QUESTION IS IN DOUBT

Judge Gunster Not Sure That Courts Can Control School Teachers.

IS NOW CONSIDERING MATTER

Point Came Up at a Hearing of Injunction Proceedings Growing Out of Reading the Bible in Waverly Public Schools by Prof. Haney.

Secretary George E. Stevenson, of the Waverly borough school district, whose efforts are directed to restrain Principal Fred C. Haney, of Waverly, from reading the Bible and opening the morning devotion in the Waverly public school with a form of religious worship, was present with the minute book of the school board under his arm when court met Saturday morning to hear the injunction case. He was represented by Attorneys John P. Kelley and E. C. Newcomb.

A sensation was caused last week by a resolution of the school board, which was introduced by another director, Rev. D. N. Vail, instituting an equity suit against Principal Haney and petitioned for an injunction to restrain the teacher from either reading or conducting any form of religious worship whatever during school hours. Stevenson filed a voluminous affidavit, the syllabus of which was a complaint against the action of Principal Haney on account of bible reading and hymn singing at the opening of school each morning.

The affidavit complained that such a course on the part of the teacher was quite distasteful, not to say offensive, to many parents whose children attend Haney's school. Upon hearing the affidavit Judge Gunster ordered Saturday, March 23, at 9 a. m., as the date of a hearing on the rule whether or not a preliminary injunction should be granted to enforce Haney on carrying on any more devotional exercises.

The four other directors of the Waverly school district, Dr. N. C. Mackey, J. L. Stone, John Hall and Lester Stone, were in court and their presence was testimony of their official endorsement of the course pursued by the teacher. Attorneys H. M. Hannah, Hulstender & Voeberg, and A. D. Dean represented Principal Haney, and a large delegation of the citizens of Waverly and a class of young ladies from the school were present to give testimony at the hearing.

Judge Gunster's Questions.

Judge Gunster came upon the bench soon after 9 o'clock and spent a few minutes looking over the papers after the case was called up. He asked what control the law gives a court of equity over a school teacher. Attorney Newcomb answered that the case then before the court resolved itself into a mandamus proceeding to compel the teacher from reading the bible in the school. "Why don't the directors stop him?" queried the court.

At this point Mr. Newcomb proceeded to argue the matter to the court to prove that it was in accord with the law to take such steps to stop the teacher. Mr. Newcomb cited the case of the school district of Gallitzin, Cambria county. Sisters of charity were employed there in the public schools, and it was their custom to teach the Catholic pupils the catechism after school hours. A public school teacher is of the nature of a public officer, and when he violates the constitution there is a remedy in law against him. The court restrained the sisters from teaching the catechism in the Gallitzin schools because it was introducing sectarianism into the schools, which is against the constitution of Pennsylvania. The Waverly case was a similar one.

Attorney Hannah argued that a court of common pleas had no authority in a matter like the one then before the court; he held that the board of directors of school districts are under the law required to govern their schools, and if an injunction were granted, it would mean that the court was assisting the directors to do their duty. Mr. Hannah said if Haney is violating the law and the directors failed to discharge him, they were negligent.

Court Takes a Recess.

The attorneys for the defendant maintained that court proceedings should be under the direct control of the school board from the school board. Judge Gunster granted a recess to allow the plaintiff's attorney time to prepare exceptions to the offer made by the other side against the court's jurisdiction in the matter pending.

The amended affidavit of the plaintiff included the four other directors as defendants, and stated that Directors Stevenson and Vail endeavored to have the religious services discontinued but that Directors Mackey, Stone, Hall and Stone, would not permit them to be discontinued. In answer to this Attorney Hannah argued that reading the bible in school is universal in all Christian communities in this country and Europe, and that there is no Methodist way of reading the holy book.

Attorney Kelley disputed the assertion made by Mr. Hannah that the bible is universally read, and to substantiate his contention Mr. Kelley quoted statistics from a report of J. C. Taylor, county superintendent of this county. The report showed that of the 212 schools of Scranton the bible is read in only 111 schools; in Carbonate it is not read in any of the 31 schools of that city, nor in the 21 schools of Dunmore. In 147 of the schools of Lackawanna county, outside of Scranton, Carbonate and Dunmore, the bible is not read. There are 597 schools in the county, in 193 of which the bible is read; in 314 schools it is not read.

