WHO ARE THE CITY'S 400

Serious Question Arises from a Horsewhipping Episode.

ASKED THE LAW TO DECIDE IT

Case of Assault and Battery Develops a Question of Social Caste Among Colored People-Settlement Was Effeeted and Proceedings Ended.

The question of which particular set of colored people belong in the figurative "400" of Scranton's ebony-hued society was decided in Alderman Fuller's office yesterday. The gathering of the colored people really sprung from the arrest of Mrs. Ben Williams and Mrs. Ella Thomas, who horse-whipped Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Morton Wednesday night, but while the hearing lasted it developed that the main difference be tween the parties was their respective rights to shine in police society.

The prosecutors were represented by Attorney John F. Scragg, and the social standing of the horsewhip wielders was protected by Attorney W. W. Baylor. It appeared from the evidence that Mrs. Williams and Mrs. Thomas had gone to the African Methodist church in Lee court with "blacksnake" whips under their shawls with the express purpose of laying said weapons over the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Morton. They carried out their evil purpose at the corner of Pine street and Lee court in the presence of nearly a score of the congregation, who yesterday appeared as witnesses pro and con -mostly con.

It was after asking a retraction of these statements from Mrs. Morton that the whipping began, and in the melee Mr. Morton, Mr. Thomas and one or two others got into a pugilistic tangle of arms and legs, which so confused the onlookers that their testimony at the hearing was rather mixed. The gathering at the church, by the way, was to hear the minister's admonition for peace and good-will among his flock.

During the progress of the hearing considerable testimony was offered which included "not in our set," "crust of sassiety," "my grandmother was a white woman," "works in a brewery," "husband black as any man in Scran-Before the case had gained much headway the attorneys and alderman came to the conclusion that the trouble hinged upon social caste. Rather than carry such a serious legal question into court a conference was entered into by the lawyers and their clients with the result that each defendant was fined $7.50, which included costs and Mr. Scragg's fee, and required to furnish a bond to keep the

I could not raise my hand to my head, and when I attempted to put on my coat or any article of dress, the torture was enough to drive me wild. Many remedies were suggested and tried, but none did me the slightest good, and I began to despair of ever being able to obtain relief. Some time ago, however, I pro-cured a bottle of Munyon's Rheumatism Cure. It afforded me relief after the first few doses, and by the time the little 25-cent bottle was gone I was entirely free from pain. I have had no return of my old enemy, and I feel satisfied I am permanently cured. Albino Birds. An extraordinary collection of birds is kept at the residence of Mr. W. Ingram, M. P., at Westgate, living happily in every variety of condition; in confinement in very large cages, in spacious voleries, in the walled in pleasance, and lastly, with perfect liberty and unclipped wings. There s one class of birds in which Mr. Ingram is particularly rich—he has ten albinos—viz., three white jackdaws, three white blackbirds, a white thrush, a white starling, a white hedge sparrow and a pure white variety of the herring gull, caught in the neighborhood. One of the white jackdaws will go with the members of the family to the seashore and follow them about. What is even more wonderful, this affectionate bird is taken by Mr. Ingram in the autumn to Over Stilton, in Yorkshire, where she takes long walks with a member of the family, flying from tree to tree. Upon the whole, I deem this white jackdaw to be the most charming bird it was ever my good fortune to meet with.-J. W. Weir in Nature Notes.

A Cyclone's Queer Work.

Nothing could withstand in places the terrible force of the wind on that fatal day of the 29th of April, 1802, on Mauritius. It will be for scientific men to explain how trees firmly planted more than a century back, and of eight to twelve feet diameter, were felled to the ground; how the ironlike teakwood branches were snapped and cut and broken as mere brushwood; how girders of iron eighteen inches thick were indented and twisted so as to become useless, as in the case of the great pulley ladders of a sea dredger; how, in fine, a column of stones, each weighing more than a ton and fast riveted with iron girders and with cement, was thrown down like a pack of cards, and it will be for meteorologists to explain how an island thirty-three miles by thirty-one in extent, through which the center of a cyclone is passing, can escape at all from a wind so violent as the above denotes.-Blackwood's Magazine.

Marder Does Not Always Out.

The old adage that "murder will out" is, after all, more or less of a fiction. Scores of murders go unpunished every year throughout the civilized world, largely for lack of proof against the murderers. The resources of civilization are open to criminals as well as to officers. It is possible for a murderer to commit his crime and then be wkirled hundreds of miles away before the deed is discovered. He knows just what methods will be used to secure his capture, and he may have planned how to outwit such attempts before they are

Ballots Cast for Sweeney, Manley and Others Last Spring, Destroyed.

NOT REMOVED FROM BOXES

Election Officers on Tuesday Morning Emptied the Ballot Boxes and Consigned the Greater Part of the Ballots to the Fames.

It is highly probable that the election contests Instituted by Henry W. Coyle and John F. Kearney against Morgan Sweeney and James A. Manley, for the offices of common and select council respectively from the Twelfth ward of this city, will come to an abrupt termination According to the election laws the ballots of each election district remain in the ballot boxes, unless removed by order of court, until the following election, when they are taken out and burned by the election officers of the district in which they were cast. In the case of a contest an order is usually obtained from the court and the ballots removed from the boxes by the clerk of the courts and preserved until their presence in court is required. It appears that in the Twelfth ward case the ballots cast at the election last spring, the result of which is now in dispute, were not removed before the ballot boxes were delivered to the election officers for Tuesday's election.
