

MINISTERS IN SESSION

Forty-fourth Annual Wyoming Conference Begins in Carbondale.

BISHOP ANDREWS PRESIDING

Dr. Day Pleads for the Syracuse University—Report and Statistics in the Afternoon—Chaplain McCabe's Talk on Finances.

us to the goal. Some have lately parted the ether air.

Our bishop in his official way was with us once before. But fourteen years have not only changed our personal presence, but he will find that the personnel of this conference has marvellously modified. He will miss some of the leaders whom we were proud, Bixby, Olive, King, Ellwell, Qpeal, George Peck, Melson Paddock, Olmstead, Browncomb, Copeland and their like. Yet he will find in the fellowship of this conference a plous, pushing, loving, ambitious, sacrificing company of brothers loyally awaiting his leadership and orders.

Therefore be it resolved, That we welcome our beloved bishop both for his own sake and for his office, and we shall pray that his coming may be a pleasure to himself and profitable to us. Manley S. Hard, J. K. Peck, H. C. McDermott, L. L. Sprague, J. F. Williams, committee.

Response of Bishop Andrews.

When Bishop Andrews rose to respond to the assembly sang "Blest Be the Tie That Binds," which rendered the scene a most impressive one. The bishop, in returning thanks for the love they had shown and the confidence reposed in him, reminded them that he had in a marked degree a great attachment for the Wyoming conference, as in 1848 he was received on probation, and in 1850 and 1851 he was in charge at Cooperstown, at which time he was elected on a committee which recommended the division of the united conference, of which the Wyoming conference was an offshoot. After this pleasant reminiscence he referred to the veterans of the pulpit who had gone to their rest, and he hoped that they would all follow them as they had followed Christ. He then introduced Dr. Day, chancellor of Syracuse university.

Dr. Day, in a speech which attracted the absorbing interest of his audience, referred to the position of the university and lauded its locality as being most delightfully situated, and in a convenient center for New York and Pennsylvania states. They were, however, in want of another building and endowment, which would be the burden of his appeal. He gave a pleasing resume of the work in the physical sciences department, where the young men were making their own instruments and appliances for scientific research. In particular he related that a pupil had recently made a galvanometer at a cost of $5, which would involve an expense of $150 to import.

Urgent Appeal for Help.

These young men, however, were laboring under serious disadvantages in a dirty, dingy little room, and funds were urgently required to fit up a proper room to give the pupils a fair opportunity of carrying on their studies. The university had a nominal endowment of $600,000, but out of this $750,000 was invested for the benefit of annuitants, and no income would accrue to the university until these annuitants had passed from this world. A considerable proportion of the endowments were invested in the west, from which they did not receive the amount of interest, the result being that this $750,000 was compelled to meet deficit of $18,000 to $20,000 per annum. He urged upon them, therefore, to talk to their rich men about this Syracuse university and its requirements. His address was rendered more interesting by his announcement that certain students spent their vacations working in the coal mines in order to gather funds for their maintenance during the university term. Next year they hoped to commence to make honest lawyers for America. In music and painting the students had achieved phenomenal success. There had two masters in painting from Italy, one of whom ranked as the most promising artist throughout the whole of that sunny country. Dr. Day then paid a glowing tribute to the devotion of the Syracuse physicians in giving their time, without fee or reward, to training the pupils. After a vigorous defense of "co-education" he concluded with an appeal for more substantial assistance for the university. Rev. L. L. Sprague, of Kingston, then presented the following resolutions, which were carried by acclamation:

Resolved, That we have listened with pleasure to the splendid address of Chaplain McCabe, Dr. Day, in the interests of Syracuse university, and would welcome him in this, his first visit to our conference and pledge anew to the great university which he represents our fealty and our help.

W. L. Thorpe, L. L. Sprague.

Will Go to Good Cars.

Rev. H. Eaton, representing the Book concern, New York City, reported that the sum of $10,000 would be handed over as the dividends this year. This amount would be devoted to the work of ministers' fund and widows' and orphans' fund. The appointment received by the Wyoming conference would be $1,700 and $25 from the chartered fund. The reverend gentleman criticized the action of Methodist churches in purchasing periodicals and literature from un denominational sources, thus helping in enriching individual persons, and losing the opportunity of assisting their own denominational auxiliary, whose profits were devoted to the charitable objects of their church.

