One of nature's cheapest specifics is plain hot water, "If I were asked what woman's best friend is," said one loctor recently, "I should say hot water. If she drinks hot water an nour before her breakfast she will be by soaking the afflicted member in hot rater for half an hour at a time and then binding it with a flannel bandage. Bruises yield to much the same treatnent, although such long soaking is unnecessary. Wounds and sores may be treated by pouring hot water on them for a few minutes at a time. Very hot water applied to a bleeding cut will stop the flow of blood frequently. Then for mere comfort," he went on, "few things equal hot water. A rubber bag full of it makes one indifferent to cold. Wrapped in flannel and put on the loor of a carriage it is invaluable. She who suffers from cold feet at night has but to fill a hot water bag to know what comfort is. Sufferers from sleeplessess find themselves deliciously drowsy after a hot bath. Wrinkles flee before t, and blackheads vanish before its constant use. Great is hot water." Prench sanitarians are just now coniderably agitated over the question of bedbugs, Dr. Felix Bremond argued beore the Commission of Hygiene that he commission of the correctness of its ideas that the extermination of the injured. pedbug in infested lodging houses was rdered forthwith. But the lodging ouse keepers had become so much attached to the society of this cheerful pet that they entered a vigorous proest to the demands of the commission. and contested the decision in the courts and with the result that the municipal uncil and the state council reversed the decision of the commission of hygiene, and thus the bugs were delivered from the imminent peril which threatened them, and the tenants of cheap odging houses in Paris still furnish food for these hungry phlebotomists. made a careful study of the relation of bedburg to health, and have shown to health, not only by reason of the loss of sleep and of blood directly at-tributable to its ravings, but also through its becoming the means of transmitting the microbes of tuberculosis. This is a question which, in the opinion of the Medical News, ought to receive the attention of the sanitary authorities in our great cities. It has long been known that flies may communicate cholera, charbon and other infections, as erysipelas and possibly yellow fever. It has also been known that earthworms are a means of dispensing chabon infections, Mosquitoes laria; possibly also the parasites of malaria. It is possible that many insects may be engaged in this mischlevous activity. This is a matter to which sanitarians may well give con- leal Review of '94,"

To avoid illness while on a holiday, the following hints will be useful: It on a long holiday, and frequently changing your hotel, take your own sheets with you, say two pairs, all wool. They do not take up much room in your boxes, and they are a very great safeguard and comfort. You then bid deflance not only to colds, but rheumatism and even fever. At the majority of hotels they are not even particular in airing the sheets. Sometimes they put a little starch in them. You might as well sleep under last night, after which they all joined a mackintosh as under a starohed sheet. The perspiration is kept in, and the skin rendered soft and flabby, and any exposure next day is therefore dangerous. Perfect comfort in bed must be obtained if you would make the most of a holiday. Before choosing or accepting a bed room, therefore, just see that the bed is a rice one, the blankets clean, with a by them the past year. sufficient number of pillows, and a bolster case, At many hotels they Branchville, N. J. have a mean and dirty way of dispensing entirely with bolster cases. They simply spread the sheet round it, and the probability is you awake in the morning with a crick in your neck. and feel peevish and out of sorts all

YOURS FOR HEALTH: The excessive use of smelling salts is believed to damage the hearing.

If one be in good health it is folly for him to begin a treatment to make him thin or fat. It is natural for some per-ons to be thin, and others to be stout, to be short or tall as the case may be. A glass of hot milk after one is in bed often insures an unbroken, restful sleep.

of being swallowed whole, are the most easily digested of all things. Beef is the best food to give one a color. For red eyelids, shave a lump of alum down to a pencil-point and use it upon the eyelids night and morning. Draw the alum gently over the edge of the lids.

Experiments made by Dr. Vaughan, and communicated by him to the Royal so-city, of England, conclusively show that a liberal consumption of sugar insures the ability to do more work with less fatigue. Some physicians say the fact has been demonstrated beyond a question that aside from rupture of the ear-drum there is scarcely a symptom of defective hear-ing which is not traceable to the condition of the nose and throat,

When the bair begins to split or fall out massage to the scalp is excellent. Place the tip of the fingers firmly upon the scalp and then vibrate or move the scalp while holding the pressure steadily. This will stimulate the blood vessels under-neath the hair. A brush of unevenly tufted bristles is also excellent to use upon the scalp, not the hair.

Quite often on rising in the morning a dull, heavy headache is felt for an hour or two, which is not severe enough to make one ill, but quite enough so to make one miserable. A half a teaspoonful of table salt in a half a wineglass of water will often remove theache in less than half an hour. It seems to sweeten the stomach, from which most headaches come.

Coal oil is an excellent tonic for the hair, if not objectionable on account of its odor. But if the oil is rubbed well into the roo's of the hair with a soft sponge in the morn-ing, the odor will be almost gone by even-ing, and you can further dissipate it by a liberal application of bay rum rubbed in Quick movements in children are healthy and right;

| Movement of the same way. The coal off cleans the scalp beautifully, and softens the hair.

A foreign medical journal is authority for the statement that a teaspoonful of glycerine in hot milk or cream will at once relieve the most violent attack of coughing. This is a simple, easily obcoughing. This is a simple, easily ob-tained are harmless remedy, and if it keeps good its promise will prove to be of great value. Equally simple and quite ef-fective is the use of glycerine spray though an atomizer. This is applied di-rectly to the inflamed or irritated sur-faces and gives almost instant relief. In attacks of inflames resids in the head attacks of influenza, colds in the head, sore throat, and like troubles, glycerine mixed with three times its bulk of water boiled and cooled, is an invariable remedy A little practice will enable the patient to fill the lungs with the spray, and the soothing and cooling effect is remarkable.
