LAUREL HILL PARK.

Court House Square.

Extensive Preparations for the Entertainment of Visitors During the Coming Summer-Manager Laine's Enterprise. Laurel Hill park, under the manage-ment of J. H. Laine, lately of the Frothingham theater, promises to be one of the most popular resorts in northeastern Pennsylvania. When the eason opens Scrantonians will doubt less be surprised at the transformation that will have taken place in the park For many days past gangs of carpenters, gardeners and painters, under supervision of Mr. Laine, have been busiengaged improving what was already beautiful by nature. A new and handsome entrance building has been erected which contains ticket offices, the lessee's office, and apartments for the cashler and advertising agent for the institution. The rough places on the ground near the main entrance have been smoothed and fertilized and laid out with beautiful flower beds and walks. New buildings have been erected; sewers and water pipes have been placed about the ground and at night the place will be illuminated by 100 arc lights and between 2,000 and 3,000 incandescent lamps.

Situated near the entrance is the curriculum and the midway, where the usual features of entertainment will be seen daily. In this vicinity will be stationed an elephant and several cages of wild animals. At the right of the main entrance is situated the regular picnic ground, where every convenience for picnic parties has been arranged. This is one of the most shady and delightful portions of the park. On up the hill beyond the menagerie building the balloon camp will be located. Here the Nellie Shannon Balloon company, with E. D. Hutchinson and Mile. Ruby Devereaux will give exhibitions and make ascensions.

The race track at the most elevated portion of the park will be enlarged and a miniature lake placed in the center for use during the rendition of Paine's celebrated spectacles. Numerous entertainments of this character have already been booked, including Forepaugh's big attractions.

Space will not allow a detailed account of the many other features of improvement that have been made by Mr. Laine, utilizing nearly every foot of the 20-acre plot. It is safe to predict that under his management the park will be conducted in a way that will make it a popular afternoon and evening resort. No intoxicants will be allowed on the ground. A large and competent police force will preserve order at all times and look after the wants of visitors, and ladies and children can feel as secure as in their own homes in the enjoyments of the beauties of the park. first-class restaurant, candy stands, ice cream parlors, etc., will be open at all hours during the season and will be in charge of polite attendants in every department. An admission fee of 10 cents will en able one to enjoy the numerous features of the park daily, except upon holidays, when extraordinary attractions will be introduced, when the admission will probably be 25 cents.

When all details are complete Laurel Hill park will be one of the most delightful resorts at which to pass summer day in this section of the state.

IN THE WORLD OF SOCIETY

Easter Week Was Attended by Many Delightful Pestivities.

YALE MEN OWNED THE CITY

The Gamut of the Week's Events Sounded in Short Paragraphs-Guests and Entertainers-Personal Mention Reduced to a Compact Compass.

After a dull Lenten season, the past week witnessed a marked and enjoyable return to numerous social pleasantries. Early in the week the many men and young ladies and their classmates home from college and school, entered with a zest into several house parties and afternoon affairs. Tuesday night was given the last assembly of the season in the Scranton Bicylce club house, and during Wednesday the visiting Yale glee and banjo clubs were received with open arms and right royally entertained. Their presence was the chief event of the week.

The Yale men were completely lionized from the time of their arrival early Wednesday afternoon until their departure for New Haven on the 2.50 clock train Thursday morning. The Wyoming house was their headquarters, but they were kept so busily on the go that the hotel rooms engaged for them were used only for dressing

At her tea for the club in the afternoon Mrs. Hunt was assisted by Misses Belin, Susan Jermyn, Archbald, Augusta Archbald, Jessie Coursen, Thompson, of Pottsville, and Stanton and Holmes, of Honesdale.

Mrs. James Archbald gave a dancing party after the concert and was assisted in receiving by Miss Belknap, of New York; Miss Thompson, of Pottsville, and Miss Holmes, of Honesdale. In addition to the glee and banjo clubs there were present from out of town, Miss Foliansbee, Chicago; Miss Kirke, of St. Paul; Miss Chase, Fall River; Miss Williams, Ithaca; Miss Barker, Chicago; Miss Adams, Orange; Miss Hub-bell, New York; Miss Stanton, Honesdale; Miss Morgan, San Francisco; Miss Lattimer, Owego, and Messrs. Among the weddings of the week were the following, which occurred on Wednesday: Miss Fanny Coyne, of Linden street, to George Dunn, in St. Peter's cathedral, by Rev. J. A. O'Reilly; Miss Bridget Kellett and David Watkins, at the residence of Bishop O'Hara, by Rev. J. J. B. Feeley; Miss Annie Burke, of Wood street, to M. F. Loftus, of Carbondale, in the Church of the Holy Rosary, by Rev. J. J. O'Toole; Miss Kate Saul, of Price street, to A. L. Martin, of North Washington avenue, in St. Patrick's church, by Rev. D. A. Dunne.

