Lewis Cass, secretary of war, was over at the white house one day with some important papers for the president to sign.

"What have I to do with it?" asked the president.

"It discharges an officer from the service and the president must sign such orders."

"Inspector-General Kraun," replied Cass.

"What?" shouted Jackson. "My old friend Kraun! Cass, just read what that paper says."

"The within findings are disapproved, and Colonel Kraun is restored to his duty and rank."

Secretary Cass explained that the duties of the office were of a peculiar kind, and he could get no one to fill the place if the man now in it should be removed.

"By the Eternal! Cass, do you mean to tell me you have an office in your department filled by a whig which can't be filled by a Democrat? Then abolish the office!"

The young man got his place.
