

Facts of Interest To Women Readers.

Symposium of Information, Partly Grave, Partly Gossipy and Partly Gay.

A BACHELOR MAID: Once there lived a bachelor maiden Years and years ago (?) And her mind with truth was laden...

Came a bachelor man-a-sing For her friendship true. This, alas! was her undoing, As it might have been with you!

Now, although she's fond of Plato, Her cold heart's grown warm, And her theories of living Have imbibed a generous charm.

Fair play for the wife. The world has heard quite enough of Li Hung Chang. What of his superior half?

Marioness Li is described as a very beautiful girl, for China, a learned woman, who looks 25 and is 35.

Her patients thronged the village street; Her snowy slats was always quite full. Some said her bitters tasted sweet.

With softly downcast eyes, Have you prayed off the surplus force That in your stature lies?

You're thinking not of litanies With penitential refrain, But of your love's arithmetic, And counting up your gains.

Of poems wrought in needlework, Of symphonies and sonnets, Of bonnets that at Easter-tide Shall banish Lenten frowns.

Of the Lenten legend, In royal purple clad, Fair penitence in violet, Your coming makes me glad!

The wife of the junior senator from Pennsylvania, Mrs. Matthew S. Quay, is pre-eminently a home woman.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE IN BILLYVILLE: Had woman suffrage meet in Billyville-on-the-Bend, With Sister Wilkins in the chair, Miss Jenkins on one end.

An' Sairy Jones on 'Ocher, and that air An' O'Brien, with a wile to spare, An' Molly Spinks, parading round in these new flanked gowns.

An' 'twas: "Now step lively ladies! For soon you'll wear a coat, An' you'll canvass all the country When you vote, vote, vote!"

They passed a resolution to the fact that women rules, An' order the 'ment as well as teach the schools, That they get to be votin', and a raisin' of a row.

An' 'twas: "Step up lively, ladies! For soon you'll wear a coat; An' the men kin mind the babies When you vote, vote, vote!"

They talked from sun to sundown, an' their sentiments was free; An' every man in Billyville climbed a oak or hickory tree.

The thing is been decided that the women own the town, An' as they climb down, The men'll take the kitchen jest as an' as they climb down.

Step up lively, gentlemen! An' jerk your coat, An' burn the biscuits, An' your wives have some to eat!"

Book written by two clever women are set forth some facts, the women were once are not without suggestion.

It seems as if the English, like her American sister, difficulty in entering professional business occupations, but plenty of getting equal pay for work in common to both nations.

Of course, to women of exceptional talents, the world is a wide field.

ent this does not apply, but the great army of workers are struggling with the problem. For instance, a head mistress of a school may get about $1,500 per annum, while assistant mistresses get from $625 to $750.

BESSIE BROWN, M. D. 'Twas April when she came to town; The birds had come, the bees were swarming.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS: Strong ammonia and water will take out grease spots. Sprinkle the inside of damp gloves with violet powder.

Her hair was like an amber wreath; Her hat was darker and more bristly. The violet eyes that glowed beneath were brighter than her keenest lanceet.

Her patients thronged the village street; Her snowy slats was always quite full. Some said her bitters tasted sweet.

With softly downcast eyes, Have you prayed off the surplus force That in your stature lies?

You're thinking not of litanies With penitential refrain, But of your love's arithmetic, And counting up your gains.

Of poems wrought in needlework, Of symphonies and sonnets, Of bonnets that at Easter-tide Shall banish Lenten frowns.

Of the Lenten legend, In royal purple clad, Fair penitence in violet, Your coming makes me glad!

The wife of the junior senator from Pennsylvania, Mrs. Matthew S. Quay, is pre-eminently a home woman.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE IN BILLYVILLE: Had woman suffrage meet in Billyville-on-the-Bend, With Sister Wilkins in the chair, Miss Jenkins on one end.

An' Sairy Jones on 'Ocher, and that air An' O'Brien, with a wile to spare, An' Molly Spinks, parading round in these new flanked gowns.

An' 'twas: "Now step lively ladies! For soon you'll wear a coat, An' you'll canvass all the country When you vote, vote, vote!"

They passed a resolution to the fact that women rules, An' order the 'ment as well as teach the schools, That they get to be votin', and a raisin' of a row.

An' 'twas: "Step up lively, ladies! For soon you'll wear a coat; An' the men kin mind the babies When you vote, vote, vote!"

They talked from sun to sundown, an' their sentiments was free; An' every man in Billyville climbed a oak or hickory tree.

