closes with the transformation "The Avenue of Fountains," which is one of the most beautiful ever staged in this city. Miss Elsie Irving, a young woman with an attractive face and sweet voice, is the good fairy queen, Fantasma, who assists Arthur in rescuing his beloved Lena from the power of Zamalek, the designing king of Hades. The latter character is ably interpreted by Nat. D. Jones, an old and finished actor. Entertaining specialties are intro-

THEIR RECORDS COMPARED

Ex-General Master Workman Powderly Favors Hastings' Election.

HE IS OPPOSED TO SINGLER

The Latter, He Asserts, Is Not a Friend of the Workingman While the Former Has Always Been a True Friend.

Hon. T. V. Powderly has made the following statement with reference to the present Republican campaign in this state: "Where a right and wrong contest for the supremacy in the affairs of state it becomes the duty of the citizen to search for the truth in order that it may become so well known that error will fall before it. In his personalties, apart from every other consideration, do the candidates of the Democratic and Republican parties for governor of Pennsylvania represent right and wrong. The workingman is appealed to for support by elements representing both candidates, and from the labyrinth of stander and campaign misrepresentation it is scarcely possible to discern what the characters of the two men stand for. We cannot by looking to the future alone form an estimate of what the official life of either of them may be. We can, however, form an idea of how public affairs will be administered if we study carefully the past records of those who aspire to office. By comparison, too, we can more accurately judge as to the fitness of the men and the probable superiority of one of them. Some Facts Related. "In comparing the record of General D. H. Hastings with that of William M. Singler, one need not hesitate as to how he should vote, and in addressing myself to the workmen of Pennsylvania on the subject I do not presume to advise or judge as between the candidates. It should be my aim and object, facts, state conclusions arrived at after reviewing these facts and then leave the matter in the hands of those whose will must decide whether right or wrong shall triumph. It has been the aim of some to obscure the real issue in this campaign behind a cloud of falsehood and misrepresentation. His record as an employer of labor has been attacked and misrepresented. He has never posed as a champion of labor, and his record as an employer is consistent and honorable. In July, 1887, when he was elected to the Knights of Labor, he became my friend in Clearfield, it was arranged to open up a correspondence with General Hastings, then practicing law in Clearfield, with a view to securing his aid in defending the men. In my letter to him I suggested that the prospect for a very large fee should not tempt him to take my case, and from his answer I quote the following: "Not the fee, but the justice of the cause in what I shall be influenced by. These men are poor; they may have acted unwisely, but no more experienced than they have erred, and it shall be my effort to remove the cloud that hangs over them. I will do my best, and I shall not leave nothing unsaid, so that I may know my ground." Would Take No Pay. "He defended the men, and up to the present time he has never received a bill for his services. I have never heard of his presenting a bill to any of the men. His example shows to me a conciliator, not a man who would exploit the cause of his clients. He abolished the company store at the mines which he purchased, removed the black list on which names of men who were not to be employed were inscribed, recognized the union as an organization worthy of respect, and continued to treat with it as the equal of the corporation to which he was in part. When strikes or controversies took place in the coal regions committees representing the mining fraternity advised me frequently at Philadelphia to seek assistance in settling the pending difficulties. The need of an arbitrator, or more accurately speaking, a conciliator, presented itself on each occasion, and he was the influence of General Hastings, acting as peacemaker, several very ugly affairs were settled with honor and satisfaction to the men. On one occasion, when the employers were contending against the recognition of the miners' organization, General Hastings said: "I have the greatest respect for this organization, and would far rather treat with its officers than be in constant worry over each individual case. The men have an undoubted right to be heard through their elected officers. Think of how difficult, how impossible it would be for every corporation to come here from Westmoreland to present his grievance as an individual. It would never do, and I do roach, in speaking to you, in treating with the organization will be waived." "It was waived. Were I to enter upon a recital of the many acts in the career of General Hastings which would commend him to the respect and confidence of every employer and employee as governor of this industrial commonwealth. Mr. Singler's Record. "The record of William M. Singler is not such as would commend him to the respect and confidence of every employer and employee as governor of this industrial commonwealth. He is opposed to organized and unorganized labor as well when it demands a fair price for services rendered. His paper, the Philadelphia Record, while it speaks to speak for the laboring element on economic questions, inaugurated a policy in Philadelphia which would, if adopted, drive every union printer out of the trade and reduce all who followed that calling to beggary. "In December, 1891, the members of the Typographical union employed on the Record asked for an increase in their wages. The answer given to them by Mr. Singler was the discharge of some ninety-three men. Their places were filled by cheaply known in the printing trade as 'rats,' and since then the Philadelphia Record has been printed by non-union help. Soon after instituting his policy of 'hogness' he introduced the typesetting machines to the Local Republican Candidates Meet the Firemen's Pension Fund Issue Fully and Fairly.

The following correspondence is self-explanatory: Dear Sir—At the convention of the State Firemen's association held at Norristown, Pa., on Nov. 15, 1894, I was appointed for each county, whose duty it is to see personally all candidates for the office of fireman, and to give their assistance in having the bill passed, providing for the setting aside, for a pension fund for firemen, of 1 per cent. of the money paid by foreign insurance companies doing business in the state. A bill passed at the last session was vetoed by Governor Pattison on the ground of unconstitutionality. At this session a new bill will be presented covering the defects in the last one. It is believed you will need all of it for the advancement of your own interest, kindly advise me to the best of your ability, and the interests of the firemen of Pennsylvania and your influence to have the bill passed, and to pass your branch of the state government. Very respectfully, J. C. Vaughan, Secretary.

GETTING READY FOR FRAY.

County Commissioners Putting Booths and Election Houses in Order.

Preparations for the approaching election are being made by the county commissioners, who are getting the ball into motion in shape and, where it is possible to do so, are having election booths fitted up in the buildings not owned by the county, which are used for election purposes.

In some of these buildings the booths cannot be put up until the night before election, but in all the others the booths will be ready by the time the election comes. The week the county commissioners will have the work of distributing the ballots to undertake.

ERHROD IN TROUBLE AGAIN.

Mrs. Sarah Carey, a Spruce street boarding house keeper, and O. D. Erhrood, of Dunmore, were arrested at Mrs. Carey's house last night on a warrant issued on complaint of Mrs. Erhrood. The latter charged her with keeping a disorderly resort and maintaining improper relations with Erhrood, who was charged with the last mentioned offense.

RECORD OFFICE, AND WITH IT MADE AN EFFORT TO BREAK THE POWER OF THE UNION THROUGHOUT THE CITY.

No reasonable objection could be raised to the operation of the typewriter on the Record, but Singler issues a circular to the publishers of Philadelphia, offering to do their printing with the aid of the machine at reduced rates, and their refusal alone prevented the hardship which Mr. Singler intended to visit on the printers who favored American wages for American work.

"Singler would have no man in his employ who believed that he should have a say in regulating his own wages. "Hastings always met the workmen half way in disputes concerning wages. "Singler would make use of the wealth saving machine to drive the self respecting American workmen into the street."
