Charged with stealing a gold watch from a Lackawanna railroad employee in the Railroad Young Men's Christian association rooms, Oliver Perry was arrested last night by Patrolmen Sloan and Lewis. Perry is not a member of the association.

John Scovill, a watchmaker at Davison Bros., has just received a patent for a new device which is constructed to fit in the tail piece of a watchmaker's lathe. The tool is one that will prove of great benefit to watch repairing, and it bears the impress of more than ordinary mechanical cleverness.

A Dalton farmer who gave his name as Silas Brown bumped into the wrong person on Lackawanna avenue last evening and spent the night in a cell at the central police station. Farmer Brown is in a reckless, howling state and didn't care who knew it, and purposely bumped into each person he met from the Delaware and Hudson depot to Franklin avenue. At the latter thoroughfare he bumped into Patrolman Mills. He didn't bump any more.

It required the effort of four strapping patrolmen and the use of a patrol wagon to arrest and bring John Kelly, 35 years old, of Bellevue, to the central station house Saturday evening. Kelly works on the Lackawanna railroad and was in his cups during the afternoon. Patrolman Hetherford, who was first called to arrest him, was forced to send for help and it required a goodly portion of the added strength of Patrolmen Walsh, Mole and Dyer to the job. Alderman Fuller fined Kelly $5.

Local Institute at Old Forge.

A local institute will be held by the teachers of Old Forge township during April. An organization has been formed to take charge of it of which the following are officers: President, Miss Kate Clunnam; secretary, Miss Barbara Neelis; programme committee, Professors Gordon and Broadhead and Hon. F. R. Coyne.

MARRIED.

GOODMAN-BURK.—In Scranton, March 16, 1895, by Rev. Edwin Lunn Miller, Frederick Goodman and Miss Josephine Burk, both of Mayfield, Pa.

E. H. JORDAN'S BARN.

It Has Given Rise to an Interesting Law Suit.

Undertaker E. H. Jordan, of the South Side, who purchased recently two lots of ground on Prospect avenue and the corner of Cherry street, was restrained by a permanent injunction on Saturday in court from proceeding any further with the building of a barn on the property, for the reason, as alleged, that he made use of the 10-foot privilege.

Mr. Jordan bought the lots from Patrick Hanon, who purchased them from the Fisher estate in the plot known as the Cottage City tract. In the deed of every lot of ground sold is specified that "no building shall be erected on said lot within 10 feet of the street."

Mr. Jordan's barn was being built on the rear of the lots and on the 10-foot privilege on Cherry street. The lot adjoining on the upper side is owned by John O'Donnell. The barn was almost completed when O'Donnell began proceedings to stop Jordan going any further with the work of construction. City Solicitor Torrey took the case in hand and filed an equity suit. Judge Gunster handed down a preliminary injunction, and the hearing to strike off the rule came up Saturday before Judge Archbold.

Attorney L. H. Burns and M. J. Donohue represented Jordan and City Solicitor Torrey argued the plaintiff's side of the case. Testimony was offered Saturday to prove that the deeds of the lots Jordan owns specify that the 10-foot privilege must be reserved. The case was argued by both sides and Judge Archbold in an opinion delivered verbally handed down an order making the preliminary injunction permanent.

The defendants maintained that proceedings in ejectment should be begun instead of injunction steps taken. Court held that the plaintiffs were acting in accord with the right of law and decided in their favor. The case will later come up for final hearing.

FOR A RAINY DAY.

Scranton School Teachers Organize for That Special Purpose.

The city teachers, composing "The Teachers' Mutual Benefit Association, of Scranton," met in Liberty hall Saturday morning, and perfected a permanent organization. A sick benefit is the chief object of the association.

Officers were chosen as follows: Professor George Howell, president; Miss Eliza Chase, vice-president; Miss Josephine Leas, secretary; Professor D. A. Stone, treasurer. Six trustees were elected as follows: Professors M. H. Jordan, M. D. McCrawley, D. Graves and W. L. Burdick, and Miss Lizzie E. Penman and Miss Annie Malia. The constitution, which had been reported over a week ago, and copies of which had been distributed among the teachers last week, was adopted. It provides for a uniform initiation fee of $2 and monthly dues based upon a percentage of salary. It was decided to adopt some association badge or button, the matter to be arranged by the executive committee, which will consist of the board of officers and the six trustees.

FISKE JUBILEE SINGERS.

Entertained a Large Audience at the Y. M. C. A. Hall Saturday Evening.

Louie's original Fiske Jubilee singers entered a large audience at the Y. M. C. A. hall Saturday evening for a concert hall on Saturday night. The company comprise three sopranos, two contraltos, two tenors, two basses and a pianist. The first part opened with a southern melody, "O, Sinner Man," followed with an intonation of the Lord's prayer. In the number "The Building of the Old Ark" opportunity was given for a display of the hearty and free manner of singing the slave songs, and an encore was awarded. F. J. Louie, manager of the company, sang "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep," and in response to an encore gave "The Laziest Man in the Town." Miss M. P. Calloway, soprano, sang "Was a Vision," and displayed a remarkably pure voice and great range. The choruses sang by the company were well rendered and showed a considerable depth of feeling.

