CITY NOTES. Thomas McCann, of New street, died suddenly yesterday of an affection of the heart. The Volunteer Firemen's association, of this city, will hold a meeting in Durry's hall tonight. The contest for the bicycle and kodak will close tonight at Young Men's Christian association hall. The Scranton Electric Light and Heat company yesterday paid the city treasurer $1,155, the amount of the company's first tax on its 2,319 poles. A regular meeting of the County Medical society was held at the court house last night, when medical topics were discussed by a large number of members. Mary Snyder, George Berath and Joseph Zurney, county jail prisoners who have been at the Lackawanna hospital for treatment, were taken back to the county jail yesterday. "Sailor" Jordan, who fell from the Hotel Jermyn several weeks ago, was discharged from the Lackawanna hospital yesterday and taken to the Hillside home. Jordan is slightly demented. Marriage licenses were granted yesterday by the clerk of the courts to Patrick McAndrew and Maria Wolorka, of Archbald, and James B. Rowison and May H. Schlegel, of Carbondale. Thirty-five liens against Pine street property owners were filed with Prothonotary Pryor yesterday by City Solicitor Torrey. The liens are for money due for the paving of Pine street. William Martin stole a match from Mosek's store on Penn avenue yesterday afternoon and ran down the avenue. He was caught by Patrolman Day and is locked in the central police station. The remains of Miss Eudora G. Fuller will arrive at the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western depot from Elmhurst at 12:29 tomorrow afternoon, and from there will be taken direct to the Dunmore cemetery. Applications were made to the court yesterday for charters for the First German Baptist church, of Scranton, and the Christopher Columbus Slavonic Roman Catholic benevolent association, of Archbald. Elmer E. Isby, who was held in jail by Alderman Wright on Monday to appear at court upon a charge of bigamy, attended at the alderman's office yesterday with his brother, Malcolm Isby, who qualified as his bondsman in the sum of $50. The members of Moses Taylor council, No. 151, Junior Order United American Mechanics, intend having a pleasant time tomorrow evening at their hall on Wyoming avenue. Regular business will be discontinued and the evening given up to music and refreshments. The Frothingham box office is now open at Frank Siegel's promenade concert hall to be given on Monday evening and parties holding tickets for the same may have seats checked if they desire. The boxes and logs will be sold at concert on Saturday at 1 o'clock. There has been a change made in the name of the spring tournament of Excelsior Athletic club. First the name was to have taken place on April 22, on account of the entertainment at Frothingham under the auspices of the Thirteenth regiment, the date was changed to a week ahead, and it was decided to hold the tournament on April 17 at the Frothingham hall. Now, another change has been made and the tournament will be held on the 17th at the Frothingham theater instead of at Music hall.

NO VERDICT AT MIDNIGHT Jurors in Dickinson Case Had Not Agreed at That Time. CLOSING ARGUMENTS TO JURY Made by Major Everett Warren and ex Judge Bailey—Charge Delivered by Judge Acheson in Submitting the Case—Juror Green's Wife Dead.

Monday afternoon's dramatic occurrence at the trial of the Dickinson case before Judge Acheson in the United States circuit court, attracted a mob of thousands to the federal building yesterday to hear the closing arguments to the jury by the counsel on both sides. The case was given to the jury at 1:15 p. m. and at midnight a verdict had not been agreed upon. Major Warren, at 9 o'clock, opened for the defendants and concluded his address at 11 o'clock. Those who listened to it say that for comprehensiveness and elaborate, unexceptionable argument, it deserves to rank among the notable pleadings of a jury in this part of Pennsylvania. He paid a high compliment to Miss Dickinson's brilliant life, and said that the act which the defendants were present in court was necessary in the interest of humanity. He sifted the evidence from the time that it had any bearing upon the suit until the day of her confinement in Danville asylum. She alleges that she was sane when they removed her, and her unsupported testimony stands alone against that of her sister, her true friends and these respectable physicians who had only the purest and most humane motives in seeing her removed and cared for at a place, a noble institution of its kind, where the treatment she would receive would revivify her and make her again the Anna Dickinson of old. And for this she has repaid them by bringing a suit for damages against them. She must either be an insane being or else one of the most wicked women living. Major Warren refused to believe that she was wicked and proceeded then to unfold to the jury one after the other, the numerous actions and events, all of which have been brought out on trial, to establish her mental unsoundness. Last of all was her attack upon him, and he denominated it one of the most low-lived, dirty and outrageous charges ever invented.

