Pay your gas bills today and save the discount. Patrolman Rodham is ill with rheumatism at his home in Park place. James P. Taylor, proprietor and editor of the Independent Republican, of Montrose, one of the oldest and most staple weekly publications in this section of the state, was in Scranton yesterday. Dr. Allen Norton Leete returned Monday night from Los Angeles, Cal., where he proved his right to the $50,000 he recently fell heir to that place. The final payment on the bequest will be made by the executors in July.

NOTED ABOUT TOWN.

Colonel E. H. Ripple's appointment as commissary general of the National Guard of the state was confirmed by the senate yesterday at Harrisburg. It makes the colonel a member of the governor's staff with the same title he now bears. The office of commissary is a most important one to the state and members of the guard, but it will not make such serious inroads on Mr. Ripple's time as the colonelcy of the Thirtieth regiment did. The resignation of Colonel Ripple as the commander of that regiment was handed to the governor several weeks ago and the new appointment, of course, carries with it the acceptance of that resignation. Lieutenant Colonel Courten will be the next colonel, and Major Mattos will, in all probability, be the next lieutenant colonel.

It was with deep regret that Colonel Ripple found it necessary to resign the command of the Thirtieth regiment, with which he had so long been identified, but increasing business matters that required his attention made it imperative for him to do so, as he was no longer able to give the position the amount of time it required and he declined to be simply a figure head, neglecting the duties of the office to subordinates. He took a fatherly interest in the members of the regiment and they reciprocated by a loyalty to him and a devotion to duty that has had much to do with placing the regiment in the conspicuous place it has for years occupied.

A delegation of local Knights Templar, consisting of A. B. Holmes, Postmaster F. M. Vandling, Julius Stevens, W. S. Millar, Joseph Amsley, Jr., A. H. Shepland, C. W. Gunter, and J. G. Bailey, left yesterday afternoon for Birmingham to pay a fraternal visit to Malta Commandery, Knights Templar, of that city.

The locomotive used on the stage of the Academy of Music last night in the production of M. J. Gilbride's play, "Without a Name," was made by T. F. Rush, of Scranton street, and is one of the best stage locomotives now in use. It is about one-half the size of an ordinary steam road engine, but is perfect in design and appointments and is painted in an artistic manner. It contains a miniature boiler of the regular locomotive type and the heat used to manufacture steam is furnished by a gasoline furnace. The engine represents many weeks of patient work and its actual cost is placed at more than $500.

CHURCH AND EMIGRATION

Paper Read by Attorney H. M. Streeter on That Subject.

THE FLOOD SHOULD BE CHECKED

It is a Duty the Church Owe to the Country and Christian Civilization That It Assist in Shutting Out the Undesirable Element.

At the regular meeting of the Men's League held at the Penn Avenue Baptist church last evening a paper was read by Attorney H. M. Streeter upon "The Relation of the Church Toward the Undesirable Emigrant." The tenor of the paper favored the restriction of emigration to the United States, and the present class of emigrants to this country were undesirable and dangerous to the well being of the country. Formerly the country needed the aid of emigrants in a marked degree, but in the present day, as a result of competition in all the trades and industries, there had been a considerable reduction in wages, with a corresponding decrease in the demand for unskilled laborers. The motive of emigrants had also changed materially; formerly they poured into this country owing to a lack of liberty in their native land, but now they flocked to the states owing to a lack of bread.

On an average, there were 1,000,000 people constantly out of work in this country and every year there were 400,000 places to be filled in our productive industries; but, as against this, there were 200,000 applicants added to the population annually, leaving each year an added surplus of 40,000 to the army of the unemployed.

What Phillips Brooks Said. In order to emphasize his argument Mr. Streeter read the following quotation from Rev. Phillips Brooks, D. D.: "If the world in the great past centuries is going to be responsible for the development of certain national characteristics, built up by a larger type of manhood, here, then, for the world's sake, for the sake of those very nations that would pour in upon us that which would do us great harm, we have a right to stand guard over it."

Mr. Streeter then gave statistics, full of interest, showing the number of emigrants from different countries during the past twenty years, and the number of unskilled laborers who had sought these shores, showing that they were in a heavy preponderance over mechanics or skilled artisans capable of assisting in developing the resources of this great country. Statistics were also given showing the appalling percentage of illiterate persons included in the hordes of emigrants. From other statistics given the speaker was convinced that a considerable proportion of the inmates of prisons, insane asylums and paupers were persons of foreign birth, and that a relative comparison showed results favorable to inmates of native birth, in number and other respects. Statistics were also presented showing that the majority of emigrants were unaccompanied by their wives and children, who were left in their native land, until the emigrant could accumulate some money to carry back with him to his own shores, bringing nothing to this country and taking from of all he could in the meantime.

Comments were also made upon the large number of strikes and riots caused by unskilled foreign laborers and special references were made to the communications with the Italian government regarding the riots in New Orleans.

It is a Duty They Owe. The conclusion arrived at in the paper was that it was a religious and civil duty which the church owed to the country and Christian civilization to assist in checking the flood of emigration so that the undesirable element might be kept out, and that attempts should be made to educate and Christianize those of that class already in this country.

THREE CURTAIN CALLS.

