ON MILTON'S PARADISE LOST.

Scholarly Lecture of Professor Sprague to the Young Men's Literary and Debating Club—Social and Top of the St. Paul's Tourist Club.

The third lecture in the West Side University course, which is being conducted by the Young Men's Literary and Debating society, was held last evening in the Calvinistic Methodist church. The attendance was very flattering. Professor Sprague talked on Milton's "Paradise Lost." He said: "It is a poem in epic form, and was compositionally prepared during thirty years' time. The machinery is magnificent, its powers the most marvellous. It is an epic of universal admiration; it is the story of right versus wrong; "Paradise Lost" displays the grandest style that Milton ever penned."

Professor Sprague treated in a graphic and scholarly way the history of the immortal story from the fall of the angel to the punishment of Satan and his army. In his treatment of the subject he succeeded in harmonizing the spirit of the audience with his forceful descriptions.

St. Paul's Social.

The second of a series of entertainments was held in St. Paul's armory last evening under the auspices of St. Paul's Tourist club. The rooms were tastefully decorated with flags and bunting. Timothy McCoy was chairman.

A vocal solo was rendered by Miss Bessie Hand. Solos were then rendered by J. J. O'Malley and Miss Jessie James. A feature of the evening was an exhibition drill by the members of St. Paul's cadets. Miss Kate Jordan gave a recitation, and Mr. Battle, of Archbold, gave a solo. After the entertainment a social was held. The young people enjoyed themselves in dancing to music by Joseph McDermott on the piano. The committees were: Reception, Timothy McCoy, F. McClain and E. J. Walsh; floor, W. Haskins, M. Cukin, M. Coleman and J. P. Murray.

MR. FARR'S WORK COMMENDED By Secretary McGuire of United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners. Philadelphia, Oct. 20.

John R. Farr: Dear Sir—I sincerely trust you may be re-elected to the state legislature. Your course as a member of that body should recommend you to the votes of all workmen, regardless of political party or of private interests. Your work, efforts and votes in behalf of labor measures and fair and honest legislation, should be honored by an immense majority of the citizens of your district. Your course, particularly in taking charge of the mechanics' lien law, demonstrated your influence and power as a member of the legislature. Though the bill itself was sent you late in the session, and the chance not one in ten to get it through, still by your faithful, persistent work you secured special consideration for the measure and it passed both house and senate.

Thanks to your untiring efforts. There is no question that there is great need for a measure of the kind to protect the interests of mechanics and laborers engaged in the construction and repair of buildings. Today there is a great deal of inequality and conflictions in our present lien laws of Pennsylvania. Large losses of money are suffered by the workmen each year who have no protection, as they should have under the law, from dishonest and insolvent employers and contractors. Still, contractors and employers are fully secured and protected, and why should not their workmen and employees be likewise secured? It was the original intent and purpose of the mechanics' lien law, that it should be primarily for the interests of the mechanics and workmen.

The voters of your district should return you to the next legislature, that you may continue your work for a fair, adequate mechanics' lien law in this state. More than ever they now should have your services when industrial issues of value and moment to all our citizens are likely to be acted on in the legislature. The workmen of your county, organized and unorganized, should rally around you and vote for you. Yours, P. J. McGuire.
