WAR ON LIVING PICTURES

Lady Henry Somerset Will Make an Effort to Suppress Them.

ENGLAND OUTDONE, SHE SAYS

Mrs. Grannis Thinks That There Are Other Features of Stage Life That Are More Objectionable Than the Living Models in Scent Drapery.

By the United Press. New York, Nov. 29.—Lady Henry Somerset, who came to this country from England in August, has gone to Boston on a visit. Before taking the train she gave out an interview in which the announcement is made that Miss Frances E. Willard and the Women's Christian Temperance union will soon begin a crusade against the living pictures.

Lady Somerset was the head of the opposition in London to the reopening of the Empire Music hall, and she won her fight, too. The affair of the Empire was one of the sequences of the crusade against living pictures, which Lady Somerset declared were entirely evil.

"While I do not believe in meddling in the affairs of any but my own country," said Lady Somerset, "I feel sure that the women here will very soon inaugurate a reform. The foundations are now laid for the work. Miss Willard and the Women's Christian Temperance union are very much in earnest in this matter. They feel that the living pictures as exhibited at present at the theaters of this city are a terrible menace to young men and tend to encourage immorality and evil thinking, and are also an outrage on women. I am told that the living pictures are worse here than they are in England, and that is saying a great deal."

Their Blighting Influence. "I am certain that the mothers of New York will not tolerate these living pictures when once the matter is presented to them in all its deplorable and sinful aspects. That such things are permitted here is due to the fact that the women have not been awakened to the deadly and blighting influence of this new departure in our theaters. The 'white-ribbon' women are thoroughly aroused on the subject, and you will hear from them very shortly."

"What is to be the plan of crusade against the living pictures in New York?" was asked. "I have no idea at present," Lady Somerset replied, "but undoubtedly evidence will be collected as to the exhibitions now being given."

"Do you consider living pictures demoralized to the ballet?" "Not more so than indecent ballet, but nothing has, so far as I know, been given that approaches the daring indecency of the nude pictures."

Lady Somerset said that she understood the crusade to be distinctly a movement by the Women's Christian Temperance union. Some of the women belonging to the local branch of that organization who were seen last night said they had not been consulted about the crusade. Mrs. Grannis, who is chairman of the committee on social purity of the Women's Christian Temperance union in this county, and also the president of the Christian league for the promotion of social purity, said she had not heard of it.

"Miss Willard wrote to me some time ago," she said, "asking if something could not be done to suppress those pictures in this city. I replied that they were not enough to be suppressed, but that there are other things on the stage and off that are very much worse. There are dressed women on exhibition whose motions and suggestive ways are very much worse than those who pose," continued Mrs. Grannis. "Everybody who shouts 'Shame!' doesn't know what she is talking about."

By the United Press. Allentown, Pa., Nov. 29.—The great success of the first Allentown festival last year by the Lehigh Valley Elstiedoff association, was more than duplicated today.

The baritone solo contest for $10 was won by Evan J. Williams, of Slatington, and the contralto solo prize of $10 by Miss Hannah A. Yoder, of Reading.

The chief events in the afternoon were the band contest for $100 and medal to successful leader and the serenade to male chorus for a prize of $100 and medal to leader of the winning chorus. The Plymouth brass band won the former and Dr. Mason's Glee society of Wilkes-Barre, the latter. The tenor solo was won by Evan Roberts, of Slatington, and the trio, soprano, tenor and bass by Mr. and Mrs. Johns and Mr. Elias, of Plymouth.

BLOODHOUNDS AFTER THEM.

Robbers Hold Up a Southern Pacific Express Train Near Elka, Tex., and a Posses Is Now in Hot Pursuit.

By the United Press. San Antonio, Tex., Nov. 29.—The Southern Pacific passenger train, west bound, was held up at Elka, at 12.30 o'clock this morning. About a half mile east of Elka, two masked men crawled over the tender of the engine on the Southern Pacific road and ordered the engineer to stop the train. The engineer did as ordered.

When the train came to a full stop, the robbers ordered the engineer and fireman to get out of the cab. They ordered the fireman to go back and cut the train behind the express car. The robbers fired several shots. When the fireman went to the express car he was fired upon by the robbers, and he lost the hose that ran to the coaches. The robbers boarded the engine and tried to pull out, but could not. They left the engine and no more was seen of them.

Bloodhounds have been telegraphed for and will be here in a few hours. Officers think they have a clew.

CHINESE NOT MITILATED.

But the Japanese Officials Say It Would Have Been a Justifiable Reprisal for Cruelties Inflicted on the Victims.

By the United Press. London, Nov. 29.—The correspondent of the Central News at Tokio telegraphs as follows: "Details of the fall of Port Arthur are now beginning to arrive. The number of Chinese killed in the engagement was about 2,000, most of whom were slain during the cannonading of the place on Nov. 20. The statements that there was a further excessive slaughter of Chinese, although it would have been excusable in consequence of mutilation and torture of Japanese soldiers, are absolutely denied by the Japanese officers in command. During the attack upon Port Arthur a large force of Chinese from Foo Chow beyond Kinchow, attacked the latter place, but the Japanese garrison repulsed them after severe fighting with a heavy loss to the Chinese. The Japanese loss was twenty killed and sixty wounded, including several officers."
