$5 REWARD!

So many complaints of irregular delivery have reached us, which we have traced to stolen papers, that we now offer $5 reward for information that will lead to the conviction of any person caught stealing The Tribune from the doorsteps of regular subscribers.

CITY NOTES.

There will be a meeting of the board of managers of Florence mission tomorrow at 10 a. m.

Alfred Lasher, of Monsey avenue, had his jaw broken Saturday by a kick of a horse.

The Tribune on Wednesday morning will contain the most complete election returns printed outside of Philadelphia. Order the right paper in advance.

The exchanges at the Scranton clearing house last week were: Monday, $104,723.10; Tuesday, $107,109.75; Wednesday, $123,670.02; Thursday, $131,811.28; Friday, $156,920.22; Saturday, $189,992.58; total, $1,011,226.71.

Jennie Richmond, 15 years old, disappeared Wednesday night from her home at 107 Jones street and was found Saturday in Green Ridge with a family named Shookmaker. In the interval an anxious search had been made for her by her parents, assisted by the police.

The funeral of Mrs. Charles Atwater, of Deacon street, took place Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the Dunmore Presbyterian church. Rev. J. W. Williams conducted the services. The Hiram chapter, lodge of Poughkeepsie, and Ladies' Relief corps No. 50, attended the services in a body. The pallbearers were chosen from members of the Grand Army of the Republic, of which Mr. Atwater was a member. Interment was made in the Dunmore cemetery.

MIXED THINGS UP.

Baker, Teamster and Laborer Fight in a Night Lunch Wagon.

A baker, a teamster and a laborer quarreled, had a fight and turned things upside down in a night lunch wagon Saturday night and in police court yesterday morning the baker paid a fine of $5.

Alexander Mauthey, aged 28 years, a baker, living on "Gypsy street," James Ruddy, aged 21 years, a driver, and Peter Baldwin, aged 27 years, a laborer, the two latter living in Bellevue, got into some kind of a muss in the lunch wagon at Lackawanna and Wyoming avenues at 2 o'clock in the morning. The space they had to fight in was only 4 by 7 feet and it quite naturally followed that the combatants, a lamp or two, an oil stove and sundry provisions became mixed up in hopeless confusion.

Patrolman Palmer and Hetheroth called off the fight and led the fighters to the station house. Mauthey, the baker, became somewhat faulty and twisted in giving his account of the fray and had to pay $5. The others were discharged.

VERY DARING THIEVES.

They Entered Reed's Grocery Store on Washington Avenue Yesterday.

During yesterday afternoon thieves entered Reed's grocery store at 316 Washington avenue and succeeded in carrying away $200 cigars, 100 packs of cigarettes, a few cans of fancy articles and 60 cents from the money drawer, which was forced open.

The culprits are believed to be boys from the fact that entrance was made through a narrow opening in the rear door, from which a pane of glass had been removed.

Shoppers should try a refreshing cup of Bouillon or a plate of Concomme, served free daily this week at Goldsmith's Bazaar.

LAST SAD FUNERAL RITES

Said Over the Remains of Ex-Judge John Handley.

BRIEF SERVICES AT ST. LUKE'S

Crowd Was Filled with a Morbid and Unusually Curiosity—Will Is Read to Pall Bearers, Who Are Pledged to Secrecy.

Never before in Scranton's history has a funeral attracted such an elbowing, shoving and unruly crowd as that which pushed and tore one another yesterday in and outside St. Luke's church on Wyoming avenue, where the services were held over the body of ex-Judge John Handley. It was morbid curiosity and not a desire to do reverence to one prominent and well known.

The service was of the very simplest nature. It consisted only of the impressive Episcopal ritual. There were no unusual details, nor had anything been announced which offered even the slightest excuse for the unseemly and undignified actions of the immense throng.

Fortunately it was impossible for more than half of them to get inside the church. Many of those who did get in, especially those who stood or sat in the rear, made an exhibition which is sometimes seen at a wedding but does not often occur at a funeral. They whispered, gossiped, giggled and did pretty near everything but hold in due reverence the solemn occasion.

Rich and Poor Present.