Mrs. James H. Torrey gave a reception Tuesday afternoon in honor of her guests, Miss Adams, of Orange, and Miss Williams, of Ithaca, Wells college classmates of Miss Torrey.

Mrs. D. C. Taylor's at home of Wednesday evening was attended by a large number. Mrs. Taylor was assisted in receiving by her sister, Mrs. Law, and her sister-in-law, Mrs. McDougall, of Pittston. She was assisted in entertaining and serving by Mrs. Joseph Chase, Mrs. A. M. Decker, Mrs. F. H. Jermyn, Mrs. Wright, Mrs. Josephine Koons, Mrs. E. B. Jermyn, and Misses Elizabeth Howell, Merrill, Louis Matthews and Barker.

Archibald McDougall, Mrs. E. Davies, Mrs. John B. Law, and Misses Janette Hughes. Margaret Cool, Harriet Cooper, Lydia Damon, Anna Gorman, Helen Troxell, Margaret Lacoe, Belle Fenn, Janet

The presence of Governor Hastings, Mrs. Hastings, Lieutenant Governor Lyon, and possibly Mrs. Lyon, and the governor's staff and suite at the opening performance of "Allatoona," will probably attract an audience which will tax the seating capacity of the Frothingham Monday night. Out of courtesy to the governor and his wife, the first woman of the state, it is expected that women will appear in evening dress and without bonnets.

Among those who have engaged boxes or loges for Monday night's performance of "Allatoona" in the Frothing-ham are: E. N. Willard, E. L. Fuller, William Connell, T. H. Watkins and H. P. Simpson, boxes; Colonel H. A. Coursen, W. H. Jessup, jr., A. E. Hunt, Colonel E. H. Ripple, J. L. Crawford and

A reception was tendered to Rev. Mr. Hausser, the retiring pastor of the German Methodist Episcopal church, at his home Monday evening.

It is frequently remarked that there will be a greater outpouring from Scranton this summer than ever before. In this respect all previous records were broken last year, but during the coming summer it is said that those who will not go to the sea or other far away resorts will at least occupy cottages in nearby towns on the moun-

Now that the collegians and young ladies have returned to their studies after an Easter vacation, the city may be expected to be quiet in a social way until the middle of June, when the younger set will return. Even then, soclety will have only a brief chance for pleasure. It is predicted that by July the town will again be deserted until after the Indian summer.

The members of the Scranton Bicycle club enjoyed a hop in the club house.

Washington avenue, last George Sharpes, Wallace Ruth and Ernest Gilmore comprised the entertainment committee.

THE SOUTH SIDE FIRE.

Iwo Dwelling Houses That Were Insured Were Burned.

Ascribed as the cause of the matutinal blaze that startled the South Side at 2.30 yesterday morning, is the overturning and explosion of a lighted kerosene lamp in the basement of the dwelling house of Martin Gaughan at Irving avenue and Fig street.

The family was in bed and the smoke awakened Mrs. Gaughan, who aroused her husband and children. She tarried in the bedroom to get a small sum of money out of the trunk and received painful burns on the hands. The house is a story and a half high and was wrapped quickly in flames; the William Connell, Century and Neptune fire companies arrived, but the nearest fireplug was too far away to allow the firemen to do good work. The most of tendance on Veteran's day, 23d instant, the furniture was saved, but the build- at the Frothingham.

ing was destroyed. The house of John Logatka, on the right, caught fire and also burned up. All of their furniture was saved. The fire several times threatened to spread itself to the house of Edward Haggerty, but a stream of water on the side towards the flames kept it from catching. The fire was extinguished a few full attendance on Veteran's day, 23d minutes before 4 o'clock.

Gaughan valued his property at $1,000 and had it insured for $800; Logatka holds $600 insurance on his property, and valued it at $800. The damage to Haggerty's house will not exceed $25. This is an opportune moment to remind the Nineteenth ward and Twentieth ward councilmen that more fire-hyrants and alarm stations are needed.

Big Sale of Seats.

As the time approaches for the pres entation of the play there are evident signs of increased interest, and the diagram of seats now open at the Frothingham shows that the seats are being rapidly taken up. L. Fuller, H. P. Simpson and T. H. Watkins; loges, A. E. Hunt, Colonel H. A.

An important point that should not be lost sight of is that upon the financial success of the drama will depend to a great extent whether or not active work will be taken toward the erection of a new armory; and, if this feature is fully realized, there is no doubt but that Scrantonians will appreciate the object for which the performances are given and assist by their attendance and work in insuring the success of the move ment.