Say Bible is Secularian.

Mr. Kelley said that the constitution of the state of Wisconsin is almost identical with that of Pennsylvania, and the supreme court of the former state decided that the bible is secularian and that the constitution is violated whenever the bible is read in the schools. Mr. Kelley said that all the judges of the highest court of Wisconsin had agreed upon this point. The reason he cited this case was because the supreme court of Pennsylvania had never passed upon such a question at issue. Mr.

NEWCOMB FOLLOWED WITH ARGUMENTS

to show that the bible is a secularian book. Judge Gunster took the papers and will decide early this week whether or not the court has jurisdiction. If his opinion is that the court has jurisdiction he will grant by law in passing upon the case that ends the matter. If he shall decide that the court has jurisdiction another day will be appointed for a hearing in the injunction proceedings.

A mass meeting of the citizens of Waverly was held at the school last week in the Methodist Episcopal church, where V. D. Smith was chosen chairman and J. P. Court secretary. The following resolution was adopted: Resolved, That we, the citizens of the borough of Waverly, and persons of the said school, in public meeting assembled, do declare our entire confidence in Professor Haney as an efficient and discreet teacher and a Christian gentleman, and that we approve of the manner in which he has used the discretionary power left in his hands by the laws of the state and the action of the school board.

Efficacy of the Bible.

Several prominent residents, including the clergymen of the district, made remarks on the efficacy of the bible in the public schools. Secretary Stevenson arose to explain his position. He said he had always respected Professor Haney as a man and a Christian gentleman, and believed him to be a discreet and a very efficient teacher; that his only difference with him was a matter of opinion regarding the reading of the bible in school, and that his only difference with the majority of the school board was a simple point of law, and that, in asking the court to decide that point, he was obliged to attack the course taken by Professor Haney.

A vote, consisting only of taxpayers and voters, was then taken on the resolution offered, resulting unanimously in its favor, fifty-one voting for, and none against it. Then the audience gave a unanimous rising vote in favor of the same.

A resolution was also passed setting forth that Mr. Stevenson is running counter to the wishes of his constituents, in opposing the reading of the bible in the public schools. It calls upon him either to desist or resign his office.

THEY SAY WHAT'S THE USE.

Many Liquor Dealers May Not Take Out the Licenses Granted Them.

It is quoted as an evidence of the tightness of money that comparatively few of those who were granted liquor licenses on March 16 have yet paid for the permission to sell intoxicants during the year beginning April 1.

It is not tightness of money that is altogether responsible for this condition of affairs. Many of those who were granted licenses are seriously considering whether or not they will pay for their licenses and take them out.

Last year two liquor licenses were not taken out. They were nearly all for old houses and it has been repeatedly stated that many of these hotels and restaurants continued to do business as if they had a license.

This year no applications were filed by a number of old houses, but it is generally understood that the proprietors of these places have no intention of going out of business. That means that they will try and run the gauntlet of the law and save the money they would have paid for a license.

There is a general feeling among those who have been granted licenses that it is useless for them to pay a large sum of money into the county treasury if their neighbors next door can sell without permission and be not molested. It will not be surprising if the county treasurer has a large batch of uncollected licenses on his hands after the time for taking them out has expired.

DEMOCRATS CAUCUS.

Name M. F. Sando as Their Candidate for City Solicitor.

A number of Democratic members of council met in the central Democratic club rooms Saturday night and nominated M. F. Sando as their candidate for city solicitor.

The names of John F. Serrago and J. Alton Davis were also brought before the caucus. Mr. Sando has been a member of the Lackawanna bar since 1883 and has served two terms in the state legislature.

Several Democratic members of council did not attend the caucus, neither did they serve any notice on their colleagues that they would abide by the decision of the caucus.

CAPTAIN AMSDEN AT REST.

His Body Interred in Dunmore Cemetery with Fitting Services.

MANY VETERANS VIEW REMAINS

Funeral Was in Charge of Lieutenant Ezra Griffin Post, G. A. R.—Services at the Grave Conducted by Rev. M. D. Fuller of Providence.

