On the following night "Without a Name," by the same author will be given. A company composed principally of New York people has been engaged to produce the plays and the scenery is being painted by Edward Joyce, of Bellevue, an artist of much ability.

Miss May Smith Robbins and company will open a three days' engagement at Davis' theater today, presenting the amusing musical comedy, "Lit-Trixie." It is legitimate comedy full of pathos and humor and should not be confounded with those beterogeneous farces that are created simply for the introduction of specialties. "Little Trixle" is a comedy overflowing with excitement and laughter, diversified with charming instrumental music, latest vocal and operatic selec-tions and graceful dancers. Miss Robbins is considered one of the greatest dancers on the American stage and she will appear in her charming character impersonations.

SERMON TO ODD FELLOWS

Delivered by Rev. W. G. Watkins in Main Avenue Baptist Church.

OBJECTS OF SOCIETY PRAISED

Several Hundred Members of the Order in the North End of the City Listened to the Able Discourse Spread of Odd Fellowship.

The North Main Avenue Baptist church was well filled last night, when Rev. W. G. Watkins preached an excelent sermon on "The Worth of Fraternity," before the Celestial and Lincoln lodges of Providence and the Hiram odge of Green Ridge, of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, who attended in a body to the number of nearly 225 In his sermon Rev. Mr. Watkins said: There still exists in the world an ever amount of selfishness; but as fraternity or the idea of brotherhood grows and sprends selfishness is pushed into the background. Selfishnes, by definition, is the chief regard for the individual. It has been called the law of self-preservation, not that it purposely antago-nizes the interests of each other, but its sole concern is with the interests of self. Fraternity, on the other hand, recognizes the claims of others as well as its

As Odd Fellows you are familiar with the divine statement of the highest deelopment of the fraternal interest, as velopment of the fraternal interest, as one of the principal pillars of your temple is "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." It is scarcely necessary to remind you that we have not yet attained the reign of love, but it might be to our encouragement to feel that we are attaining to it and that just as sure of God has laid down the possility of achieving it by saying "Thon ait," so surely shall this world be-me broad enough some day to ac-owledge the universal brotherhood

Theory of Survival of the Best.

Theory of Survival of the liest.

There probably was a time when the fraternal relation of men was unknown as it was only a generation ago when Mr. Darwin announced that the law "struggle for life" governed all forms of life, plants, animals and human, and so fierce and ceaseless was this strug-gle in the early history of the world that each individual's energies were completely taxed for its own preserva-tion. It is even yet the rule among some of the savage and lower forms of Some of the savage and lower forms of life that only the strongest survive.

Not long ago Professor Drummond offset this by a law which he called "the struggle for the life of others," in which he shows how, by the aid of others, a plant which in itself is immovable, by the birds, winds and waves has its seed scattered to all parts of the world and in this co-operation of na-ture we see the first stages of fra-ternity But it is crude, being that it is unintentionally and uncon-But if we go a step higher we ee where the idea is carried out farther by the ant and bee, who each form a protherhood or swarm for their mutual nid and protection. And make for themselves a temple, heaven and home, where they can live and bring their burdens and rest also where they can store up food for the winter. Have you ever noticed how, like man, the bee is divided into three classes, the queens, the workers, and the drones; our queens being the aristocraticy, our workers the great toiling mass, and the drones are personated by the tramps and idlers who live on the earnings and good will of others. But the bee can teach us much by the prompt and efficient manmer in which they deal with their drones killing them and throwing them out of the hive rather than locking them up and feeding them at public ex-ments and conditions of human ad-vancement, and brotherhood is what makes and holds the family together, as from the family grows the community in a limited sense, and from the com-munity grows the state, and from the state the nation, all based upon and derivedsfrom one origin and family and by the extension of this process you can arrive not only at the nation, but to the whole of the human race. It is strange that we should ever have lost sight of the fact that we are all of one family, and until we recognize it God cannot accomplish his purpose. The word of inspiration says in Acts 17, 26, that "God hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth and hath de termined the times before appointed and the bounds of their habitation." According to the Scriptureal story this brotherhood of the luman race was ac-knowledged until the confusion of Babel made strangers of brothers and scattered the different members of the family to all parts of the world. The members drifted apart and became changed so that when they next met they failed to recognize each other. The fra ternal bond which was broken at Babel is now waiting for civilization to restore and for Christianity to sanctify In the early days each tribe or clan went by itself into some natural fastness and counted all other as its ene-mies, but civilization is breaking down all barriers, and as It is now possible for us to communicate with all parts of the world as if we were face to face with the persons and as constantly inwith the persons and as constainty in-termingling with natives of all parts. We are beginning to recognize the Scriptural saying "of one blood," and I believe there are forces at work which will ultimately bring about the restoration and unification of the human race for our interests are all related to each other and are dependent on each other and a man left all by himself can ac-complish nothing and each man must sacrifice to a certain extent his own in-terests for the welfare of another.

Organization of Odd Fellows.

For the aid of each other and better ment of self many fraternities, or secret organizations, have been formed, but as most of them were founded on wrong principles they soon falled, as they should, but among the tried few that remained stands the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, which was founded seventy-six years ago, when, on April 26. Thomas Wildey, with four companions, formed what was called Washington lodge, No. 1, in Baltimore, and from this has sprung over 10,000 subordinate lodges and encampments, with over 700,000 members and with the kindred associations, the Manchester Unity, the total of Odd Fellows is over Unity, the total of Odd Fellows is over 1,400,000, or over a quarter of a million more than any other secret organization in this world. In the last sixty-five years the revenues of the lodges have been $130,000,000, and of late they have spent nearly $2,500,000 in the aid of the sick and disabled members, giving them enough each week to keep the wolf from the door, to the defraying of funeral expenses, the establishment of homes for the aged and dependent and to issue literature for the spread of "Fellowship, Love and Truth."

