

THEY WANT THE FARR BILL

Bills Considered and Passed Finally by the House.

MOORE AND KUNKEL WRANGLE

The Gentleman from Dauphin Harshly Imputations Back to the Teeth of the Bradford Representative.

HOUSE SESSIONS.

Farmer Moore and Farmer Kunkel Indulged in a Long Talk.

Harrisburg, Pa., April 2.—The house met at 10 o'clock this morning.

The North bill, prohibiting the killing of deer for five years from next October, under the penalty of a fine, was discussed and passed finally—yeas, 126; nays, 22.

The Kunkel bill, providing for game commissioners, defining their duties and empowering them to employ game protectors, evoked much discussion.

"Farmer" Moore, of Bradford, attacked the measure on the score of expense and charged that the people were growing weary of the increase of office and expense.

Mr. Kunkel, of Dauphin, replied in vigorous fashion, and threw back into the teeth of the gentleman from Bradford the imputation that he was opposed to retrenchment and reform.

He then proceeded to arraign certain members of the house for prating about reform and economy after they had secured what they wanted in the passage of the bill creating a department of agriculture. He had voted for that bill because he believed it was demanded by the farming class, but he did not think it came with good grace to those who had advocated its passage so strongly to attempt to place others in the position of favoring extravagance.

He said his constituents were not afraid of him, and he was not afraid of them; each trusted the other. After some further discussion the bill fell—yeas, 90; nays, 59—being less than a constitutional majority.

Among the bills passed finally were the following: Granting an annuity to Lillie C. Raabe, widow of August C. Raabe, private in Company B, Eighth regiment, National Guards Pennsylvania. Providing for the employment and payment of janitors, firemen, engineers, mechanics, laborers and care takers of court house grounds. Providing against the adulterations of foods and providing for the enforcement thereof. Extending the provisions of the act of April 23, 1885, relating to corporations and estates held for charitable use to disposition of property made previous to the passage of said act.

The senate bill to establish the liability of endorsers of negotiable investments was defeated, as was also the bill authorizing the state pharmaceutical examining boards to fix the salary of its secretary.

The house this afternoon resumed consideration of bills on third reading and final passage. There was considerable discussion of the bill providing that none but citizens of the United States shall be employed in any capacity in the erection, enlargement or improvement of any public building or public work within this commonwealth. Mr. Pennell, of Philadelphia, and others spoke against the bill, but it passed finally by a vote of 151 yeas, to 15 nays.

Other Measures Approved. Other bills that passed finally were the following: To provide for the liability of tenants in possession and their co-tenants out of possession; senate bill providing that a suit wrongfully begun in equity may be continued at law; to prohibit the capture or killing for the purpose of barter or sale of any quail or Virginia partridge, ruffed grouse, commonly called pheasant, pinnated grouse, commonly called prairie chicken, or any woodcock, the same have been killed, and to provide for the punishment of any person or persons guilty of violating any of the provisions of this act; limiting the duration of the lien of taxes against real estate in this commonwealth; to regulate billiard saloons and pool rooms; providing for the time from which which declaring separate use trusts shall speak and take effect as to said trusts; providing that none but citizens of the United States shall be employed in any capacity in the erection, enlargement or improvement of any public building or public work within this commonwealth; to prevent the adulteration or selling adulterated liquors and to provide for the enforcement thereof; to authorize the election of road supervisors for three years in the several townships of this commonwealth; authorizing and requiring county commissioners to add 10 per cent. to taxes on seated lands that are returned to the county commissioners for non-payment of taxes;

IDENTIFIED AGAIN.

Yet the Police are Unable to Clear Up the Mystery Surrounding the Murder of a Colored Woman.

New York, April 2.—Robert B. Dedmon, a colored porter, called at the morgue this afternoon and identified the body of the murdered negro as that of Mamie Needab. He said she was a cook 28 years old, and had come to this city about three years ago from Virginia. She lived until a few days ago with Mrs. Foster, at No. 899 Sixth avenue, for whom she worked. Dedmon was positive in his identification of the body. Before going to Mrs. Foster, Mamie had lived with her sister somewhere in New Jersey.

