Lively Discussions of Temperance Men at Jermyn Convention.

THE SALOON IS A DETRIMENT

After a Lengthy Debate the Delegates Decided That Liquor Selling Is a Monace to Temperance - They Believe Ouarterly Conventions a Good Thing

Delegates from temperance societies of the First district met in eighth quarterly convention at the parochial hall, in Jermyn parish, yesterday after-noon. The regular chairman was absent and Vice President of the Diocesan Tonight the select and common coun- union, Frank McCaffrey, of Jermyn, clis will meet in joint session to elect a city solicitor for a term of two years. was chosen to preside. Charge.

The body of a new born babe was tards the progress of the temperance movement. He does it whenever he sells a drink of liquor, for that is the week, the usual evening entertainment

James Brown, of Carbondale, wanted to know what business the temperance men would have in driving the liquor would have to live for if the liquor seller were driven from the land. Another delegate, who evidently has a relative whom he did not wish to offend in the liquor business, spoke his mind in the following manner: "Mr. President, the least said, the aislest mended."

Mr. Banks Was Positive. Delegate A. F. Banks very sensibly said that the question was a query and inating gas? The speaker said that no sensible minded man could vote ad-Millers', on Cedar avenue, where it now versely. The saloon-keeper retards the progress of the temperance movement, because the temperance movement is organized to battle with the power of the saloon.

Vice President Lavan, of Wilkes-Barre, said that the sooner temperance theory that the bundle contained the men go at the liquor traffic with dead baby is exploded by the fact that knuckles bare and sleeves rolled up, the better it will be for their welfare.

It was left for John Mulraney, of Carbondale, to set the convention agog. Of course, the saloon-keeper, he said, retards the progress of the temperance movement, but there is another that is a greater foe to the movement. The proprietor of the "festive speak easy" this foe. Delegate Mulraney, in a clear, ringing voice, charged temperance men with being their own bitter antagonists, when they acquiesce in the prevalent tolerance of the holes-in-thewall. In his ward in Carbondale he knows of at least twenty men, who sell liquor without a license from the court. The constable of the ward, the speaker said, also knows these same proprietors of unlicensed rum shops, but he goes down term after term to court and swears before the judges that no liquor is sold with or without a license in his ward. Mr. Mulraney also said that he sent a list of the speak-easy proprietors to Mr. McCaffrey, the second vice president of the Diocesan union, but in no way, public, private, or in quarterly convention, had the latter ever acknowledged the receipt of the same.

A Divorce Is Needed. Mr. Lavan, of Wilkes-Barre, advocated some way of cleansing the existing condition of politics. The first place, he said, the candidate, whether he be judge or constable, goes after being nominated is to the saloon to court its influence, and before seeking to throw all the blame upon the saloon-keeper, to be something done to divorce pollties from the rum influence. It is usesaloon element, when the law is throttled by the power of the liquor seller. John Killeen, of Carbondale, took the view that in any district where there are twenty-five temperance men, no excuse exists for the presence of the speak easy. If those men would exert themselves around the time when constables make their returns to the court, these functionaries would not be so ready to perjure themselves in shielding the unlicensed grog sellers. Each constable, Mr. Killeen said, gives bonds in the sum of $1,000 for the faithful performance of morning. Mr. Roland was a carpenter, his duty, and if he does not perform it, and certain temperance men know that he does not perform it and still do not ake place this afternoon at 2.30, and take him to task, then the temperance men are to blame and not the constable nor the speak-easy proprietor. A was affirmed without a dissenting vote. A large measure of discussion was provoked by the question concerning the advisability of holding society picnics for the purpose of raising funds to defray the expense of lectures. Various views were put forth. There was a great divergence of opinion as to why picnics, or other kindred means for raising money, should not be held; but all coincided that the most substantial reason is that it would be more honorable for the members of each society to pay pro rata for evangelistic work than to ask or expect outsiders to as Ouerterlies Are All Right. The question whether or not quarterly conventions are beneficial was next ooted, Presiding Officer McCaffrey introduced the subject and asked those in favor of quarterly conventions to give good and substantial reasons why they should not be discontinued. It was argued that if they are of no benefit they ought to be abolished. This take place next Saturday morning, afternoon and evening at the rooms of the association on Washington avenue. A

they should not be discontinued. It was argued that if they are of no benefit they ought to be abolished. This question brought forth a concensus of opinion. Nearly every delegate who expressed himself admitted that quarterly conventions are of a good deal of good. A vote was taken and resulted unanimously in the affirmative While the convention was waiting for the committee on credentials to make its report, the chairman called for short speeches from the delegates on any topic that might be of interest. Vice-President Charles H. Lavan, of the Diocesan Union, mounted the rostrum and acquitted himself in his usual forcible and emphatic style. He ex-plained that the object of quarterly conventions is to effect good result, by bringing men to lead sober lives. If these conventions do not accomplish this end then they fall short of the purpose for which they were inaugurat-ed. He did not see many young men before him in the audiences and he felt sorry for that fact. There is no reason, he said, why every young man in every district of the union should not belong to the temperance cause. The reason is obvious and self-evident, and he depreciated vigorously the apathy of the women. They, too, he said, ought to belong to total abstinence societies, because no persons suffer as they do from the blight of intemperance. The women should belong to the temperance cause, not because they need the pledge, but their influence and example in every community would be a power for good.

Neary Favors Enthusiasm. M. J. Neary, of Mayfield, advocated general enthusiasm among the officers of the union, the officers of the district, and, in fact, the rank and file of the societies. He urged the temperance men to take a lesson of advice from other organizations. M. F. Burke, of Carbondale, thought that it would boom the temperance cause if an insurance feature were added to the constitution and by-laws. In societies, he said, where the members have to die to win benefits, the members are more attached to the organization.

Miss Mary Barrett, of Carbondale, presented an elaborate report of the success of the St. Rose's Ladies' Total Abstinence society of Carbondale, for this question is discussed, the man who make arrangements for societies that favors abolishing the saloon is looked would like to have her lecture under upon as a temperance crank and a their auspices.
