STREET CARS SNOWED UNDER

The Traction Company Making No Efforts to Accommodate the Dear Public—Tribune Ahead on Election Returns—Miscellaneous News.

Special to the Scranton Tribune. Pittston, Feb. 24.—Where is Pittston's electric cars? It is a question that is asked every day of late by visitors to our city. The Traction company is making no effort to clear their tracks through our streets, although the snow has nearly melted the mass of snow which fell on the first of this month.

Some of our worthy contemporaries are claiming all the credit of publishing the full election returns of this city at our last election. We are well aware that the people of Pittston are of the high intellectual character, and will always give credit where credit is due. We quote a short editorial from The Tribune of Feb. 21, which we wish to impress upon our many readers. "Although it is a habit we have, Pittstonians will please make note of the fact that The Tribune printed the full election returns of all the morning papers. You don't get the best if you don't take The Tribune." We still have in our possession a copy of the Wednesday morning issue of The Tribune by which we can verify our statements.

The other contestant, Alexander Baird, of Inkerman, received $12.75.

Success of Eagle's Fair. Over 300 people attended the third night of the Eagle Hose company's "Old Time Fair." All are well pleased with the attention given to visitors by the fire ladders. The boys are greatly elated over their success at such an early stage of their fair. The receipts so far, the boys say, are beyond their expectations.

All complaints of non-delivery of The Tribune should be reported at our local office, 8 South Main street. Miss Katie Saltry, of Scranton, is visiting friends in this city.

WANDERED FROM HOME.

A Long Spell of Forgetfulness at Last By the United Press. Akron, Feb. 24.—In the fall of 1886 Cornelius Stough suddenly disappeared from his home here. He left his family as usual in the morning and was not seen or heard of again in Akron. A long, but unsuccessful search was made for him, and he was given up as dead. Today a letter was received from him by Cassius Stough, his brother. The man is now running a restaurant in Marion, Ind. He claims to remember nothing of his going away, and had recently remembered the home and relatives and friends he had in Akron. His wife and daughter moved to Cleveland several years ago, after the death of a son, the only other child. Stough was subject to insanity and had been treated at one time at Newburg. He will come here at once to meet his family.

EATING THEIR HORSES.

Sore Straits to Which Drouth Sufferers By the United Press. St. Joseph, Mo., Feb. 24.—B. W. Hlatt, of western Kansas, who is in this city soliciting aid for sufferers in that section, says the people of Montgomery and neighboring counties are eating horse flesh, not being able to get other food. Their cows are being trained to draw plows, etc., and by this means the farmers hope to be able to put in a crop this spring.

INDUSTRIAL TOPICS.

One ray of sunlight has appeared through the dark clouds surrounding the anthracite trade. The New York Commercial Advertiser has inspected the record of the individual shipments over each coal road for the first two weeks in February. It says: "The Erie, the Ontario and Western, the Susquehanna and Western, and the Delaware, Susquehanna and Schuylkill have in these two weeks restricted their shipments well within 50 per cent. of the capacity, and in some cases even to 33 per cent. of the capacity. The larger roads, including Pennsylvania, are doing the same thing. The stocks of coal, moreover, have been appreciably diminished since the cold weather began, and all the roads have found that the demand is larger than the supply now being mined. Prices, however, at interior points are not merely maintained, but are even slightly higher than last month. It does not seem for the minute as if the cutting is anything more than sporadic. There is much more cry than wool in the talk of demoralization in the coal trade. It seems really, that, thanks to a very severe winter and an awakened conscience on the part of the Lackawanna and Pennsylvania, due to the stress of necessity, the coal trade in these two weeks out of its trouble."

Philadelphia Stockholders: Notwithstanding the cold weather of the past few weeks the feeling in anthracite coal trade circles is unsettled, extreme nervousness prevailing, ascribed to the fact that a belief exists that the trade is on the verge of general collapse. Certain interests are said to be preparing for it. The basis for the feeling is the continued weakening of prices, despite the cool weather, which has largely depleted dealers' stocks and brought them into the market. The one reason for the feeling is that the trade is in position to be patched up over night. This is the single hope which every interest is clinging to; its realization will depend entirely upon the percentage committee. Some of the best informed interests feel that a general collapse in the anthracite coal trade is inevitable, but if this should result, there is no doubt whatever that a good many of the smaller concerns would go to the wall. An official of the Lehigh Valley railroad yesterday said that the committee has now complete figures for the past year, and that it has been impossible to obtain them for 1894. He believed that a temporary re-adjustment of percentages would be made on a basis of the figures for 1893, and that a permanent arrangement may be effected after last year's figures shall have been received. The figures of the bureau of anthracite coal statistics show that for this month the output has been about as agreed upon at the meeting of sales agents in January. The daily average has been about 50,188 tons, which, if continued, would mean a month's production of 1,505,640 tons. For the week ended Feb. 9 shipments aggregated 524,965 tons, a decrease compared with the same week last year of 21,927 tons. The Lehigh and Schuylkill regions both show decreases in shipments, but the Wyoming region's increased by 15,343 tons. For the year that date shipments aggregated 5,731,322 tons, against 5,455,937 tons last year, an increase of 275,385 tons.