Judge Bailey's Dispassion. Judge Bailey followed and his address did not conclude until 1 o'clock, when court adjourned for dinner. It was an eloquent effort, and its equal in word painting and embellishment would be difficult to discover. He began with Miss Dickinson's girlhood in Philadelphia, her experience at a youthful age on the lecture platform, where she won a reputation that extended from shore to shore, her glorious services to her country during the war, her success upon the stage, and then he drifted through all the evidence relating to her incarceration in an insane hospital, the instance of designing persons whose animus was to get possession of her property. Freely at 2 o'clock Judge Acheson began his charge to the jury. He informed them that the suit which they had heard tried, was an action of trespass, brought by Anna E. Dickinson against John Courtwright, Dr. Gideon Underwood, Dr. John B. Heilmann, J. Harry Bryden, George B. Thompson and Allan Ezgleston, all of West Pittston borough, but Mr. Courtwright, the first named defendant, is dead, and the action is therefore against the others. That two of the physicians are doctors, one a practitioner of forty years' experience, the other considerably less than that, but both men of considerable experience. Court then explained that previous to the removal of Miss Dickinson to the Danville asylum she and her sister Susan lived in West Pittston, and Miss Susan was the lessee of the premises. The plaintiff alleges that on Feb. 25, 1891, the defendants broke open her room door and by force and against her will removed her to the Danville insane asylum, where she was confined and remained for five weeks and one day. That defendant, the court said, shows that the room was burst open, and during the trial the plaintiff and her witnesses have characterized and condemned the actions of the defendants on that occasion as inhuman, etc. But the jury should proceed with only the light guided by the evidence. The defendants maintain that their evidence has proven that at the time of her removal, Miss Dickinson was not in her proper mind. Question for the Jury. It is for the jury, then, to decide whether these allegations of the defendants are true. It not only appears from the testimony adduced at the trial, but it is a matter of common knowledge that one of unground mind is said to be demented, but that does not necessarily imply the extinction of the mental faculties. An insane person may have memory and may reason along certain lines, and think and act with remarkable cunning. The words and actions of the individual are the best points from which to form an opinion as to his sanity; not one noticeably glaring action, but the regular train of apparently insignificant events, which in themselves are not of much consequence, but when reasoned as a whole may indicate a certain condition of the mind. Each of the defendants except Dr. Underwood are near friends of the Dickinson family, and what they had to do with Anna's removal to Danville was at the instance and request of Miss Susan. And there has been much evidence to show that Susan had been warmly attached to the plaintiff. It appears that on or about Thursday, Feb. 13, 1891, Susan manifested an anxiety on account of the alleged extraordinary actions of her sister, who began to conduct herself in a strange and unnatural manner. Three women, the plaintiff, Miss Susan, and Martha, the servant, were the only occupants of the house and being in dread of any harm that Miss Anna might commit, the assistance of Mr. Ezgleston and Dr. Heilmann was sought, and they came and remained in the house during the night. The Dickinsons being in straightened pecuniary circumstances, Miss Susan related that the poor authorities were invoked, and Dr. Underwood, who had a wide range of experience with insane patients, was called by Dr. Heilmann to make an examination of Miss Anna's mental condition, as a preparatory step toward removing her to the asylum for treatment. Dr. Underwood examined Miss Dickinson and made out a certificate of lunacy. It was signed by Dr. Underwood and Dr. Heilmann, but the latter not having been a medical practitioner for five years before that time, as required by the act of assembly, Dr. James Oglesby, of Danville, a physician of wide practice, was called to examine her at the asylum, and he adjudged her insane, and a certificate of lunacy was made out and signed by Drs. Underwood and Oglesby. His Closing Remarks. Judge Acheson explained to the jury that he would not recite the testimony over again to them; but he mentioned the occasion of Miss Dickinson's complaint regarding the pains in her toes, the allegations that she was subject to the liquor habit; the wounding of her sister Susan with the scissor; chasing the servant out on the street; her action in tearing up telegrams at the Pittston depot; her conduct at the dressmaker's, exposing her person to show a scar where an operation had been performed on her, and several other minor incidents, were brought to the notice of the jury by the court. If these occurrences establish any proof of the plaintiff's unsoundness of mind the jury is bound to accept them as indications of her mental condition. Court impressed strongly upon the minds of the jury the action of Miss Dickinson in locking herself in her room for three days and refusing to eat. What opinion, asked the court, can be deduced from this action? In summing up his charge Judge Acheson instructed the jury that they must weigh well all the circumstances, and a safe rule to go by would be to deliberate upon what they themselves would do under the circumstances. Before Judge Acheson began his charge to the jury he received a telegram announcing the death of the wife of Juror Green, of McCreary, Forest county. In closing his charge the judge said that he would be ready to take the verdict up to midnight, that Juror Green might return to his home as soon as an agreement was reached. The jurors had stormy sessions during the evening and at midnight retired to their cots unable to reach a conclusion.

