OPPOSED TO DECKELNICK

Protest That Was Made in License Court Against His Hotel.

VIOLATION OF LAW CHARGED

Cases from the Thirteenth Ward Ep for Consideration—Stories Told About Mr. Gluck, of Fell Township—Alleged That Poker Is Played There.

After court opened yesterday morning the first remonstrance argued was against the application of J. E. Edwards for a bottle's license in the Fourth ward. The charges against him were that he sold beer without a license and also disposed of it by the barrel.

Attorney E. H. House advocated the cause of the remonstrants against the petition of William Deckelnick for a license. This is the place that aroused so much opposition from the pastor and congregation of St. John's German Catholic church last year. It was alleged that Deckelnick violated the law during the past year by selling liquor on election day and supplying it to young men under age.

William Langan said he bought and drank beer at Deckelnick's last election day and he was an eye witness to a disgraceful occurrence on the same occasion. Deckelnick came from behind his bar and ejected a drunken man from the saloon and he applied his boots to accelerate the poor fellow's departure. Mr. Deckelnick replied to the charge that liquor was sold by him on election day.

He said his wife made the sale innocently and he did not know she had the place opened; but as soon as he found it out he locked the door and made no more sales that day. He never sold any liquor to minors. Mrs. Deckelnick substantiated her legs lord's statements and many witnesses swore that the place was conducted the past year according to law and order.

There were no startling features in the third application from the Sixth or Seventh ward. Judge Gunster wished to be informed concerning a midnight quarrel at W. J. Robb's Crystal Palace on Lackawanna avenue about a year ago. No remonstrances were filed from this ward against the application of James F. Kearney for a new house on the Thirteenth ward. Colonel F. L. Hitchcock and Attorney W. W. Lathrop represented the remonstrants.

Thirteenth Ward Cases. The first case heard was F. G. Harlick's, who asks for a renewal of his bottle's license. Attorney J. Elliot Ross represented him. The testimony of John Hughes was offered to show that Harlick assaulted him and was drunk at the time. Attorney C. S. Woodruff, Rev. W. J. Ford, Attorney MeAskle, J. H. Rittenhouse, swore that the establishment is not a necessity. Mr. Harlick testified that his place has been licensed for a number of years.

The application of Martin Bird for a new house on North Washington avenue, near the county jail, was next opposed. It was represented by Mr. Ross and opposed by Mr. Lathrop. Mr. Ross told a touching story about how two lone women who had taken passage on a street car, that got snow-bound near the jail were accommodated with shelter at Bird's place. Mr. Lathrop suggested that Mr. Bird's establishment might be right convenient for the jail birds.

The case of James J. Kelley, of 1507 York Street, was next considered. His application was attacked because it is alleged that it is not properly conducted. In the afternoon the remonstrance against renewing the license of John Horn was taken up. George S. Horn was attorney for the petitioner. The allegations made against the applicant were that he or his bartender sold liquor to boys under age a number of times, and that a drunken tailor and a drunken shoemaker spend most of their time and a good part of their scant earnings at Mr. Horn's bar. All of this he denied stoutly.

Nichols is a cripple. O. J. Nichols applied for a restaurant license. His attorney, Mr. Zimmerman, argued that the petition is a cripple. Colonel Hitchcock replied that Nichols should not be allowed to make cripples of other people. The application of Michael McAndrew for a bottle's license on Von Storch avenue was the last one heard from the Thirteenth ward.

When the Thirteenth ward cases were disposed of a hearing was resumed in the petition of Joseph Gluck, of Fell township. Attorney John P. Kelly and ex-Judge Stanton appeared for Mr. Gluck, and Mr. Zimmerman for the remonstrants. William Peck swore that he saw gambling going on in Gluck's place one night last February. The date was somewhere around the fifth of the month and it was on Saturday night. The game extended into Sunday morning. Peck thought the men were playing poker, but he does not know enough about the American game of draw to be positive. On cross-examination Peck admitted to the questions of Mr. Kelly that he had been in the tolls himself at various times for law-breaking.

Case of Joseph Gluck. Gluck was sworn and denied that he sold intoxicants on Sunday or to minors, or that he allowed gambling to go on at his place. Other witnesses were sworn who supported the good reputation of Gluck's dram shop. No remonstrances were filed against any of the applications in the Fourteenth ward.

In the Fifteenth ward there was no opposition to the old houses and two new houses applied for charters to sell drink. The proprietors are Stephen Flannaghan, on Luzerne street, and Hopkin L. Williams, on South Main avenue. No remonstrances were filed against them. Court then passed to the Sixteenth ward. One new petition was presented in the Seventeenth ward; one in the Eighteenth.