Rev. Dr. Morrow, of the Pennsylvania Bible society, was next introduced and explained the work of his society and urged a wider patronage in view of the cheap rates at which their bibles were sold. He claimed that the society offered exceptional facilities for spreading a knowledge of scripture among the foreign population, of which the young people's societies should avail themselves.

STATISTICAL SESSION.

Report of the Number of Churches in Conference.

Rev. William M. Hiller, of Tunkhannock, presided at this afternoon's session, when statistical questions were discussed. The roll call of the churches were called in the order of the following districts: Binghamton, Chenango, Honesdale, Oneonta, Owego and Wyoming, comprising a total of 368 churches, out of which 144 were following were reported in Binghamton district, Glenwood and Fleetwood, Susquehanna, Union, Chenango district, Chocouton Center, Mount Upton and Whitney's Point, Honesdale district, Salem, Cassan, North Abington and Paupack, Oneonta district, Santaria Springs and Cooperstown Junction, Owego district, Camptown, Litchfield and Orwell, Wyoming district, West Pittston and Wilkes-Barre Welsh mission. While the roll was called the pastors filed to the altar and delivered their returns to the following pastors: General statistics, to H. H. Wilbur, treasurer's statistics, to Rev. H. H. McDermott; Epworth league and postoffices, to O. L. Severs; detailed missionary reports, to C. H. Newing, and subscriptions to minutes, to H. E. Wheeler.

At this point the meeting adjourned in order to afford the various committees an opportunity for organization.

The Missionary Sermon.

Rev. Benjamin P. Ripley, of Cooperstown, the preacher selected to deliver the missionary sermon, preached at the 3 o'clock meeting to a large and representative congregation. The reverend gentleman dealt in a learned manner with the nature of the first mission, and discussed a wide range of topics having particular regard to the responsibility of the heathens, who, he contended, were aware of the existence of God, and that, of necessity, they would be punished for their sins. His argument was made to show that the Creator was not to be made responsible for the condition of the heathen, but rather that the blame should be placed upon the responsible parties, viz: the Christian church.

ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING.

Large Throng Flocks to Hear Chaplain McCabe's Talk.

Although the evening service was announced to take place at 7:30 o'clock, a large number occupied seats in the church an hour previous, and by 7 o'clock it was found necessary to open the large swing doors and to occupy the spacious school room, which was soon crowded. Chaplain McCabe was accompanied on the platform by Rev. Manley S. Hard, D. D., Rev. W. H. Pearce, D. D., William Connell and Presiding Elder Rev. James O. Woodruff, of Binghamton, who conducted the service.

At 7:30 o'clock the organ struck up the hymn "Eternal Father, Thou Hast Said," and the immense throng immediately took up the grand words of the well known hymn. Rev. John B. Sumner, of Pittston, offered a fervent prayer for the success of the conference after which the choir rendered, with much taste, "By the River of Babylon." Rev. Manley S. Hard read a portion of the Psalms. Chaplain McCabe conducted a quartette, "He's the Prince of Peace-makers," the audience rendering the chorus.

Report of Missionary Finances.

Rev. Hugh C. McDermott, of Kingston, conference treasurer, submitted the following report of contributions received from the various districts, toward missionary work: Binghamton, $4,642, increase, $318; Chenango, $2,306, increase, $23; Honesdale, $2,234, increase, $78; Owego, $2,507, decrease, $186; Oneonta, $2,268, decrease, $19; Wyoming, $12,858, increase, $521; total, $12,858; net increase, $784.

The announcement was received with great enthusiasm, and a clergyman in the audience suggested that they should sing the "Doxology" as a expression of their feeling, and the old tune was soon rendered by a thousand voices.

Having worked his audience into a state of enthusiasm Chaplain McCabe announced that he had charts upon which were illustrated a method of raising $1,500,000 for missionary purposes in order to emphasize the information upon his hearers, the chaplain called up a number of pastors and divided a large pile of charts among them to sell to the audience at the price of five cents each. Needless to say the whole of the charts were readily disposed of, and many more charts were deposited in the chaplain's capacious pockets.

While the charts were being sold he joyfully remarked that no burglar in New York thought more of the problem "how to get more than himself" than he had thought. "But," he created another ripple of amusement by referring to a promise made by Bishop Newman, that he would leave a sum of $5,000 in his will for the chaplain's literature work. He appreciated the promise and hoped that the bishop would live many years, "but," he added in a side whisper, "I want that $5,000 very badly."

As a prelude to his sermon Chaplain McCabe and Rev. Manley S. Hard sang a duet, and at its conclusion the chaplain commenced the delivery of his address, which had been so eagerly anticipated.