NONSUIT IN WELSH CASE. Reasons for Which Judge Archbald Granted a Nonsuit. The suit of James Welsh, executor of Mary Welsh, against the Dwelling House Insurance company, was resumed before Judge Archbald in the main court room yesterday morning. At 9 o'clock the plaintiff rested and the defense asked for a nonsuit on the ground that the policy was not transferred to James Welsh after the death of Mary Welsh. It became void. A lengthy argument was made in support of the motion for a nonsuit by Attorney Leiser, of Lewisburg, who held that as James Welsh was the sole legatee under the will, he at once became the owner of the property, and that in consequence of this change of title the policy became void. Judge Archbald endorsed this position and granted the nonsuit. In the action of John Hurn against the city of Scranton a verdict of $150 was taken by agreement.

In Court Room No. 2. Before Judge Stinson in court room No. 2 the action of Miss Lulu Green against Contractor E. D. Nicholas, of the West Side, was tried. Miss Green's father, Samuel Gress, was employed by the defendant as a foreman and assigned to his daughter a wages claim for $75.99 against Nicholas. The latter denied that he owed that amount of money to Gress, and placed the amount of his indebtedness at $23.75. Attorney Charles E. Oliver appeared for the plaintiff and Attorney C. Comery for the defendant. A verdict of $59.73 was returned in favor of the plaintiff.

In the action of the Scranton Packing company against H. A. Roche, no appearance was made for the defendant and a verdict of $48.11 was taken for the plaintiff, being the full amount of the claim with interest.

Witness became faint. In court room No. 2 the suit of L. S. Harver against his father-in-law, A. H. Harver, was tried and disposed of before Judge Gunster. The plaintiff brought the action to recover a bill for twenty-five months' board at $19 a month. The plaintiff was put on the stand to testify and almost fainted while telling his story to the jury. He was assisted to a window where he revived. He then took the stand again and continued his story. It appeared that Sliowther was now in the county jail on a charge of breaking a sewing machine that had been taken into his house against his wishes. When the circumstances were made known to Judge Gunster he ordered that Sliowther be released from jail on his own recognizance in the sum of $200. The jury rendered a verdict in favor of Sliowther for $273.75.

Genitor's Hard Luck. Edward Genitor, one of Neale's cabmen who was discharged from the Lackawanna hospital, where he had been ill with pneumonia, was too weak yesterday afternoon to control a team of frightened horses and in consequence he is again in the hospital. He was sent to the hospital on Linden street, just west of Washington avenue, the team became frightened and in turning sharply across the car track the wagon overturned and Genitor was thrown to the ground, the wheels passing over his legs. The team was caught on Franklin avenue and were not injured.

Two Unhappy Wives. Testimony in the divorce cases of Mrs. Edith Carpenter against Fred Carpenter and Mrs. Carrie Sherer against Ward Sherer was taken before Judge Edwards yesterday by Stenographer J. J. McAndrew. Mrs. Carpenter asks a divorce on the ground of cruel treatment and Mrs. Sherer on the ground of desertion.

der way for several weeks and plans for a new grandstand have been made by Lacey & Son, architects. The park is to be used for open air sports and outdoor sports, and the new association has already joined the Eastern Pennsylvania trotting circuit and will hold four-day meetings in June and September. The proposed new grandstand is the most important improvement. It will be placed twenty-five feet back from the track and will be fronted by a well kept lawn. Fourteen rows of seats will seat 2,500 persons. In the basement will be located a restaurant and

RIVER ON THE RAMPADE. Lackawanna Is Higher Than It Has Been for Years.