When any organization can claim and

When any organization can claim and When any organization can claim and actually accomplish such good it truly can be counted as a benefactor of the human race, and has answered Cain's question by saying "Yes, I am my brother's keeper." A fraternity that has such a noble record is certainly worth keeping, but to keep it demands eternal vigilance, for there are always enemies lurking near, some of whom enemies lurking near, some of whom will join and then give away the secrets; some of whom will try to gain offices they are unqualified to fill, and others will prove unfaithful to the vows they have taken. To perpetuate this society we must have a social enthusiasm and not allow a few only to do the work that must be carried on. But if we try, by our own help only, we will never be able to bring the society above human level. By becoming Christians we not only become better Odd Fellows, but we are also able to raise the standard high.

The most beautiful of examples of un-The most beautint of examples of anselfishness and fraternal love is shown in the words "I have not called you servants, I have called you friends, and greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for a

On Thursday the convention Northeastern Pennsylvania Central Luther league will be held at Zion church, on Mifflin avenue. The members of the local league are making extensive preparations for entertaining their guests. A programme of literary and musical selecons has been prepared for the afternoon and evening sessions.

A large congregation attended the seond Lenten organ recital at St. Luke's church Saturday afternoon, when the following selections were played by Organist J. Willis Conant: Prelude and Fugue, No. 3 (Mendelssohn); allegreto (Guilmant), prelude (Whiting) and Guilmant's prayer, which was included in the programme by request. Mr. Conant displayed a refined taste in the selection of the music, and his method of unfolding the beauties of the various numbers. His selection of the combination on the organ was all that could be desired. Mrs. George du Bols Dimmick, the well known soprano, sang "Come Unto Me" (Sahnecker) and "Abide With Me" (Shelley) with much expression and feeling. Following the recital Rev. Rogers Israel read evening prayer.

Evangelist James Scovili yesterday afternoon inaugurated a series of Gospel mission meetings, which will be held every Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Con servatory hall, Lackawanna avenue, in the course of his sermon, Mr. Scovill remarked that the meetings were intended for the sole purpose of spreading the Gos-pel, and not to build up a new church or create another denomination. He invited members of all denominations to attend the meetings and assist in the work. Evangelist Scovill was interviewed by a Tribune reporter, who asked whether 't was intended to organize a branch of the Church alliance, of which it was ru-mored Mr. Scovill was an accredited agent, and in reply, he stated that all the work intended to be done was to hold really a Gospel missions; further than that they had no plans in view. Mr. Scevill has resided on Monroe avenue since October last, and is busily engaged in conducting missions in neighborng cities. Meetings have also been held weekly at his residence until it was deemed destrable to rent a hall for the purpose. The Church alli-ance, whose headquarters are at New York, is a religious society better known as those believing in "faith cure" and that God heals both body and soul.

SPRING INSPECTIONS

Order Issued by Colonel E. H. Ripple with Regard to Them.

OPPICERS MUST BE EFFICIENT

Colonel E. H. Ripple has addressed the following circular to the captains. The suggestions it contains are timely, and each enlisted man should co-operate in carrying out the suggestions as set forth by this circular: Headquarters Thirteenth Regiment, Third Brigade, National Guard of Pennsylircular No. 1.

Second-The inspection will be in school of company guard duty, extended order and setting up exercises.
Third—Efficiency of officers will be especially noted. Inefficient officers will probably be rooted out of the service. Fourth-Companies in unsatisfactory condition will be specially reported, with the object, no doubt, of ridding the ser-f improvement.

A circular has been later issued from the inspector general's office which prescribes in addition to the above as follows:

Returns of state property made by ompany commanders in camp will be certified at this spring inspection, and any hortage area. hortage or excess noted on the returns. 'Regimental commanders will have preared a roster of the United States num-ers on the rifles at present in the possession of the companies of their com-mand and of those belonging to headquar-ters, and present the same to the brigade inspector upon the occasion of the inspec tion of the various companies of a regi-ment in order that the same may be veri-

The percentage thus obtained will count materially in the

The percentage of attendance will figure largely in the yearly average, and all company commanders will give particular we cannot afford to neglect anything that affects our rating; so that you are all urged to double diligence and renewed vigilance in keeping the Thirteenth to the front. senior captain came the announcement that Colonel Ripple, being hard pressed for time by business interests, was compelled to ask for his discharge from the office of colonel of the regiment.

Colonel Ripple's resignation is not the result of a hasty impulse. It was agreed the when he was re-elected to the command that should be at any time find that his duties as colonel become too burdensome, his resignation would be accepted without resistence We must console our feelings by the fact, however, that the "Guard" will not lose him altogether. The position of Commissary General on Governor Hasting's staff is one of vast import ance, coupled with honor. Colone Ripple, by his perservance, tact and all generous nature, has endeared himself to the boys as few men could have done and his interest in the regiment will not, we are sure, grow less, by reason of his retirement.

The Prospective Colonel. Lieutenant Colonel Coursen is next in line of promotion, and he seems to be the unanimous choice for this responsible position. That he will have the co operation of our retiring colonel, if elected, there is not a doubt. Colonel Coursen is amply qualified by a long term of service, including a record for service in the "War of the Rebellion." His war record shows him to have en listed Sept. 15, 1861, a private in Com pany I.