THEIR SILVER WEDDING.

Relatives and Friends Felicitate with Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Holley.

The twenty-fifth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Holley was celebrated at the residence, 1615 Capouse avenue, Saturday evening by relatives and friends.

Those present were: Mrs. J. D. White and Mr. and Mrs. William White, of Peckville; Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Kiefer, Mr. and Mrs. L. Pine, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jacobs, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Newman, Mr. and Mrs. John Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Colvin, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sopher, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Finn, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Burdick, Mr. and Mrs. George Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Cox, Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Frank, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Howe, Mr. and Mrs. John Madison, Mr. and Mrs. Grant Lowery, Mrs. A. L. Long, James Hawker, John Lute, E. H. Long and G. A. Long.

SATURDAY NIGHT'S PLAYS.

Howard Wall's Ideas closed a successful three days' engagement at Davis' theater Saturday night. "The Black Flag" was produced before an audience that overtaxed the capacity of the house.

At the Academy of Music a crowded house saw the production of "The Two Sisters," a play written to teach a great moral lesson. It is doubtful if it accomplished that purpose, but it is an interesting if not absorbing drama with a strong sustaining thread running through it. A fairly good company interpreted the various roles. John Barker introduced a specialty with the bones that called forth hearty applause. The vocal efforts of Miss Lida Wells were also received with much fervor.

"Garry Owen" was produced before a good sized audience at the Frothingham Saturday night with a well known Irish comedian, "Tony Farrell," in the title role. Mr. Farrell is a most singer and a fairly good actor and he was surrounded by very competent cast. There is music, jollity and tragedy in the drama, which, on the whole, is rather better than the average stage production labelled "a drama of real Irish life." The villain in "Garry Owen" is red, but does not wear "badways" or carry a shillelagh, which is something to be thankful for. The chapel scene was well staged and very impressive. Some of the dialogue shows much cleverness.

The Fourth Lecture

in the Venice course this evening (Monday) will be upon St. Mark's and the Ducal Palaces. It will be one of the most interesting of the course, as the illustrations will be shown throughout the entire evening. It is desirable that the audience should be seated by 8 o'clock, as the room will be darkened at that hour.

DEALT WITH PLAIN FACTS

Rev. James McLeod's Forceful Sermon on Restitution.

THE DUTY OF ALL EVIL-DOERS

Touches on the Liquor Question and the Subject of License Granting—Wants to Know How License Holders Are Going to Make Restitution.

Rev. James McLeod, D. D., of the First Presbyterian church, preached a sermon last night in which he warmly condemned certain evils which he enumerated. The sermon was pre-eminently for the direct method in which the reverend gentleman expressed his wholesome opinions upon the questions discussed.

Basing his theme on the words, "Behold, there was a man named Zaccheus, which was the chief among the publicans, and he was rich." These words, he said, would be read by millions that day, and their meaning explained. He embodied the doctrine of "restitution," and the duty and necessity of restitution was an important, though not a prominent, topic. How many sermons had they heard from the pulpits of the day on this doctrine? Not many. It was hinted at frequently, but taking it as a topic they rarely heard a sermon upon the doctrine of restitution. Many people avowed that it was not a palatable subject, but nevertheless it was a truth of the first importance, far-reaching in its effects, touching many people and many interests, and it was one which it was well to think over, discuss and apply. Some phases of the question was the work of casuistry, but it was not intended in that spirit to devote the precious time to questions of casuistry, but rather to the question of restitution in its practical bearings.

Duty to Make Restitution.

As his first remark, he would say that it was the duty of those conscious of wrong doing to make restitution, and he appealed to each one in the congregation not to leave that evening with the impression that it did not touch them, as he assured one and all that the question affected each one individually. All who knew that they had done wrong or injured a neighbor were bound to make restitution, and conscience, reason and the Bible pointed to this as the duty of each one of us. He had in mind the land of Israel, and the learned preacher then quoted from the Old and New Testaments in support of his argument.

After referring to the wrong doings of Zaccheus, as stated in the text, of oppressing the poor and acquiring property illegally in a wrong way, he said that the question resolved itself into "What should they do? Make restitution?" and replied "Certainly, no doubt of it."

McLeod then said there was a conspicuous instance of national impotence which strengthened his argument. He had in mind the land of his birth, the land of St. Patrick. This question of restitution had agitated Great Britain for many years in connection with the tenantry of Ireland where the unrighteous system of landlordism prevailed. No Roman tax-gatherer ever treated the poor more cruelly than the British landlords who crushed and trod upon the Irish tenants. Were these landlords anxious to make restitution? No. They were too proud to bend their haughty necks. It involved self-interest and they would become poorer, if the rack-rents were not wrung and crushed out of the tenants.

Pointed an Example.