The thing is been decided that the women own the town, An' as they climb down, The men'll take the kitchen jest as an' as they climb down.

Step up lively, gentlemen! An' jerk your coat, An' burn the biscuits, An' your wives have some to eat!"

Book written by two clever women are set forth some facts, the women were once are not without suggestion.

It seems as if the English, like her American sister, difficulty in entering professional business occupations, but plenty of getting equal pay for work in common to both nations.

Of course, to women of exceptional talents, the world is a wide field.

son highly with salt, cayenne and lemon juice, and moisten with a little of the tender cream. Fry and when cold serve cut in slices. Pickled Celery--This is a novelty that will be greatly admired. Chop up the tender heads of celery into inch lengths, and put them in a bowl, covering them afterward with a brine strong enough to float an egg.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS: Strong ammonia and water will take out grease spots. Sprinkle the inside of damp gloves with violet powder.

Her hair was like an amber wreath; Her hat was darker and more bristly. The violet eyes that glowed beneath were brighter than her keenest lanceet.

Her patients thronged the village street; Her snowy slats was always quite full. Some said her bitters tasted sweet.

With softly downcast eyes, Have you prayed off the surplus force That in your stature lies?

You're thinking not of litanies With penitential refrain, But of your love's arithmetic, And counting up your gains.

Of poems wrought in needlework, Of symphonies and sonnets, Of bonnets that at Easter-tide Shall banish Lenten frowns.

Of the Lenten legend, In royal purple clad, Fair penitence in violet, Your coming makes me glad!

The wife of the junior senator from Pennsylvania, Mrs. Matthew S. Quay, is pre-eminently a home woman.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE IN BILLYVILLE: Had woman suffrage meet in Billyville-on-the-Bend, With Sister Wilkins in the chair, Miss Jenkins on one end.

An' Sairy Jones on 'Ocher, and that air An' O'Brien, with a wile to spare, An' Molly Spinks, parading round in these new flanked gowns.

An' 'twas: "Now step lively ladies! For soon you'll wear a coat, An' you'll canvass all the country When you vote, vote, vote!"

They passed a resolution to the fact that women rules, An' order the 'ment as well as teach the schools, That they get to be votin', and a raisin' of a row.

An' 'twas: "Step up lively, ladies! For soon you'll wear a coat; An' the men kin mind the babies When you vote, vote, vote!"

They talked from sun to sundown, an' their sentiments was free; An' every man in Billyville climbed a oak or hickory tree.

The thing is been decided that the women own the town, An' as they climb down, The men'll take the kitchen jest as an' as they climb down.

Step up lively, gentlemen! An' jerk your coat, An' burn the biscuits, An' your wives have some to eat!"

Book written by two clever women are set forth some facts, the women were once are not without suggestion.

It seems as if the English, like her American sister, difficulty in entering professional business occupations, but plenty of getting equal pay for work in common to both nations.

Of course, to women of exceptional talents, the world is a wide field.

beats upon" the French presidency, but the vexatious restrictions of etiquette upon the French President. He is to be returned to private life once more. Passionately fond of bicycle riding, she saw herself out off from this form of amusement and she turned to the study of a book that governs everything at the Elysee Palace, and it was pointed out to her that it would be out of place and contrary to the rules of the society for the first lady to be seen scudding about on a wheel in bloomers, no matter how fetching.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS: Strong ammonia and water will take out grease spots. Sprinkle the inside of damp gloves with violet powder.

Her hair was like an amber wreath; Her hat was darker and more bristly. The violet eyes that glowed beneath were brighter than her keenest lanceet.

Her patients thronged the village street; Her snowy slats was always quite full. Some said her bitters tasted sweet.

With softly downcast eyes, Have you prayed off the surplus force That in your stature lies?

You're thinking not of litanies With penitential refrain, But of your love's arithmetic, And counting up your gains.

Of poems wrought in needlework, Of symphonies and sonnets, Of bonnets that at Easter-tide Shall banish Lenten frowns.

Of the Lenten legend, In royal purple clad, Fair penitence in violet, Your coming makes me glad!

The wife of the junior senator from Pennsylvania, Mrs. Matthew S. Quay, is pre-eminently a home woman.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE IN BILLYVILLE: Had woman suffrage meet in Billyville-on-the-Bend, With Sister Wilkins in the chair, Miss Jenkins on one end.

An' Sairy Jones on 'Ocher, and that air An' O'Brien, with a wile to spare, An' Molly Spinks, parading round in these new flanked gowns.