Don't think you can afford to miss "The Dazzler" on Monday evening, when Cosgrove & Grant's comedians will be seen at the Academy of Music for the second time this season. The play has been entirely re-written; costumes are new throughout, and all the music is new. Elaborate and novel scenery is a feature of this year's production, and a beautiful song and dance by six young ladies is promised, with the addition of some brilliant electric effects.

another year, but was unable to comply.

Rev. Edwin B. Olmstead, of Binghamton, N. Y., who was elected to succeed himself as conference secretary, discharged the duties of that office in an admirable manner and is successful in expediting the business of the twenty-nine committees.

The Carbondale Methodist church, in which the conference is held, is splendid specimen of the progressive Methodism of the Wyoming conference district. The edifice is a prominent feature of the Pioneer City, and the interior arrangements are all that can be desired.

All the Scranton pastors are present at the conference, viz.: Revs. W. H. Pearce, L. C. Floyd, A. P. Chaffee, P. W. Cooper, M. D. Fuller, E. L. Santee, P. R. Hawhurst, Rev. Richard Horne (superannuated) did not answer the roll today. Rev. P. B. Dony is also present and takes considerable interest in the proceedings. T. O. C.

UNKNOWN MAN DROWNED.

Was Seen to Fall Into the Roaring Brook from the D. & H. Bridge—Body Has Not Been Found.

About 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon a Polisher fell from the Delaware and Hudson railroad bridge that spans the Roaring brook at South Washington avenue and Birch street. His body was swept with the swiftly-rushing current and carried to the Lackawanna river, and the last seen of the hopeless individual was near a location on the Hudson street bridge, a sudden movement where another Polisher plunged into the stream to save him, but was not successful in the attempt.

A daughter of Patrolman Victor Sartor was on her way to school and saw his cap blown by the wind into the water and he made a sudden movement to catch it, losing his balance and toppling head foremost, over the guard rail into the brook beneath. There is about four feet of water in the stream and the current is exceedingly rapid. Miss Sartor says that she did not make any effort to save herself, and it looked as though the fall had stunned him.

Saw the Floating Body.

Michael McNully, foreman at the Barber Asphalt works, states that he saw the body floating down the stream. Quite a number say they saw the body in the water and the man appeared to be near a location on Hudson street bridge the water is six or more feet deep, and the body was not observed after it passed that point. This caused a search to be made under the bridge, with the expectation that the man might have been caught in the water and he made a sudden movement a water main that passed through the river. Active search along the river from Birch street to the National colliery failed to discover the remains.

A Tribune reporter made a tour among the Polish and Hungarian people living along the Platts, but learned nothing that would indicate who the man was. They all seemed to be pervaded with the "dead man no good" feeling and had nothing to say for publication. The most trustworthy accounts agree that the man was about 30 years of age and had the appearance of a foreigner.

If you want a good plumber telephone 232. W. G. Doud & Co., 509 Lackawanna avenue.

IN LOCAL THEATERS.

For their farewell engagement in this city at the Academy of Music Saturday evening, the Kendalls will give the first Scranton production of that now very famous marvel of dramatic construction, Piner's famous play, "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," which is unquestionably the most brilliant specimen of his ability as a playwright its distinguished author has thus far in his career turned out nothing so successful.

"The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," as the title would imply, deals with a question of everyday life under certain conditions, that could not fail to excite the utmost attentive interest, even though the subject were handled with a less pronounced skill than Mr. Piner's has done.

At Davis' theater this afternoon Rice & Burton's comedians will open a three day's engagement in "McBoodle and Pooodle." It is an entertaining farce, and is presented by a company that has few superiors on the road.

Don't think you can afford to miss "The Dazzler" on Monday evening, when Cosgrove & Grant's comedians will be seen at the Academy of Music for the second time this season. The play has been entirely re-written; costumes are new throughout, and all the music is new. IT RUNS BY WIND. Secret of the Mysterious Spruce Street Bicycle. A bicycle with its wheels revolving at a rapid rate attracted curious spectators to the window of a Spruce street sporting goods dealer all of yesterday. The bicycle itself did not attract as much attention and comment, however, as the mysterious power which kept the wheels revolving.

The bicycle rested upon an iron frame and was not connected with any appliance. The secret rested with a minute rubber tube just visible through the floor and beneath each wheel. In another part of the store an electric fan forced air through the tubes which were set at an angle and the escaping air did the rest.