Philadelphia Inquirer: The Lehigh Navigation annual report presents two features of the utmost importance. First, the profit on mining coal in 1894 was very small, the Lehigh Navigation, whose product has the highest reputation in the market, making a profit of only 19 cents a ton, against 34 cents a ton in 1893. However, that is better than the Lehigh Valley, which made 17 1/2 cents, and much better than the Reading, which made less than 4 cents. Second, a small profit in mining is but temporary and will be recovered from as soon as business improves. The second feature, and by far the most important, is the decrease in the receipts from transportation coal. The average revenue per ton for the Lehigh and Susquehanna railroads' coal traffic last year was 56.75 cents. In 1893 the average was 63.77 cents. There has been a reduction therefore of about 11 per cent. This loss, unlike the decrease in the profits on mining, is almost entirely a permanent loss. The price of coal at the mines often changes, but there is no case in the history of the trade when the transportation rates were permanently advanced. The whole tendency of transportation cost is downward, and once a reduction is made it is practically impossible to return to the old rate. This is really the most serious problem in the anthracite situation. The tonnage question, perplexing as it is, can be adjusted, if not before a fight then after one, but this matter of freight rates is ten times as difficult to deal with. When the Lehigh Valley made its reduced rate contract with the New Haven road last year there was a universal sentiment that the reduction was a grave error. Time has proved it to be such, as the report of every anthracite road so far published shows a serious falling off in earnings from coal. And, moreover, it is only a question of time when the Lehigh Valley will be forced down more nearly into conformity with tide-water rates, unless by some miracle and in the shuffle that will mark the end of the present trade complications it will be found possible in some way to advance the rates to tide-water.

STOCKS AND BONDS.

New York, Feb. 25.—Trading at the Stock exchange was quiet and the course of prices irregular. Distilling was the feature of the dealings and rose to 1 1/2, the highest in demand at 1 1/2. Next the close there was a reaction to 1 1/4. Sugar and Lead were lower, Corn and Wheat were higher. The quotations are as follows: Central was inclined to weakness and dropped to 8 1/2. Manhattan advanced to 10 1/2, the highest in demand at 10 1/2. The Grangers, trunk lines, Lackawanna, Delaware and Hudson, Reading and the Yandervelt were absolutely featureless. Speculation closed tame and irregular. The sales were 7,000 shares. Not changed since yesterday's closing. The range of today's prices for the active stocks of the New York stock market are given below. The quotations are furnished The Tribune by G. D. B. SLOWLY STARVING.

Surrounded by Plenty, but Dying for Food.

An Every-day Occurrence.—Our Friends Perishing Before Our Eyes. A terrible experience for any one to go through, that of being slowly starved, while surrounded by plenty, and unable to derive sufficient nourishment from their food to sustain life. Medicine naturally becomes of little avail, and the various organs of the body, debilitated from a lack of nourishment, take on themselves the disease that was originally the cause of the "breakdown," and help hasten the end.

Such cases, though too prevalent, are happily becoming less frequent. The eminent physician of today do things differently from those of twenty years ago. They first put the patient in a condition to stand the "siege," then enrich his blood, create for him new strength, and "build him up" generally. The patient is then in a condition to derive benefit from his medicine.

This is done by the use of Bovinine, the original raw food. It is an extract that contains the greatest amount of the life-sustaining and tissue-building properties of lean, raw meat, concentrated in the least possible bulk.

The advantage of this is obvious. A patient already greatly weakened by disease, needs to husband every particle of strength. A few drops of Bovinine will impart as much nourishment to the body as would be derived by a well person from an ordinary meal; and, in getting this nourishment, the stomach has been forced to do the least possible amount of work.

Bovinine, continued throughout an illness, greatly hastens recovery. Taken at the beginning of a wasting disease, it diverts the cause of the trouble by toning up the various organs, and getting them in a normal condition. Bovinine is endorsed by 25,000 doctors. Its action is always beneficial, as a single trial will convince the most sceptical.