An' 'twas: "Now step lively ladies! For soon you'll wear a coat, An' you'll canvass all the country When you vote, vote, vote!"

They passed a resolution to the fact that women rules, An' order the 'ment as well as teach the schools, That they get to be votin', and a raisin' of a row.

An' 'twas: "Step up lively, ladies! For soon you'll wear a coat; An' the men kin mind the babies When you vote, vote, vote!"

They talked from sun to sundown, an' their sentiments was free; An' every man in Billyville climbed a oak or hickory tree.

The thing is been decided that the women own the town, An' as they climb down, The men'll take the kitchen jest as an' as they climb down.

Step up lively, gentlemen! An' jerk your coat, An' burn the biscuits, An' your wives have some to eat!"

Book written by two clever women are set forth some facts, the women were once are not without suggestion.

It seems as if the English, like her American sister, difficulty in entering professional business occupations, but plenty of getting equal pay for work in common to both nations.

Of course, to women of exceptional talents, the world is a wide field.

often visits that same young man, who has one of the most delightful homes, where his charming hostess presides and the guests are all those who get an extra nice Christmas present every year just because he is named after a reporter.

ANCESTRY OF THE BOSS. Something About the Derivation of the American Unscrupulous King. From the Philadelphia Record.

The Boss is a most worshipful figure in American politics to-day. It is a curious thing to study his linguistic as well as political ancestry.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS: Strong ammonia and water will take out grease spots. Sprinkle the inside of damp gloves with violet powder.

Her hair was like an amber wreath; Her hat was darker and more bristly. The violet eyes that glowed beneath were brighter than her keenest lanceet.

Her patients thronged the village street; Her snowy slats was always quite full. Some said her bitters tasted sweet.

With softly downcast eyes, Have you prayed off the surplus force That in your stature lies?

You're thinking not of litanies With penitential refrain, But of your love's arithmetic, And counting up your gains.

Of poems wrought in needlework, Of symphonies and sonnets, Of bonnets that at Easter-tide Shall banish Lenten frowns.

Of the Lenten legend, In royal purple clad, Fair penitence in violet, Your coming makes me glad!

The wife of the junior senator from Pennsylvania, Mrs. Matthew S. Quay, is pre-eminently a home woman.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE IN BILLYVILLE: Had woman suffrage meet in Billyville-on-the-Bend, With Sister Wilkins in the chair, Miss Jenkins on one end.

An' Sairy Jones on 'Ocher, and that air An' O'Brien, with a wile to spare, An' Molly Spinks, parading round in these new flanked gowns.

An' 'twas: "Now step lively ladies! For soon you'll wear a coat, An' you'll canvass all the country When you vote, vote, vote!"

They passed a resolution to the fact that women rules, An' order the 'ment as well as teach the schools, That they get to be votin', and a raisin' of a row.

An' 'twas: "Step up lively, ladies! For soon you'll wear a coat; An' the men kin mind the babies When you vote, vote, vote!"

They talked from sun to sundown, an' their sentiments was free; An' every man in Billyville climbed a oak or hickory tree.

The thing is been decided that the women own the town, An' as they climb down, The men'll take the kitchen jest as an' as they climb down.

Step up lively, gentlemen! An' jerk your coat, An' burn the biscuits, An' your wives have some to eat!"

Book written by two clever women are set forth some facts, the women were once are not without suggestion.

It seems as if the English, like her American sister, difficulty in entering professional business occupations, but plenty of getting equal pay for work in common to both nations.

Of course, to women of exceptional talents, the world is a wide field.

Random Notes of Life in London.

Another Interesting Ramble Among the Rare Treasures of the British Museum.

London, March 28.--I had a great treat this week again, and if you are not tired of hearing about the British Museum by this time, I will tell it to you. You see, I am very much in love with this great institution, and one of my chaperones here, observing it, gave me a letter of introduction to the chief librarian there, whom she knows very well. It proved an open sesame to me beyond a doubt, for I was immediately ushered through the public libraries to the library proper, where none but the members of the library staff and people with tickets and orders giving them the privilege of research there are admitted.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS: Strong ammonia and water will take out grease spots. Sprinkle the inside of damp gloves with violet powder.

Her hair was like an amber wreath; Her hat was darker and more bristly. The violet eyes that glowed beneath were brighter than her keenest lanceet.

Her patients thronged the village street; Her snowy slats was always quite full. Some said her bitters tasted sweet.

With softly downcast eyes, Have you prayed off the surplus force That in your stature lies?