With Dedmon was another colored man named Dennis Spruill, an expressman. He said that last fall he took her trunk to the Pennsylvania railroad when she went on a trip to the south. He also said that the girl had a cousin in this city and the two colored men accompanied a policeman to hunt up the cousin.

Miss Needab's cousin, Mary Brown, was located at No. 106 West Twenty-sixth street. She told the officers that she had gone to the morgue in company with her mother in the morning and had seen at a glance that the body was not that of Mamie Needab. The women were positive that the dead woman was not their relative. The police believe that Dedmon and Spruill conspired the story for the purpose of obtaining a little notoriety.

FOND OF AXLE GREASE.

Judge White Denies the Lubricating Qualities of Boiling House Butter.

Pittsburg, Pa., April 2.—An opinion was handed down by Judge White in common pleas court today refusing a mandamus and striking off the appeal in oleomargarine cases. The opinion was filed in the case of J. E. Gibson and six others who appealed from the judgment of Justice of the Peace J. M. McCourtney, by whom they were fined $100 and costs for selling oleomargarine.

Judge White said: "The oleomargarine act is a general law, and does not designate the tribunal or court in which the suit for the penalty may be brought. It is clear a jury trial would do him no good.

In concluding his opinion the judge said: "I may be pardoned for saying I regard the act of April 21, 1885, as unwise and unjust. Much of the oleomargarine is as pure and wholesome and in every way as good as great deal of the butter sold in this market. The fact that the informer gets a share of the fine, it is frequently perverted to mercenary purposes, and to the encouragement of disreputable practices."

JEALOUS HUSBAND'S RAGE.

Charges W. Sherwood Attacks His Wife's Partner at a Ball.

Syracuse, N. Y., April 2.—Charles W. Sherwood, one of the auditors of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad, went to the ball at Columbia hall, in this city, last night, in company with his wife, to whom he had been married about a year. During the dance his wife was introduced to John J. Laass, son of Emil Laass, a prominent patent lawyer. Laass danced with Mrs. Sherwood and Sherwood became insanely jealous. He left the hall, went to the residence of a friend, the saloon of William J. Kuntzsch.

A few moments later Laass and Mrs. Sherwood went to the same saloon, entering a side room. Laass saw Sherwood, and invited him to enter the room. In this Sherwood drew a revolver, and calling Laass a vile name, threatened to shoot him. The proprietor of the saloon held Sherwood, and Laass and Mrs. Sherwood left the room. Laass took Sherwood's wife to the Clarendon hotel, where she has been stopping. They had been there but a minute when Sherwood appeared, carrying an umbrella in his hand. With this he knocked Laass almost insensible. He again drew his pistol, and according to Laass' story, he was in danger of being murdered, when he managed to make his escape. No arrests were made.

PRAYER WAS SLANDER.

Rev. Mr. Campbell Cannot Escape Miss Kelso's Suit That Way.

Los Angeles, April 2.—Judge Clark has overruled the demurrer interposed by the Rev. J. C. Campbell in the suit charging him with slandering Miss Tessa L. Kelso, the librarian of the Los Angeles library. The basis of the action was a prayer offered by the defendant before his congregation in the First Methodist Episcopal church, in which he said: "Oh, Lord, vouchsafe Thy saving grace to the librarian of the Los Angeles church, and cleanse her of all sin and make her a woman worthy of her office."

The Rev. Campbell in his demurrer took the position that his statement was privileged. The court held that a slander can be perpetrated in the form of a prayer as readily as in any other form of speech, and that no communication made by parson or priest to his congregation is privileged because of such relation, unless perhaps when made in the discharge of his pastoral duties with one subject to the discipline of the church, and then only unless made without malice.