In none of these was there any opposition. When the Nineteenth ward was reached Judge Archbald remarked that out of nine licenses granted last year, seven were revoked because they were not taken out; and in the Twentieth ward there was a similar state of affairs. Patrick Corcoran was granted a license last year, but he did not trouble about taking it out. "What is the use of granting a license to this man," said Judge Archbald, "when he does not appear in court and take his license out?"

SOMEONE YELLED "POLICE"

"Cyclone" Kate and Maggie Montgomery Had a Little Argument.

She Got It After Throwing a Lighted Lamp at the "Cyclone's" Head—Mixed Ale Had Something to Do with It. "Cyclone" Goes to Jail.

MAGGIE WANTED HER DRESS

Maggie Montgomery was discharged from jail a few days ago only to find that during her imprisonment "her Tom" (that's what she called him) had transferred his affections to Kate Boylan, better known as "Cyclone," and who enjoys the distinction of having been given the first business ride in the police patrol wagon. These facts had a direct bearing on the temper-in-a-teapot sort of a time in Mistress Maggie's house on Railroad avenue early yesterday morning.

Her "Tom" from the stone-walled structure on Washington avenue to the freedom of city life was being celebrated by "Cyclone," Mistress Maggie and Tom and several other male spirits. Mixed ale and strong tobacco were the conspicuous mediums of the celebration. "You're lookin' pale, Maggie," said the "Cyclone."

"No, but I shall be worryin' over the other your looks or your dress," replied the whirlwind. "No, but I shall be worryin' over the dress you have on, Cyclone, for, by me faith, I believe that same belongs to me." "You're a liar, Mistress Maggie."

"You're a hussy," said the "Cyclone" as they were being placed in the patrol wagon. "I've got me dress, an' you haven't got me dress," was the reply.

Police Sergeant Fulton was called to attend Mistress Maggie in the central station house about 9 o'clock in the morning. Her condition was found to be delicate and she was hurried away to Railroad avenue and her Tom.

HE CRIED FOR HELP. Loftus, a supposed Burglar, Was Looking for a Doctor.

While trying to find the residence of a doctor in the North end early yesterday morning, Anthony Loftus entered two houses by mistake and was thrown out of one and fired upon by the occupants of another. The neighborhood was thrown into an uproar and quiet was restored by the police.

Richard Mansfield, the somewhat eccentric gentleman, who appeared in this city some time ago in "The Bromide" and vowed he would never return again, has leased Harrigan's theater in New York for five years with the privilege of giving a performance at an annual rental of $18,000. In future the theater will be known as the Garrick. Mr. Harrigan's illness and the recent loss of his son are the cause of his withdrawal from the management of the house. His physician advised a long rest.

Clad only in a sweet smile and a coat of bronze powder, a young woman with a Juno-like figure came to a halt in front of the Casino last night and made many a bald-headed man blush. Neither Manager Aronson nor A. Curtis Bond would disclose her name, the latter making various dark hints about Dr. Parkhurst and Anthony Comstock. The young lady appeared in a white sheet or something like it, but this slipper was purposely dropped and a whole and thriving bronze statue was revealed. The claim made by Nahl Bradley that the bronzing is done on the bare skin was more than verified—New York Herald.

Paul Potter's dramatization of George Du Maurier's novel, "Tribby," was given its first presentation at the Park theater, Boston, Monday night before a very large audience. Many of the prominent personages in the cast are well known to Scranton theater goers. Svengali, is impersonated by Wilton Lackaye, who ennobled the title role in "Dim the Penury" with the Palmer Stock company here last season. He also appeared in this city as Jefferson Stockton in "Aristocracy."

Mrs. Virginia Harms is Tribby and she will be remembered for her brilliant interpolation of the role of Mrs. Erylne in "Lady Windermer's Fan" at the Academy of Music last season. Robert Faton Gibbs, brother of Dr. Gibbs, of the West Side, who has appeared in this city with the "Soudan" and "Hands Across the Sea" companies, assumed the role of Tribby and Burr McIntosh, another Scranton favorite, is Taffy, the less English painter who loves Tribby no less fervently than Little Billie. Many of the prominent personages in the cast are well known to Scranton theater goers. Svengali, is impersonated by Wilton Lackaye, who ennobled the title role in "Dim the Penury" with the Palmer Stock company here last season. He also appeared in this city as Jefferson Stockton in "Aristocracy."

Owing to a report that they intended to leave the country, Mr. and Mrs. Leopold Nicotera have been arrested as witnesses in the case of Leonardo Rosa, charged with murdering Vito Lorusso in Dunmore several weeks ago.