You're thinking not of litanies With penitential refrain, But of your love's arithmetic, And counting up your gains.

Of poems wrought in needlework, Of symphonies and sonnets, Of bonnets that at Easter-tide Shall banish Lenten frowns.

Of the Lenten legend, In royal purple clad, Fair penitence in violet, Your coming makes me glad!

The wife of the junior senator from Pennsylvania, Mrs. Matthew S. Quay, is pre-eminently a home woman.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE IN BILLYVILLE: Had woman suffrage meet in Billyville-on-the-Bend, With Sister Wilkins in the chair, Miss Jenkins on one end.

An' Sairy Jones on 'Ocher, and that air An' O'Brien, with a wile to spare, An' Molly Spinks, parading round in these new flanked gowns.

An' 'twas: "Now step lively ladies! For soon you'll wear a coat, An' you'll canvass all the country When you vote, vote, vote!"

They passed a resolution to the fact that women rules, An' order the 'ment as well as teach the schools, That they get to be votin', and a raisin' of a row.

An' 'twas: "Step up lively, ladies! For soon you'll wear a coat; An' the men kin mind the babies When you vote, vote, vote!"

They talked from sun to sundown, an' their sentiments was free; An' every man in Billyville climbed a oak or hickory tree.

The thing is been decided that the women own the town, An' as they climb down, The men'll take the kitchen jest as an' as they climb down.

Step up lively, gentlemen! An' jerk your coat, An' burn the biscuits, An' your wives have some to eat!"

Book written by two clever women are set forth some facts, the women were once are not without suggestion.

It seems as if the English, like her American sister, difficulty in entering professional business occupations, but plenty of getting equal pay for work in common to both nations.

Of course, to women of exceptional talents, the world is a wide field.

men. It never does me any good to go to Niagara, anyway, for I always come away wishing that I was rich and beautiful and irreproachably tall-made, too. I took another girl with me, as I had my press ticket, and she was driven very nearly mad with mingled delight and envy over the parade. She was not in the least to be blamed, for the provocation truly is a heavy one.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS: Strong ammonia and water will take out grease spots. Sprinkle the inside of damp gloves with violet powder.

Her hair was like an amber wreath; Her hat was darker and more bristly. The violet eyes that glowed beneath were brighter than her keenest lanceet.

Her patients thronged the village street; Her snowy slats was always quite full. Some said her bitters tasted sweet.

With softly downcast eyes, Have you prayed off the surplus force That in your stature lies?

You're thinking not of litanies With penitential refrain, But of your love's arithmetic, And counting up your gains.

Of poems wrought in needlework, Of symphonies and sonnets, Of bonnets that at Easter-tide Shall banish Lenten frowns.

Of the Lenten legend, In royal purple clad, Fair penitence in violet, Your coming makes me glad!

The wife of the junior senator from Pennsylvania, Mrs. Matthew S. Quay, is pre-eminently a home woman.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE IN BILLYVILLE: Had woman suffrage meet in Billyville-on-the-Bend, With Sister Wilkins in the chair, Miss Jenkins on one end.

An' Sairy Jones on 'Ocher, and that air An' O'Brien, with a wile to spare, An' Molly Spinks, parading round in these new flanked gowns.

An' 'twas: "Now step lively ladies! For soon you'll wear a coat, An' you'll canvass all the country When you vote, vote, vote!"

They passed a resolution to the fact that women rules, An' order the 'ment as well as teach the schools, That they get to be votin', and a raisin' of a row.

An' 'twas: "Step up lively, ladies! For soon you'll wear a coat; An' the men kin mind the babies When you vote, vote, vote!"

They talked from sun to sundown, an' their sentiments was free; An' every man in Billyville climbed a oak or hickory tree.

The thing is been decided that the women own the town, An' as they climb down, The men'll take the kitchen jest as an' as they climb down.

Step up lively, gentlemen! An' jerk your coat, An' burn the biscuits, An' your wives have some to eat!"

Book written by two clever women are set forth some facts, the women were once are not without suggestion.

It seems as if the English, like her American sister, difficulty in entering professional business occupations, but plenty of getting equal pay for work in common to both nations.

Of course, to women of exceptional talents, the world is a wide field.

NEWSPAPERER'S MISSION.

Glance at Lights and Shadows of a Reporter's Life--An Example of the Usefulness of a Scribe. For the Tribune.

The newspaperer of today, while enjoying nearly all the vicissitudes of life, finds that the work is constantly a repetition of yesterday.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS: Strong ammonia and water will take out grease spots. Sprinkle the inside of damp gloves with violet powder.

