The Senate Considers the Naval Appropriation Bill.

House Passes a Bill Awarding Pension General McClernand - Watchdog Dockery on Guard - Requests for Unanimous Consent Objected To.

By the United Press. Washington, March 3.-The senate spent nearly four and a half hours in session this afternoon-from 2 till 6.30 -and then took a recess until 8 p. m. The naval appropriation bill was under consideration for most of the time-the pending question being on the amendment reported from the committee on appropriations to reduce the number of battleships to be contracted for from three to two. Many speeches were made on each side of the question, but no vote was reached. There was an understanding, however, that the vote would be taken before 10 p. m.

Little Accomplished in the House.

The Sabbath day session of the house was productive of but little in the way of accomplished legislation. Numerous requests for unanimous consent were made, but generally wherever an appropriation was required to make the measure effective-and in some case where no money was involved-it met the fatal objection of "watchdog" Dockery or a disgruntled member smarting under the sting of failure to get desired consideration.

Mr. Springer succeeded in having passed under suspension of the ruler the senate bill pensioning General J. A McClernand, of Illinois, at the rate of $100 a month. It was opposed by Mr Jones, of Virginia, and advocated by Mr. Sickles, of New York, who made as effective five-minute speech, in which he quoted President Lincoln's appreciation of General McClernand's ser
