COMPULSORY EDUCATION BILL

Delegation of Pittsburgers Seek to Infuse "Ginger" Into Mr. Farr's Mensure-A Lively Debate Follows.

Speck to the Scranton Tribune.

Harrisburg, April 9.—A striking ilstration of Scrantonian modesty was hibited in the house today in the ork of Charles O'Malley, Last Friay O'Malley secured two special orrs. It is considered a great favor to ure one and the idea of asking two completely amazzed the house that orders were granted before the sitation was realized. The bills provide hat territory annexed to cities of the third class becomes part of the poor and school district of such city. Both of these bills passed the house finally today; as did also the bill relating to the Carbondale poor district, providing that each ward shall elect a member and that the president judge of Lackawanna county shall fill the vacancles Two bills in one day is pretty good

It was the opinion that the Farr bill, as it now is, does not confer the necessary authority.

Mr. Farr said the house committee on education objected to arresting truants. Professor Farrer argued that fining the parents did not reach the shildren. In the case of widows, for example, they may be defied by their children. Parents want their children educated, but often the parental governigent is weak, and it is not the fault of the father or mother. The idea of a truant room scares the rural members, as some expense is attached.

Professor Snyder suggested that the mandatory feature be knocked out, and give school districts who want such truant rooms the authority to set them Mr. Farr insists that school boards have the authority under ex-Isting laws. A. P. Cochran recommended that the returns from the census of school children, made by the assessors, be filed with the secretary of the school boards and the state superintendent instead of the county commissioners It will save the expense of franscribing. The committee decided to take the amendments under advisement.
