NEWS OF THE RAILROADS. The new steam-heating system of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western company is giving great satisfaction.

There is a general consensus of opinion that passenger engine No. 181 of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western company is the finest locomotive between New York and Buffalo.

Brakeman William Bush met with an accident on Wednesday night while engaged in coupling cars. His foot slipped, but he recovered himself in time to avoid more serious consequences than a sprained ankle.

Engineer John Longfelt, of No. 2 train, on the Delaware and Hudson, has become a well-known and familiar figure on the road.

Many employees of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad will regret to hear of the death of Brakeman Willard Maryew, which took place on Tuesday at Jersey City on the New York, Susquehanna and Western railroad.

He was engaged in coupling cars when he slipped and was crushed between the buffers. At one time Mr. Maryew was a popular employee of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western company in Scranton.

Engineers should visit the association room to inspect the photograph of one of the London and North Western Railway company's engines. This is probably the foremost company in England in point of first-class locomotives.

Superintendent Webb, who has charge of the engineering department of the company, has made a world-wide reputation in connection with the magnificent compound engines of his company, one of which excelled such like at the Chicago World's fair.

APPEALS TO BUSINESS MEN

Work the Y. M. C. A. Is Doing of Great Assistance to Them. PRESERVES THEIR EMPLOYES It Gives Them Young Men with Bright Faces and Uncolored Brains Who Have a High and Honest Purpose in Life—An Evening Class.

One feature of the Young Men's Christian association work which is full of interest is the business man's connection with it and his view of the work and availability of the association. It may be possible that several business men of the city, owing to a want of knowledge of the work accomplished, may not realize the full value of the benefit accruing from the establishment of the institution. One reason is suggested why the association commends itself to business men, and that is, it is organized for definite and distinct work.

MORE BALDWINISM. Questions Answered by That Wonderful Lady Last Night—Says City Solicitor Torrey Will Succeed Himself at an Increased Salary. It was impossible to obtain a seat in the Frothingham last night and many persons had to stand. The interest felt in the wonderful exhibition given by Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin is constantly increasing.

Philip Kennedy—Wheat will drop to 49 cents within the month. Mrs. Grace Bradley—Your husband was engaged in legitimate business and was doing no harm when he was away from home.

Married in 18 Months. Miss Mary Stewart—You will be married in twelve months to a gentleman connected with a bank. Bortia Strach—I regret to say the child is not living.

Miss Margaret Campbell—You will get the position as stenographer you desire within three weeks. Mrs. B. Morris—Have no anxiety. Your future is bright.

Miss Francis Kirwin—You will be married in seventeen months. He will be a widower with two children, short and stout, but has lots of money. It Would Be All Right.

Harry Jones—If you mind what you say when you get home it will be all right. R. W. Luce—You will be quite successful in your leasing business.

John W. Kelly—The bank in which you have placed your money will in time pay in full. Charles P. Swift—It was only done to frighten you. William H. Beck—Your great uncle did not leave so much money in Cuba as you expect, but it will pay you to look it up.

Miss Ethel Frothingham—You will go abroad, but not for four years. J. B. Moran—It would be well for you to hold on to the stock you have. It will become valuable. You will be married in seventeen months. John Moran—You will have to watch or a short, stout man will break into found in almost every church, cranks, who were out of sorts with the congregation or the pastor, who entertained the notion that the association was a good place for them wherein to air their grievances. They found the atmosphere chilly, however, and the workers are no more troubled by their unwelcome presence.

Has One Definite Object. These notions dispelled, it is evident to business men that the Young Men's Christian association is not, as might under a misapprehension, be supposed, "A jack-of-all-trades"—a real good fellow who can do a little of everything but never amounts to much. The association aims to be master of one trade—to save and shield the young men—and it, therefore, commends itself to business men because it aims to do directly the work for which it was organized.

Another reason is because there is a Christian or not, is dependent upon the energy, the faithfulness, the honor and honesty of those whom he employs. He prefers the young man to whom he looks for success, come to his counting-house, his store or his shop with clear eyes, ruddy cheeks and clear brains, and not the young man with the dull eyes and muddled brain of the debauchee, or one who has been out all night in a beer saloon or billiard parlor, or other place of dissipation. The business man is ready to admit that the Young Men's Christian association is the only organization in any of our communities which stretches out its hands expressly to young men in his employ. He cannot but recognize that the churches are organized for a different, a larger and a more general purpose, while the association, by its mere existence, demonstrates its adaptability and availability for this peculiar and important work.

Business men have but to consider that in all our cities and towns the young men in the offices, stores and shops are living in boarding houses, in unpleasant rooms, oftentimes amid uncivilized surroundings, and that when their work is done they have no resort but the streets, and they can readily appreciate how important it is that there should be places of resort free from the temptations of the saloon and the houses whose doors are always open on the way to ruin and oftentimes premature death.

your shop again. They broke in on Nov. 25. Torrey's Salary to Go Up. Charles Savage—You will be worth a lot of money some day. James H. Torrey—You will be asked to succeed yourself as city solicitor at an increased salary. The Baldwin will repeat their performance at the Frothingham tonight and tomorrow night. LIFE IN A WAR PRISON. Discussed by Colonel E. H. Rippe at Penn Avenue Baptist Church.

Colonel Ezra H. Rippe delivered an interesting lecture on his "Personal War and Prison Experiences" to a large audience at the Penn Avenue Baptist church last evening. After reciting several incidents of deep interest he concluded his lecture with the following remarks, which are brimful of a patriotic spirit:

As we came to the pontoon bridge, over which we were to pass, I could see in the distance the Stars and Stripes flying from the steeple. I had not noticed them before, although we had passed through a number of camps in which they must have been, and this first sight of the old flag was too much for me. I had had all I could hold of my life before this came, and this was more than I could stand. On looking around at my comrades, I found that there was not one that could restrain the tears of joy that came willingly to his eyes at the sight of the old flag.

Rev. Warren G. Partridge said that on behalf of the Boys' brigade, for whose benefit the lecture was given, he desired to thank Colonel Rippe for his magnificent address, which was more thrilling and interesting than anything he had read in magazines or books. The portrayal of the indescribable sufferings which had been borne in the war made him love his country all the more.

FUNERAL OF MRS. SCRINE. Impressive Services at the Elm Park Church Yesterday. A large number of sympathizers were present at the funeral services of the late Mrs. Daniel Scrine, of 1317 Vine street, which were held at the Elm Park church yesterday. Presiding Elder Eckman delivered an impressive address in which he stated that a week ago last Sabbath, although suffering severely from illness, she wended her way to the house of prayer. Although weak in body her heart was strong to the last in joining in the songs of Zion.

She had been a loyal and faithful member of the church for many years and had now gained her reward in going from the church militant to the church triumphant. She had done her work well on earth, and the sweet memories of her days would cheer the heart of those left in sorrow behind. Her example and devotion should encourage them and they should be cheered by the hope that in the happy home loving hearts would again meet where Christ reigns and partings would be no more.

Rev. W. H. Pearce, pastor of the church, said that she had been a noble wife and a Christian mother. She was tender and charitable in nature with a heart full of Christian love to all in distress. Her death left a wide place in the house and in the church, but the memory of her sweet, loving and reverent spirit would always abide