The funeral of Captain Frank P. Amstden occurred yesterday afternoon. A brief, simple and semi-private service was held at 2:30 o'clock at the house, No. 1 Halstead place, followed by burial under the auspices of Lieutenant Ezra Griffin post, No. 123, Grand Army of the Republic, in Dunmore cemetery.

The house service was conducted by Rev. Dr. S. C. Lucan. In the absence of Rev. N. F. Stahl, chaplain of Griffin post, the Grand Army rites at the cemetery were conducted by Rev. M. D. Fuller, of the Providence Methodist Episcopal church and a member of the post.

Soon after 2 o'clock the post, headed by the Thirtieth regiment drum corps, left the rooms on Lackawanna avenue and in command of Commander Smith H. Most proceeded to the house, from where the remains were escorted to the cemetery. The veterans numbered over 200, including members of Colonel Montes post, the largest representation that attended a Scranton veteran's funeral in a body in years. In the line were several from neighboring towns, and Department State Commander H. H. Cummings, who is in the city as United States court juror.

The service at the grave were impressive and of a nature befitting the last recognition of one who had been so prominently identified with Grand Army affairs, and it was not surprising that the huge taps and volley caused a moisture of the eyes of the men among whom Captain Amstden had so long been an active spirit.

The pall-bearers were Colonel E. H. Ripple, Colonel F. L. Hitchcock, E. N. Wert, Samuel Stevens, Mr. Lewis, and S. Y. Haupt.

MRS. HUMMLER'S FUNERAL.

Services Held at Zion German Lutheran Church.

Mrs. Frank Hummler's remains were laid in their last resting place in Forest Hill cemetery yesterday afternoon by the hands of sorrowing friends. An index of the character of the deceased was the profusion of white fragrant flowers that graced the casket. The children had white floral pillow, with the loving word "Mother" wrought thereon. The Lederkrantz society presented a handsome offering in the form of a lyre; and the Sehlara society, an emblem combined from a star, cross and crescent. In all there were two floral offerings from relatives and friends.

The remains were borne to the Zion German Lutheran church on Millin avenue at 3 o'clock, where funeral services were conducted by the pastor, Rev. P. F. Ziehlman. A double quartet sang two beautiful and inspiring hymns at the church. Pastor Ziehlman preached a sermon, in the course of which he dwelt upon the pure and upright life of the deceased. He referred touchingly to the loss sustained by the children in the death of their dear mother, and then comforted them with soothing words of spiritual comfort.

Before the remains were consigned to mortal earth in Forest Hill the Lederkrantz sang two appropriate choruses. Besides relatives in this city, New York city, and from Sullivan county, New York, there were present at the funeral hundreds of friends and acquaintances in Scranton.

The flower bearers were: Albert Zinke, William Weichel, Carl Lorenz and E. A. Wilmmer. The pall-bearers were: George Wahl, F. L. Terpe, Charles H. Miller, Charles Weichel, F. L. Wormser and Otto Kracht.

JOHN FERGUSON'S FUNERAL.

Interment Made in Dunmore Catholic Cemetery.

The funeral of John W. Ferguson took place yesterday afternoon from the home of his parents on Capouse avenue.

Services were held in St. Paul's Catholic church, Green Ridge, after which interment was made in Dunmore cemetery. The pall-bearers were Thomas Loftus, John Rogan, Edward O'Malley, John Devaney, James Newell and James Cush.

AN OVERHEATED STOVE.

Responsible for a $500 Blaze at the St. Cloud Hotel.

The woodwork in a room on the second floor of the St. Cloud hotel, of which F. P. Jordan is proprietor, caught fire from an overheated stove at 10 o'clock Saturday morning and a loss of $500 resulted before the flames were extinguished.

The room where the fire originated is in the rear part of the building. The stove in it is used by the servants, and on Saturday one of the young ladies was ironing clothes and consequently a hot fire was necessary. Before anybody was aware of the ignition the flames had secured a start and hiked their way along the walls to the roof.

Mr. Jordan hurried to the Crystal home house and notified the members of the company. An alarm was sounded from box 22 and was responded to by the companies from the central city. Only the stream of the Phoenix Chemical company was used and in a half