Aside from the unseemly curiosity feature, the funeral of Judge Handley in a measure attested his prominence, the esteem in which his memory was cherished and his worth while living. Those who composed the large gathering represented persons in all walks of life, of men and women best known in the city's social, business and professional world there were many, but the majority were evidently people of the common classes. Some of these were poor, in fact, many of them were, who possibly gave rise to the supposition that this were persons whom Judge Handley had befriended. Certainly their mourning was honest, and they contributed their part toward the responses in the service.

When 1 o'clock had arrived the only available space in the large church were the pews reserved for the Lackawanna Bar association and the few friends who were expected to accompany the remains from the apartments on Lackawanna avenue. As was provided later this reserved space was insufficient, and when the services began the auditorium contained probably the largest throng in its history. The side aisles, the rear of the church and the entrance were packed full. Outside the closed doors a crowd of several hundred waited impatiently.

At the Residence.

All of yesterday the body rested in the casket in the rear of the Merchants and Mechanics' bank, in the room which Judge Handley had used as an office. The casket was cloth-covered and plain and had eight handles, one on each end and the others along the side. The upper half of the cover was kept removed and disclosed to view the life-like countenance. The appearance was of profound slumber rather than death. In the room were six floral remembrances—a wreath of roses and violets from Miss Jennie Howell, roses and palm leaf from Mrs. P. R. White, roses from Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Croyle, a large arrangement of flowers from the servants, and two other set pieces. A plate on the casket bore the simple inscription:

JOHN HANDLEY.
Born January 7, 1835.
Died February 15, 1895.

At 2:45 o'clock the Lackawanna Bar association arrived at the bank building in a body and after viewing the remains accompanied the funeral procession to the church. The active pallbearers were men employed by Under-taker Price, of the West Side, who had charge of the funeral. The pallbearers of honor were: Ex-Judge G. M. Handley, of Wilkes-Barre; Judge H. M. Edwards, ex-Judge G. W. Ward, ex-Justice Alfred Hand, ex-Judge H. A. Knapp, Judge F. W. Gunter, Hon. L. A. Watres, Hon. J. E. Barrett, E. N. Willard, W. F. Halladay, James J. Leonard, James J. Williams, F. R. White, A. D. Holland and T. E. Leonard. The flower bearers were C. W. Gunter, H. A. Howell, E. J. Jifkins, and P. J. O'Malley, all young men.

Servants of the Ex-Judge.

In two of the carriages were the attendants of the household, as follows: Mrs. McNally, Annie Hefrey, Eliza Ward, V. Joyce, Maggie Connolly and Frank Wheeler.

At the church the casket was deposited before the chancel rail, but at the termination of the services it was taken to the front entrance, where the body was viewed by the gathering as it passed into the street.

The service was conducted by Rev. Rogers Israel, the pastor, and began with the reading of The Sentences and the singing of the Burial Chant. The hymn, "Hark, Hark, My Soul," sung by Mrs. George DuB. Dimmick, Mrs. Rogers Israel, David Stevens and Thomas Aubrey, was followed by the reading of 1 Corinthians, xv. 20. After the reading and saying of the creed, collects and prayers, the hymn, "Now the Laborer's Task is O'er," was sung, which concluded the services.

The remains were taken to the Lackawanna avenue residence, where they rested during last night. At 9:55 this morning a large party of friends will start with the body via the Lackawanna road for Winchester, Va., where interment will take place Tuesday morning. The casket will be taken in a special combination baggage and passenger car, which will be run through to Virginia. Those who will comprise the party are James J. Williams, James Jordan, Franklin Howell, A. J. Casey, Lemuel Amerman, John T. Richards, Judge H. M. Edwards, P. R. White, John Moors, George S. Horn, Dr. W. E. Allen, Mrs. Edward Jifkins, John Handley Jifkins, Gustave Hahn, ex-Judge G. M. Harding and H. W. Palmer, of Wilkes-Barre; Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Hottenstein and Miss Hottenstein, of Milton.

Contents of the Will.

The contents of Judge Handley's will were announced after the funeral by Mr. Palmer, of Wilkes-Barre, one of the executors. The information was given only to the pallbearers and they were pledged to secrecy until today, when the will is to be probated at 3 o'clock a. m.