Reports from all low points between the towns of Honesdale and Wilkes-Barre are to the effect that the rivers and streams roundabout, having been fed by the recent rains, have overflowed their banks and done considerable damage. The most serious story comes from Jermyn where a washout on the Ontario and Western railroad was caused by a wreck that occurred to a freight train yesterday morning at 3 o'clock, and resulted in the death of Peter Farrell, a brakeman of the train. A heavy volume of water swept down Rushbrook creek and washed away a portion of the roadbed. Farrell was riding in the cab of the engine and jumped to save himself, but he jumped to his death. In Honesdale the rain poured down so incessantly Sunday and Monday that all the streams in the vicinity overflowed their banks. The water had risen so high that persons living along the Dyberry creek became fearful of being washed out, and the live stock had to be removed from stables along the river. Cellars were flooded, outbuildings washed away, roads submerged, and the havoc is widespread. Until Sunday there had been three feet of snow in the woods. The water damaged the stock in the box factory of Wooden & Blackney, and the flood has reached a higher mark than ever before, except when ice blockades occurred. The flats above Honesdale are all flooded, and below the town a dam on the Lackawanna river and two on the Dyberry were carried down the stream. This will cause a delay of two or three weeks in the navigation on the river, before these breaks can be repaired.

Up in Carbondale. Reports from Carbondale state that the flood has caused great havoc in many parts of the city. The supports of the bridges on Sixth and Eighth avenues have been swept from their positions and the press room of the Herald office had over nine inches of water. Two of the local mines were reported to be flooded. Along the Lackawanna river south to this city the water has backed up on the lowlands and submerged considerable territory. At Archbald, Peckville, Olyphant and Dickson cellars of houses contiguous to the river are filled with water. And in this city the water at Say Ave. and West Market street is two feet deep on the street. The river has swollen to such an extent that the foot bridge at Wood street is unsafe, and at Court street and Albright avenues the cellars are all full. The houses of Hugh Coggins and John Cunningham, near the Base Ball park, are flooded; the cellars are choked and all the stock in them destroyed. The water has raised to a height of two feet on the first floor. Along Grove street the cellars are filled with water, and the flats east of the Base Ball park is submerged. On the South Side. The next place where any damage is done is on the South Side at the Central Park garden. The hotel connected with the garden is conducted by Proprietor Charles S. Gelbert in the basement of the building adjoining the park and the water has backed into it from the Stafford Meadow brook and covered the floor to the depth of two feet. The cellar of the hotel of Mrs. Andrew Glibin, situated on the bank of the brook, is flooded almost to the ceiling. The creek is very high and the current is rapid. The water has pervaded the cellars to the extent of from six inches to two feet in several of the houses along South Wyoming avenue and the river bank. From up the valley the reports are that the water is receding and around the North end part of the city there has been no perceptible lowering of the water. On the South Side the waters are abating, if anything. From Wilkes-Barre the statement comes that the water in the Susquehanna river was sixteen feet above low water mark last night, the result of the heavy rains for the past two days. The lower flats are inundated and the electrical cars have stopped running between Wilkes-Barre and Kingston. Coroner Kelley was notified of the death of Brakeman Farrell, of Jermyn, but he did not deem an inquest necessary. Blooming plants at Clark's annex, 132 Washington avenue. W. C. Bushnell, leather dealer, has removed to 319 Spruce street, opposite Hotel Jermyn. Clark's florists' annex, 132 Washington avenue.

APPOINTMENTS OF GRANDSTAND. A balcony is to be built above the seats and projecting from the eaves, and will be used as a bandstand. Beneath the balcony and outside the main building will be built a box containing room for seven press representatives. The seating part of the stand will be reached by two double flights of steps from the lawn, and a broad stairway leading up from the basement. A new judges' stand is to be erected, and new fences will enclose the track and will be built entirely around the park. As soon as the weather permits the track is to be put in first class condition and will be kept so during open weather. The old sheds have been torn down and replaced by forty stalls. One of the large exhibition buildings is now being completely renovated and when the work is finished will contain fifty large box stalls. In fact, the entire property is to be built anew, and when the season opens the park will have lost all resemblance to its former self. The management and the association is in purpose and person a complete change.
