in Charlotte Corday.

PRESENTED IN A FINE MANNER

The Play Follows on the Historical Lines of the Career of the Heroic French Girl of That Name-Why Mrs. Potter Selected It.

After an absence of seven years, durng which time she has circled the globe Mrs James Brown Potter reappeared at the Academy of Music last night. Her former appearance was in a play redolent of light wronged love; last night she was seen in the tragic character of "Charlotte Corday." Seven years of travel and incessant work behind the footlights, with her idle moments occupied by serious study, has not changed her to any extent outworldly. She is still the same fairfaced, girlish looking person who, almost a decade ago, startled Washingon society by her daring recitation of "Osler Joe "

Those years of work and of study have matured the undeniable talent she possesses, and those who went to the Academy of Music last night simply view one of the most-talked-of wo men of recent years as a mere spectacle, left the theater with a high opinion of her ability as an actress, for Mrs. Potter gave a careful, conscientious and finished portrayal of the character of Cuariotte Corday, even though she does not rise to actual greatness in the role.

Outline of the Play,

The house bill last night conveyed the nformation that "Charlotte Corday" is an original play in four acts founded on incidents in the life of Charlotte Corday, I. C. Montesquieuson is named as the author. He did outline and write the play, but it has since been almost entirely re-written by Mrs. Potter's starring partner, Kyrle Bellew

The play is a tragic drama and deals with a period of shame in French history, a period when patrician blood ran a deep crimson in the gutters and Zimmerman to get in readiness their anarchy in the sacred name of the peostreets of Paris, Jean Paul Marat, a which provides for the levying of a it was thought that such a law would four-mill tax on Building and Loan aslow-born foreigner, assumed the magic sociation stock.

A Tribune reporter had a pleasant chat with Mrs. Potter between the third and fourth acts. In her dressing room she did not seem a bit like the stern-faced young woman who had a minute hefore sent a dagger into the writhing body of Marat. "How did I come to select 'Charlotte Corday?' Well, it was Sardou, the French playwrite, who first suggested the ider to me on account of my resemblance to Charlotte Corday. The play was first produced in Calcutta, India, and in this country I first appeared in San Francisco in it. Oh. no, it is not my favorite character; I prefer Shakespearian roles, but my Charlotte Corday has been well received wherever it has been seen and therefore we are presenting it. "It may lack love interest to some degree, but it must to be historically correct, for Charlotte Corday had a heart that was seemingly incapable of loving at the period with which this play deals. Great pains have been taken to make the play historically correct in every way, and I have been told that my appearance in the role is very similar to that of the real Charlatta Corday.

"Do I like the stage? Now it is not a case of like it with me. I must earn a living, and as I seem to be best fitted for this work I am striving to do best at it." And just then the call boy appeared to summon Mrs. Potter for the prison scene in the last act.

They Meet and Decide to Duplicate Their Good Work of Last Year-Better Laws Needed to Facilitate Child Saving.

At a regular meeting of the Assoclated Charities in the city hall last night it was revealed through the discussions of members and the agent's report that, although work has become more plentiful, there remains an abnormal amount of destitution and want. In the absence of the president, Colone E. H. Ripple, the chair was occupied by E. J. Lynett: other members present Secretary Israel and Messrs were: Keller, Smith, Thomas, Kelly, Gibbon and Cohen.

The employment committee, through Mr. Gibbons, reported a better condition among the poor, particularly on the South Side, where the mills have started and new employment is given about 1,500 men. Through Mr. Gib bons, Mr. Kirst, who is ill, reported that gangs of from fifteen to twenty men can be given employment from day to day or week to week on the stone rusher. Remarks by the members in dicated that possibly the proposition may be accepted, as the money used in paying the men would be returned through the sale of the crushed stone.

Child Saving Laws, The laws in reference to child say ing were discussed, and it was the sense of the meeting that the laws are broad mough, but their application is lacking bucause it gives only certain societies the right to enforce them. Mr. Israel stated that a number of Scranton women are taking steps to organize in this city an association similar in plan to the Child Saving society of Pittsburg Mr. Thomas, of the special committee appointed at the previous meeting to draft a law for presentation to the leg islature and to give poor boards the right to furnish employment, reported that the matter had been informally discussed by the committee. He said meet with the objections made to the convict labor laws, and that both Mr. Sturges and Mr. Lynett, members of the committee, thought that haste should be made slowly. The committee was continued with instructions to in vestigate the matter further. Mr. Cohen, Mr. Smith and Mr. Keller were appointed to confer with the poor board relative to securing from that body an appropriation to pay a portion of the salary of the proposed assistant to the Associated Charities agent, Mrs W. B. Duggan.

The agent made the following report for the period since the last meeting: Forty-seven applications for aid. worthy, 17 unworthy; work for 15 mer and 3 women; 3 children sent to charit able institutions, and 3 adults and child to the Hillside home; 3 men furnished with lodging. Meeting of the Auxiliary.

A meeting of the Women's auxiliary of the Associated Board of Charities was held yesterday afternoon at the Young Women's Christian association rooms. A large number of ladles inter ested in charitable work were present Arrangements were made for the sal of membership tickets for the year 1895 and the collection of subscriptions which became due on Jan. 1.

The ladies who were appointed to th various districts will also distribute the cards prepared by the Associated Board of Charities for the purpose of regulating alms-giving in the city. Householders are requested, in applications for relief, to fill in the name of the applicant and also their own name and address and request the person begging for alms to take the same to the offices of the board in the city hall, where their case will receive prompt attention This will prevent frauds and give the agent an opportunity of investigating all cases and assisting the deserving. Six hundred and ninety-four dollars were collected by the ladies of the auxiliary during the past year. The officers of the board ore: President, Mrs. C. T. F. Barnard; secretary, Mrs. J. R.