The pallbearers had gathered in the parlors by request and Mr. Palmer introduced his remarks to them by explanation. He said that the three executors were to leave the city with the body within two hours after probating the will, and in consequence they had only that opportunity to make known publicly its contents. He then named in a general way the bequests of Judge Handley, but the testament was not produced.

The Lackawanna Bar association met Saturday in the court house to take action upon Judge Handley's death. A number of attorneys made remarks eulogistic to the deceased's memory, and a committee was appointed to prepare resolutions for publication.

Ex-Justice Hand and Colonel Ochsmaus acted as chairman and secretary respectively of the meeting. Judge Edwards, T. F. Wells and C. Conneys were appointed the committee on resolutions. The speakers were ex-Lieutenant Governor L. A. Watres, T. F. Wells, Judge Edwards, Lemuel Amerman, ex-Judge Ward, City Solicitor Torrey, J. M. C. Rance and L. M. Rummel.

Tributes to His Memory.

Each of these paid a fitting tribute to the estimable qualities of the dead ex-Judge, and an excerpt from the remarks of ex-Lieutenant Governor Watres is an illustration of the sentiments expressed. He said:

"For more than a quarter of a century I have known Judge Handley and I found in him many noble traits of character which drew forth my admiration of esteem. To many in his retired life he seemed enigmatical—mysterious, a kind of a 'hundred-dollar man.' We knew of him that, although he seldom if ever attended public worship, he had a firm faith in and a strong reliance upon Almighty God, and while not subscribing to any particular creed he sustained his life as he saw the light by the golden rule. He never made gifts to be seen of men, but none surpassed him in indiscriminate and bountiful giving."

"It may be truthfully said of him that he never turned his back upon a worthy friend or a deserving cause. Often misinterpreted and misunderstood, he was nevertheless a man of warm heart and broad and generous sympathies, and within easy access to all who trusted him. Courteous and kind toward all, he was especially considerate of young men. In his sudden departure I have lost a warm personal friend."

FATAL DYNAMITE BLAST.

Two Men Terribly Injured Saturday Morning on the South Side—One of Them Dies.

By an explosion of dynamite two men were injured Saturday morning, and one of them so fatally that he died in the afternoon at the Lackawanna hospital.

Christian Woehle, of 521 Fifth avenue, and August Moser, of Prospect avenue, were engaged by Charles Cooper, of the South Side, to dig a trench from the water main in the street to Cooper's house, which is situated near the corner of Maple street and Prospect avenue. The ground is very rocky and the men had to use dynamite. One of the charges failed to explode and they poured water into the hole and began to re-dill it when it blew up. Woehle's eyes were blown out, his nose shot off and his arms and legs terribly mutilated. He died in the afternoon at the hospital.

Moser sustained less serious injuries; his face was battered besides several ugly scalp wounds, and his arms and legs were badly hurt. Dr. Kolb, of Cedar avenue, attended him and left him resting comfortably. Woehle's body was removed to his late home on Fifth avenue. He has a wife and family. Moser is also married and has a wife and family.

SENT TO COUNTY JAIL.

Daniel Flannigan Accused of Being Instrumental in the Death of His Child.

Daniel Flannigan, of Bull's Head, had a hearing Saturday morning before Alderman Roberts, of the North End, and was committed to the county jail in default of $200 bail.

Flannigan was arrested at the instance of his wife on the charge of assault and battery, and she also lays the blame of the death of their infant son on her husband. Her story is that she was standing on the back porch, holding the child in her arms and her husband pushed her off, so that she fell on the child and crushed its frail body so badly that the young one died on Feb. 2. Flannigan avers that his wife was drunk and on account of her helplessness fell off the porch without being pushed.

Dr. Sureth, of the North End, was called in and he treated the child for bronchial troubles, and in making out the death certificate Dr. Sureth specified the cause of death as bronchitis. But while Flannigan is in jail in the charge of assault and battery, the charge his wife prefers against him will be investigated.

IN LOCAL THEATERS.