M. J. Gilbride's Without a Name Given a kindly Reception.

Judging from the uproarious enthusiasm which greeted M. J. Gilbride at the conclusion of the second act of "Without a Name," at the Academy of Music, his efforts as a dramatist and playwright have won great favor from a large circle of admirers. Mr. Gilbride was compelled to respond to three successive calls and in returning his thanks stated that the outburst of enthusiasm was so unexpected that he could not find words to express his thanks for their appreciation of his efforts. He promised that it would be an incentive to him to stage a play which would ultimately redound to his credit and that of his city. T. F. Rush, who prepared the mechanical effects, was also compelled to respond to a call. "Without a Name," conceding the difficulties to be encountered on the first night, met with undoubted success. The second act has a scene presenting a station on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad, where a locomotive with steam hissing from the safety valve and the bell ringing out its warning notes, runs across the stage hauling a passenger car. The scene is a masterpiece of scenic art, and the play, which has been greeted with continued applause and the innovation was pronounced a great success. There are many points in the play which show that Mr. Gilbride has skill as a playwright. At the conclusion of the second act C. T. Holland made a public presentation of a silk hat to Mr. Gilbride as a gift from H. Rose, a warm admirer. "City Government" will be presented at Olyphant tonight.

Will Be a Struggle Over Position of Administrator.

LEFT CONSIDERABLE PROPERTY

Attorney Hannah Argues Before Register of Wills Hopkins That the One Who Will Administrate on Estate of Deceased Must Be Nearest Relative.

Register of Wills William S. Hopkins is in a predicament somewhat after the fashion of the plight the ancient and esteemed King Solomon found confronting him when he was required to adjudicate the claim of the two mothers who both contended for the same child.

John W. Raub, who had never been married, boarded at 231 South Ninth street, in the family of Mrs. Martha J. Snover. He led a quiet bachelor's life, and through energy and enterprise accumulated a fortune of, perhaps, $15,000.

Two weeks ago he became ill of grip, which developed into acute pneumonia, and after a ten days' sickness he died, without making a distribution of his property. The funeral was held last week. Register of Wills Hopkins has been appealed to in the appointment of an administrator, and there is where the balance of law must come in to decide who shall be the administrator.

Stating the Case to the Register. At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon the parties interested appeared in the register's office and their claims were heard by Deputy Register James Hopkins. Attorney H. M. Hannah was present in the interest of Mrs. Helen M. Clark, of Benton township, who claims to be a first cousin of the deceased. She believes that she is entitled to the appointment of administratrix on the ground that she is the nearest relative now living in this state.

Attorney W. J. Tracy was present in the interest of Undertaker A. E. Raub, who is a distant relative of the deceased. Mr. Raub has been asked by several relatives to become the administrator and in compliance with their requests he consented to ask for letters of administration.

And Attorney Frank T. O'Keil was present to represent the claim of Mrs. Snover, with whom the deceased boarded. Mrs. Snover alleges that Raub, before he died, made a tentative will, and the terms of which were that she should become the sole legatee of all of his personal property. This is a will made by word of mouth in the presence of witnesses and holds good in law.

Attorney O'Keil does not care who is appointed administrator; all he seeks is to see that his client is not cheated out of the bequest made to her.

Half-Brother is Living. Then there is a half-brother living, Harrison Raub, who at present resides in Iowa. No attorney was present to plead his case, but telegrams have been sent to him apprising him of his brother's death. He has answered them and will come on here as soon as he arranges his affairs at his home.

The attorneys interested will file briefs with Register Hopkins and the coming of the half-brother will also be awaited. The register gave notice that he has reserved the appointment of an administrator.

IN LOCAL THEATERS.

Pugilat Peter Maher and his company will appear at the Academy of Music this evening in an excellent athletic and vaudeville entertainment. The play will conclude with a side-splitting farce entitled "McCracken's Reception," in which Peter Maher will give an exhibition of boxing with Harry Courtwright and Billy Hennessey with James Judge. Maher is regarded by many as the second best man in the country.

"In Old Kentucky" will be given at the Academy of Music on Thursday evening. It is an ambitious attempt to place before the public in an attractive and creditable way two kinds of life as they exist in Kentucky. Many novel features, peculiar only to the country in which the scene is laid, are introduced. The play has been enthusiastically received wherever it has been given, and is undoubtedly one of the most successful productions of the year. "In Old Kentucky" is in no way connected with "Old Kentucky," which has appeared here at different occasions and at different places in the past. The play will stop in a few moments. Simple enough, isn't it?

Have the Most Complete and Practical Plant in the Country.

The sub-committee of councils' highway committee, to which was referred the ordinance of the Pennsylvania Heat, Light and Power company, and of which W. Findlay Brown is the chairman, returned yesterday from their visit to New York, Boston, Springfield, Albany, Scranton and Harrisburg. The committee was accompanied by President Hartman, of common council, and the object of the trip was to inspect the heat and power plants in operation in those cities, with a view of gaining a knowledge of the practical operations of these plants.

President Hartman spoke enthusiastically of the trip and of the various places visited. Scranton, he said, had the most complete and practical plant of any place visited. What action the committee will take on the ordinance Mr. Hartman was unable to say, but he is of the opinion that it will not get through the present councils.—Philadelphia Record.
