HONESDALE.

Deputy Revenue Collector Craig and James Rooney were in Honesdale on business last Friday.
The Alpha Literary club entertained a number of its friends at the Honesdale high school Friday night. The entertainment consisted of readings on Joan of Arc by several of the young lady members; soprano solo by Grace Whitney, piano duet, Misses Mary and Tessie Soote, and a debate. The subject of the debate was, "Resolved: That Joan of Arc was the advance guard to woman's independence." The affirmative side was discussed by May Finerty (leader), Ethel Wilcox, Sadie O'Connell, Mollie Menner and Maggie McLaughlin; and the negative side by Aggie Hayve (leader), Bessie Hall, Bertha Fuerrth, Minnie Smith and Edith Eck. The judges, Frank Hustlin, Judson Yerkes and Clarence Knapp, decided the hard-fought debate in favor of the negative side. The young ladies made a very good impression, handling the question in a scholarly manner. Honesdale may one day see one or more of the young debaters arguing a case at the county bar.

GROVER VERY CONSIDERATE

He Doesn't Want to Give the Spanish Government Any Trouble.
THEY MAY TAKE THEIR TIME
Secretary Gresham's Policy Is Virtually Reversed by the President--Spain's New Ministry Is Generally Regarded a Conservative One.

Washington, March 24.--No assurances are obtainable at the state department that the Spanish government intends to comply with Secretary Gresham's demand for an apology for firing on the Alliance, or that any state reply, a receipt, apology, or an assurance that hereafter American commerce should not be molested in Cuban waters. None of these conditions have been complied with as far as can be learned, and yet the president, Secretary Gresham, and everybody else connected with the administration appear to be contented with the situation, and confident that sooner or later there will be a satisfactory outcome of the controversy. The seriousness of the affair is postponed now, and even Secretary Gresham seems anxious to state reply, a receipt, apology, and an assurance that hereafter American commerce should not be molested in Cuban waters. None of these conditions have been complied with as far as can be learned, and yet the president, Secretary Gresham, and everybody else connected with the administration appear to be contented with the situation, and confident that sooner or later there will be a satisfactory outcome of the controversy. The seriousness of the affair is postponed now, and even Secretary Gresham seems anxious to state reply, a receipt, apology, and an assurance that hereafter American commerce should not be molested in Cuban waters.

Doesn't Want to Crowd Spain.
It is reported that at the cabinet meeting yesterday one of the members became annoyingly inquisitive on this subject, and persisted in asking questions about the why and wherefore of the Alliance incident until it was found necessary to satisfy him by an intimation that President Cleveland desired very much to make matters as easy and as pleasant as possible for the Spanish government and to extend to the utmost limit the time in which it would be required to send a reply to Secretary Gresham's peremptory demand for an apology. The fact that the Spanish ministry has resigned and a new one is about coming into power is urged as a reason for not displaying haste, and the most direct reply to the president is disposed to take the sharp edge off of the first patriotic dispatch penned by an official of the Cleveland administration is found in the orders sent to Admiral Meade to proceed to Kingston with his fleet without visiting Cuban ports en route. The Columbus had been ordered to stop at Havana before President Cleveland returned from his ducking trip. He arrived in Washington two days after Secretary Gresham's dispatch had been sent to Madrid, and immediately the orders for the Columbus were revoked, and Admiral Meade has since been requested to make all possible haste in reaching Kingston and to be very particular about not making any stops in Cuban waters.

New Principle of Law.
The diplomatic experts of the state department, as well as Commodore Ramsay, the acting secretary of the navy, several days ago announced the heretofore unbroken principle of international comity, that no war vessel should be sent to a country whose government was engaged in an international dispute with the government to whom the ships belonged. At the state department no admission whatever has been made officially, not even that Minister Taylor at Madrid has acknowledged the receipt of Secretary Gresham's dispatch. It is absurd, however, to suppose that the minister has neglected to inform Secretary Gresham that he laid the dispatch before the Spanish minister of foreign affairs, and it is generally taken for granted that there is on file in the state department an official acknowledgment of the dispatch, and a statement that its contents will be considered and acted upon in due course by the new Spanish government. Nothing further has been received at the state department, however, and the skeptical patriotism of Secretary Gresham is thought to be due to an intimation from President Cleveland that there is no necessity to add to the present trouble of Spain by forcing her to exercise haste in apologizing for her insult to the American flag.

What the Absence of Pie at Breakfast Cost Senator Chandler.
From the Washington Post.
"They are telling a good story on Senator Chandler," said ex-Journal Clerk Harry Smith. "Some weeks ago an old resident of New Hampshire had amassed a competency and retired from his country home to Concord to enjoy the evening of life, concluded it would be a good thing to run down to Washington and make a few pilgrimages to the battle-fields he had helped to win thirty years ago. He was a dear friend of the senator's, and didn't care to let the senator know of his coming, so he took the train to Washington and put up at Willard's, where he stopped after the war. Next morning he went up to the capitol and helped to win thirty years ago.