Her hair was like an amber wreath; Her hat was darker and more bristly. The violet eyes that glowed beneath were brighter than her keenest lanceet.

Her patients thronged the village street; Her snowy slats was always quite full. Some said her bitters tasted sweet.

With softly downcast eyes, Have you prayed off the surplus force That in your stature lies?

You're thinking not of litanies With penitential refrain, But of your love's arithmetic, And counting up your gains.

Of poems wrought in needlework, Of symphonies and sonnets, Of bonnets that at Easter-tide Shall banish Lenten frowns.

Of the Lenten legend, In royal purple clad, Fair penitence in violet, Your coming makes me glad!

The wife of the junior senator from Pennsylvania, Mrs. Matthew S. Quay, is pre-eminently a home woman.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE IN BILLYVILLE: Had woman suffrage meet in Billyville-on-the-Bend, With Sister Wilkins in the chair, Miss Jenkins on one end.

An' Sairy Jones on 'Ocher, and that air An' O'Brien, with a wile to spare, An' Molly Spinks, parading round in these new flanked gowns.

An' 'twas: "Now step lively ladies! For soon you'll wear a coat, An' you'll canvass all the country When you vote, vote, vote!"

They passed a resolution to the fact that women rules, An' order the 'ment as well as teach the schools, That they get to be votin', and a raisin' of a row.

An' 'twas: "Step up lively, ladies! For soon you'll wear a coat; An' the men kin mind the babies When you vote, vote, vote!"

They talked from sun to sundown, an' their sentiments was free; An' every man in Billyville climbed a oak or hickory tree.

The thing is been decided that the women own the town, An' as they climb down, The men'll take the kitchen jest as an' as they climb down.

Step up lively, gentlemen! An' jerk your coat, An' burn the biscuits, An' your wives have some to eat!"

Book written by two clever women are set forth some facts, the women were once are not without suggestion.

It seems as if the English, like her American sister, difficulty in entering professional business occupations, but plenty of getting equal pay for work in common to both nations.

Of course, to women of exceptional talents, the world is a wide field.

VERY STUPID DIPLOMACY.

How We Sacrifice Millions of Dollars in Oriental Trade. From a Washington Letter.

American trade with China amounts to practically nothing, a few millions a year merely, made up almost exclusively of exports of kerosene oil, Waterbury watches and piece goods.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS: Strong ammonia and water will take out grease spots. Sprinkle the inside of damp gloves with violet powder.

Her hair was like an amber wreath; Her hat was darker and more bristly. The violet eyes that glowed beneath were brighter than her keenest lanceet.

Her patients thronged the village street; Her snowy slats was always quite full. Some said her bitters tasted sweet.

With softly downcast eyes, Have you prayed off the surplus force That in your stature lies?

You're thinking not of litanies With penitential refrain, But of your love's arithmetic, And counting up your gains.

Of poems wrought in needlework, Of symphonies and sonnets, Of bonnets that at Easter-tide Shall banish Lenten frowns.

Of the Lenten legend, In royal purple clad, Fair penitence in violet, Your coming makes me glad!

The wife of the junior senator from Pennsylvania, Mrs. Matthew S. Quay, is pre-eminently a home woman.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE IN BILLYVILLE: Had woman suffrage meet in Billyville-on-the-Bend, With Sister Wilkins in the chair, Miss Jenkins on one end.

An' Sairy Jones on 'Ocher, and that air An' O'Brien, with a wile to spare, An' Molly Spinks, parading round in these new flanked gowns.

An' 'twas: "Now step lively ladies! For soon you'll wear a coat, An' you'll canvass all the country When you vote, vote, vote!"

They passed a resolution to the fact that women rules, An' order the 'ment as well as teach the schools, That they get to be votin', and a raisin' of a row.

An' 'twas: "Step up lively, ladies! For soon you'll wear a coat; An' the men kin mind the babies When you vote, vote, vote!"

They talked from sun to sundown, an' their sentiments was free; An' every man in Billyville climbed a oak or hickory tree.

The thing is been decided that the women own the town, An' as they climb down, The men'll take the kitchen jest as an' as they climb down.

Step up lively, gentlemen! An' jerk your coat, An' burn the biscuits, An' your wives have some to eat!"

Book written by two clever women are set forth some facts, the women were once are not without suggestion.

It seems as if the English, like her American sister, difficulty in entering professional business occupations, but plenty of getting equal pay for work in common to both nations.

Of