A reference was then made to Guinness, the great Dublin brewer, who gave $500,000 for beautifying St. Patrick's cathedral and was knighted by the queen for his generosity. Guinness had made many houses sad and desolate and could not distribute his wealth among all the houses directly, and made restitution by the best way possible under the circumstances. Restitution, however, he remarked, ought where possible to be made definitely to the party injured. In an impressive manner the reverend gentleman said: "There are people who say 'We have done ourselves to confess to the one we injured, but we will content ourselves with the Cross, trusting in Jesus Christ and hope in Him for eternal life.' Never! Ten thousand times I say 'never!' If I am to believe this Bible, the doctrine is satanic and the Bible was never intended to protect liars, fornicators and thieves. Restitution without confession is literally no salvation."

Taking up another phase of the question he remarked that he was deeply interested in reading in a paper on the previous evening that in the twenty-one wards in the city 234 hotels were granted licenses, most of them hotels without accommodation for man or beast, and he had made a little calculation, which was a very moderate one, by which he estimated that each of the licensed places received $10 a day on an average, which meant $2,340 a day, and as nine-tenths of the hotels did not particularly observe the Sunday law, it meant that in the twenty-one wards, the sum of $754,100 would be spent this year in the sale of intoxicating drinks—and yet they heard the cry of hard times. The charitable associations were busy at work, and as fast as they relieved one, the "liquor factory" turned out another.

The "evil gods" were grinding continually and were never idle. It took $754,100 to take care of the indirect results of the wrong doing, in paying for prisons, the poorhouses, police, etc., and he was amazed to see a man appointed by the people ask the court to grant licenses to some of the people; but he presumed that he received a fee for so doing.

Called the Fee a Bribe.

Each saloon paid a bribe of $500 a year, and this went toward paying the bill of $754,100. He was no prohibitionist and was not going to butt his head against a stone fence if he knew it, but it was no use of attempting to secure prohibition in such cities as New York and Chicago by the votes of the people and on that point he would prefer to be excused from taking any stock in the movement, but, at the same time, he condemned the misuse of power which he had witnessed at the court house during the past week, when those entrusted in authority had granted 200 licenses, where 100 would have been sufficient, thereby making 100 mistakes.

It was a beautiful sight that he saw at the court house, when people were given a license to enter homes and rob them of comfort and joy, and to brand the heads of sorrow and shame; a license to rob their sons of honor and their daughters of womanhood, to supply the almshouses with paupers and to make their wives worse than widows; a license to kill a thousand persons in this city every year and to bury them in the drunkard's grave. Why were they granted? Because the beer licensees

BROKE A SURE THING GAME

Police Raid a Novel Dice Joint on Franklin Avenue.

GAMBLERS USED ELECTRICITY

They Made the Little Dice Fleece the Unhappy Two Houses of Bad Reputation and Eight Inmates and Five Men Caught.

One of the newest and most novel of "sure thing" gambling apparatus was brought to light Saturday night in a raid made by the police on two houses of ill fame and a dice throwing establishment which has been operated ostensibly as a cigar stand on Franklin avenue. The places raided were those of "Nellie Bly," in Raymond court, "Jack" Jones and Emma Brown, 35½ Lackawanna avenue, and the "Riley Edwards," 116 Franklin avenue.

The raid on Edwards' place was made upon a warrant issued by Alderman Fuller on complaint of Frank Cobb, the horseman, who claimed to have lost $47 at dice. Chief Simpson and County Detective Leyschick visited the place during the evening and arrested Riley Edwards, the proprietor, and B. F. Wakeman and "Mike" Duffy, whose duty it was to seek out lambs and bring them in to be fleeced. Duffy is a brother of the notorious "Paddy," whose resort is opposite the old Delaware and Hudson station, on Bridge street.

The King's Sons and Daughters will hold a social in their room on Friday night.

Tomorrow evening the boys of the Elm Park Young Men's society will give an entertainment at the church parlors to relieve some cases of destitution in the city. In the words of Dr. Pearce "these bright boys carrying forward mission enterprises that are exceedingly helpful" and their efforts deserve every encouragement. They are members of Mrs. Lange's Sunday school class and have adopted a very interesting programme, which includes selections by the Columbia male quartette, violin solos by William Allen, piano solos by Charles H. Doremus, vocal solos by Mrs. James Heekel, Ross Surdam, Miss Jones and literary selections by Miss Edith Hallcock, Le Grand B. Cushman, Miss Macie Hall, Miss Lena Clark and others. As the admission is but 15 cents a crowded audience can be reasonably expected.

The Democratic's Proper Size.

From the Philadelphia Inquirer.

An English mathematician has calculated that the whole population of the world could be packed in a box 1,140 yards long, 1,140 yards wide and 1,140 yards high, and that each person could be allowed twenty-seven cubic feet of room in such a box. If this estimate is correct, then the whole Democratic party could be stowed away in a pill box, leaving space enough for each member to prance around and claim majorities before election.

Dr. Gibbons, of New York city, will be in his Scranton office, 411 Wyoming avenue, every Monday from 8 in the morning until 9 in the evening.