Arthur Dunn, the little comedy giant of "The Derby Winner," was a striking figure in the new comedy, "The Derby Winner," which is being presented by the Extravaganza company for years. Dunn is a great character as Tommy Bell in "The Derby Winner," and his eccentricities are productive of genuine high-class comedy. His make-up is droll, and his actions are full of natural humor. "The Derby Winner" will be seen at the Academy of Music on Friday and Saturday evenings next.

The date for the appearance of "Shaft No. 2" at the Academy of Music has been changed from Friday next to a date early in March.

Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage will deliver his lecture on his "Journey Around the World" at the Frothingham Thursday night. There will be no changing of date or postponing this time. A large audience will no doubt greet Mr. Talmage.

Manager Davis is especially fortunate in securing a return date for "A Jay Circus." It will be here Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons and evenings. It is said to have been strengthened by the addition of a number of new specialties. "Killarney and the Rhine" proved a great "winner" to use a professional term. Not even standing room could be had, at an early hour, Saturday evening, and hundreds were turned away disappointed. It is an excellent show and could return here to great advantage, in our opinion.

Pillsbury's Flour Mills have a capacity of 17,500 barrels a day.

DIED.

BOND.—Alice D. Bond, aged 4 years, 6 months, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Bond, funeral at residence, 1009 Dickson avenue, Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock. Interment at Riverview cemetery, Portland.

O'DONNELL.—In Scranton, Feb. 16, 1895, Sarah Ann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neil O'Donnell, aged 1 month. Funeral from home on Depot street, Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Interment in Hyde Park cemetery.

They Know a Good Thing.

One-third of the net proceeds of the oratorio "Paul of Tarsus," to be given in April by the Sacred Music society, is to be given The Tribune for the Finishing and Furnishing Fund.

Max Phillips, of the West Side, and George Nealon, of Green Ridge, two young boys, have expressed their intention of giving, in their respective localities, stereopticon entertainments for the benefit of the fund. The scheme originated in the boys' gymnasium class, of which young Phillips and Nealon are members. The class is largely composed of boys from these two sections and they propose to see which locality can do the best work for a good cause.

It should be remembered that contributions for this fund can be made in amounts from 1 cent upward. If 1 cent or a time is all you can afford to give, why send it along—it will be just as freely acknowledged as a check for $100. Of course checks for $100 or $50 are wanted, but the fundamental principle of this fund is to get money, and as much money as possible, consequently a sum is not too insignificant to be noticed.

If you desire, cut this out and send with your contribution to The Tribune.

After being but one week out of the penitentiary, where he had served a 15-month sentence for theft, Clarence Osterhout got himself arrested early yesterday morning on the wind-up of a temper kind of a spree.

Osterhout ran through Brock court until he reached No. 537, where he jumped onto the porch, scattered things right and left and then demanded admittance. He pounded and kicked the door until Patrolman Day interrupted him. On the way to the police station Osterhout drew a knife and tried to stab the officer. He was disarmed and placed in a cell.

A men's mission will open next Sunday at the late mission of St. Patrick's cathedral and it will continue for two weeks, ending on Sunday, March 16. SCRANTON WON EASILY.

Exciting Basket Ball Game on Saturday Night at Gymnasium.

An exciting basket ball game was played at the Young Men's Christian association rooms on Saturday night between the Scranton and Pittston teams, resulting in an easy victory for Scranton, the score being 6 to 3.

A large audience witnessed the game and followed it with great interest, the general opinion being that it was the cleanest and best game of the season.

REV. J. J. MANGAN STRICKEN.

Was Forced to Leave the Altar at Late Mass Yesterday at the Cathedral.

While celebrating the 10:30 o'clock high mass at the cathedral yesterday morning Rev. Father Mangan became ill and is now confined to his bed, attended by Dr. P. H. Kearney; but the physician is hopeful and the news will be very acceptable that Father Mangan's condition is by no means serious, and that his illness will not extend beyond a few days.

Father Mangan, while celebrating mass, became cognizant that an attack of weakness was about to overcome him and he changed the service to a low mass, intending to conclude no much sooner, but at the offertory he was compelled to give up, and would have swooned upon the altar but for being supported by one of the acolytes.

Father Mangan was assisted to the sacristy and Dr. Kearney, who was present, immediately came forward and rendered medical assistance.
